GENEVA, Feb. 20.—Several surprises marked the opening day of the sessions of the Security and Arbitration Committee, both outside and inside the glass room of the Secretariat, where the meetings are being held.

Although not indicated in Chairman Benes's opening speech—which merely reviewed the committee's work to date—it was intimated in high quarters that he, the Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, has drafted a resolution calling for no further extensions of armaments until the League's Preparatory Commission completes its work and the full Assembly invites the nations to an international disarmament conference.

The resolution, it is understood, will ask each member State to halt all present programs covering every category of arms manufacture. This, in effect, would mean a shutdown of work until at least the end of the present year, as it is now regarded as scarcely possible for the League to call a full conference before 1929.

Will Hold It for a While.

However it is said that the committee Chairman before presenting his resolution will wait and see how the security and arbitration program develops. At present his idea is to hold it as an alternative proposal in case conflicts develop in the next few days such as may endanger the work of the committee or to offer it as a means to effectively bind the results here obtained until such time as the Assembly calls the nations of the world together for a full conference.

A second surprise was furnished by the Soviet observer, Boris Stein—a studious-appearing young man with a waxy complexion and horn spectacles—when he called at the office of the Secretary General, Sir Eric Drummond, and deposited the text of a draft disarmament convention based on the proposals made by M. Litvinof, the Soviet envoy, at the meeting of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission last November.

Discussion of these proposals was referred to the next meeting of the commission and they now form the principal item on the agenda of the sessions beginning March 15, when, according to the predictions of every League member questioned on the subject, they will be overwhelmingly squelched as impracticable and unsound.

M. Stein, realizing that in his rôle of observer he has no voice at the present meeting, explained that the draft convention contained nothing outside the Litvinof proposals and that they had been submitted merely to give the necessary time to the League to distribute them among the Governments before the March meeting, when M. Litvinof will be present to urge the case.

The document of eighty pages is written in French. It contains a lengthy introduction and is then paragraphed in ten articles, with blank places all ready for the hoped-for signatures of the high contracting parties. It will take two days to prepare it for publication.

When the suggestion was made to M. Stein of the possible fate of the Soviet plan—in fact of its probable entry into the discard—he merely replied:

"Then we have decided on our course of action."

Wants to See Chamberlain.

M. Stein intimated that M. Litvinof would arrive in Geneva well ahead of the disarmament meeting in order again to try and see Sir Austen Chamberlain during the March session of the Council. But that is likely to be more difficult than during the December session, owing to the fact that the majority of the British Cabinet has taken a definite stand against any further relations at the present time.

Another surprise was furnished by Lord Cushendun, the British delegate, who at the opening session this morning declared his Government intended to support the plan presented by Finland at the last Assembly, calling for mutual financial support during war crises. Lord Cushendun said:

"We consider that such a plan not only offers great inducements for nations to keep the peace, but is also an effective aid to any nation against unprovoked aggression."

This decision is considered by the committee members as a complete reversal of the British attitude six months ago, which it was expected would be maintained at the present discussions.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 20.—Mrs. Emily Smith Warner, elder daughter of Governor and Mrs. Smith, will be an alternate delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Houston, Texas, from the Twenty-eighth Congressional District, under plans completed here today by Democratic leaders. As an alternate delegate to the Houston gathering, Mrs. Warner may have the privilege of seeing her father nominated for the Presidency.

HAVANA, Feb. 20.—The sixth Pan-American Conference, after all the fireworks of two days ago, closed this afternoon as a love feast between the North, Central and South American States. There was no delegate who expressed disagreement with any of the matters adopted by the general session in its last meeting in the Aula Magna. There was no recrudescence of the internecine quarrel which marred the last general session and led to the memorable speech of Charles Evans Hughes on the policy of the United States toward the republics to the south.

The morning session was spent in signing the general acts of the conference, which were embodied in a single document. It was a singularly formal and uninteresting performance, but later the delegates, particularly those of the United States, expressed themselves as satisfied with the general results of the meeting.

Hughes Praises Work of Conference.

In a statement after the adjournment Mr. Hughes said:

"The conference has done much good. The discussion with regard to the Pan American Union has resulted in a general consensus of opinion as to the appropriate organization and functions of the Union and it is on a firmer basis than ever before.

"An important convention has been adopted with respect to private aircraft. Gratifying progress has been made in the codification of international law.

"A sensible procedure has been established with respect to the perfecting of plans of conciliation and arbitration, which promises more for progress in this important field than any action heretofore taken in this hemisphere.

"Numerous resolutions have been adopted on subjects affording welcome opportunities for Pan-American cooperation. Above all, the delegates have been associated for weeks in fraternal contacts and warm friendships have been formed.

"The delegates will return to their countries with clearer views of the conditions of successful collaboration, and the understanding and good-will which are of the essence of Pan-Americanism have been promoted in a notable degree."

Guerrero Signs and Departs.

The only thing which failed to make the meeting unanimous was the absence of Dr. Gustavo Guerrero of San Salvador. He was not among those present after his set-to with Mr. Hughes and the verbal chastising which he received from the delegates of Peru.

He was the first to affix his signature to the general acts of the conference in the morning and then

OIL SCANDAL DENOUNCED

Plea Is Made for Democratic Harmony as Means to Oust "Boodlers and Lobbyists."

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 20.—Senator James A. Reed of Missouri opened his campaign for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency here tonight, in the city where Woodrow Wilson, last Democrat elected, made his first political speech, Oct. 28, 1911, beginning his 1912 campaign for the nomination.

Mr. Reed's first shots were in the hearing of Democrats from all parts of Texas, a State heretofore lukewarm, to say the least, on the Missouri Senator's national principles, which have been anti-Wilson and anti-prohibition. The crowd that packed the city hall auditorium and overflowed into a street assembly to hear the address through amplifiers gave him a cordial reception, nevertheless.

In his characteristic style Senator Reed set forth the principles upon which he says the Democratic Party must stand if it hopes to win the election and attacked the record of the Republican Party in the Administrations of Harding and Coolidge.

He assailed Secretary Mellon as an ally of special privilege in business, attacked his war debt settlements and his support of Senator-elect Varp in Pennsylvania. The Senator also charged President Coolidge with inactivity in the oil scandals and with supporting tariff legislation unfair to farmers.

The Missourian attacked centralization of Government at Washington, the employment of an army of "spies and snoopers" and demanded a return to the principles of Jefferson and Jackson.

Mr. Reed's savage assaults on the Republican Party and the Administration of President Coolidge drew salvos of cheers from the Texas Democracy. His plea for harmony, by which he says the Democratic Party can throw the "boodlers, grafters and lobbyists" out of power, received particular emphasis.

Former Senator Joseph W. Bailey, regarded now as sponsor for the Reed movement in Texas, introduced the Missouri Senator. Former Governor James E. Ferguson came up from Austin to hear the address and give the Reed movement the benefit of his presence.

In an interview here this afternoon Mr. Reed, when asked if he was a candidate for the nomination by the Houston convention in June, said:

"I have gone as far as a man can go without making formal announcement."

The Senator will speak in Tulsa, Okla., Tuesday; Topeka, Kan., Wednesday; Denver, Thursday, and in Arizona and California cities the remainder of the next fortnight. He is on a tour arranged by the Democratic Reed Club of Missouri, with headquarters in the Washington Hotel, Washington, D. C., on invitation of "Reed for President" clubs through the Southwest and Coast areas.

Declaration of Principles.

"I speak for the inalienable right of the citizen to liberty of conscience without coercion, criticism or obloquy.

"To the preservation of the right of freedom of the press, peaceful assemblage, trial by jury and the re-establishment of local self-government and the sovereignty of the States.

"For bringing the Federal power

Gilbert Repays $92,000 Excess Gas Fees; Supreme Court Expected to Let Case Drop

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Abraham S. Gilbert, New York lawyer, who acted as master in eight New York City gas cases reviewed here in 1921, today informed the United States Supreme Court that he had returned to the eight corporations concerned the amount that he had received in fees and allowances in excess of that allowed by the Court, as directed by a Court order issued on Nov. 21, 1927.

The Court directed that the $57,500 paid to Mr. Gilbert by the Consolidated Gas Company be reduced by half and the amounts paid by the seven other companies by a third.

In all Mr. Gilbert received for his services as master originally $118,000, and this, the Court held, was $88,750 in excess of the sum due to him. Mr. Gilbert was ordered to repay the $88,750 plus interest at 6 per cent., which brought the total payment to about $92,000.

Mr. Gilbert appeared in court with his counsel, Representative James M. Beck, who told the Court that his client had made restitution, as ordered, in the following amounts:

Consolidated, $38,595.86; New York and Queens, $11,187.49; Central Union, $11,187.49; Northern Union, $6,712.50; New York Mutual, $10,292.47; Standard, $6,712.50; New Amsterdam, $4,027.50, and East River, $4,027.50.

This information was received without comment. It is understood that the Court will either vacate the order calling upon Mr. Gilbert to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt, or continue Mr. Gilbert in good standing at the bar without further formal action.

Herrick Doubts He Will Press Knapp Charges; Prosecutor Hints New, Enlightening Evidence

ALBANY, Feb. 20.—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp of Syracuse, former Secretary of State, may escape criminal prosecution upon some of the more serious charges made against her in the report submitted to Governor Smith by Randall J. Le Boeuf Jr., the Governor's Moreland Commissioner, following his investigation of her conduct of the 1925 census.

This was indicated today by District Attorney Charles J. Herrick of Albany County. Grand larceny, forgery, falsification of audits and illegal removal and destruction of public records were some of the charges laid at the door of Mrs. Knapp in the Le Boeuf report, which Governor Smith turned over to the public prosecutor for action more than a fortnight ago.

Mr. Herrick said that an opinion rendered by Attorney General Ottinger which declared to be legal appointment of about 140 "assistant supervisors" by Mrs. Knapp would be responsible in part for failure to obtain indictments on some grand larceny and forgery charges.

Mr. Herrick said that after having studied the Le Boeuf report in part he was not at all certain that he would submit the charges to the March Grand Jury, or to any Grand Jury at all.

"It must be remembered," he said, "that when Governor Smith transmitted the Le Boeuf report to me, it came unaccompanied by any recommendations or directions to prosecute. The question of whether Mrs. Knapp should or should not be prosecuted was left entirely to me."

The District Attorney said that he had limited his study to the forgery and larceny charges thus far.

He indicated that he had in his possession some new evidence of a character to shed light "on the entire situation," but he would not say whether it was favorable to Mrs. Knapp.

ALBANY, Feb. 20 (AP).—District Attorney Herrick said today that some time within a week he expected to interrogate several persons whose evidence was not taken by Mr. Le Boeuf in the Knapp inquiry.

He indicated that the testimony of these persons would to a considerable extent guide him in a decision on whether Mrs. Knapp's case should be presented to the Grand Jury.

SPEED STATE WORKS TO AID EMPLOYMENT

THEY STAND BY PARK CUTS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 20.—Following up his letters to the Mayors and County Supervisors of the State urging them to speed the construction of public works as one means of relieving unemployment, Governor Smith conferred today with the Republican Finance Committee Chairmen of the Legislature in an effort to quicken the State's activities.

From both Senator Charles J. Hewitt, Finance Chairman of the upper house, and Assemblyman Everly Hutchinson, finance leader in the lower house, the Governor obtained a promise that appropriation bills on the calendar providing large expenditures for labor on bridges, highways and parkways would be speedily passed.

The Governor announced that as soon as they were laid before him he would sign the bills, with their appropriations of $37,000,000, and through his Cabinet rush the preliminary work of office preparation and contract letting so that men might be employed on the roads as soon as the snows have gone.

With the object of putting pressure behind the construction program he has delegated a Cabinet committee to take responsibility, consisting of Secretary of State Robert Moses, Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene, Superintendent of Public Works, and State Architect William E. Haugard.

$100,000,000 Available for Works.

The Governor made it clear that his emphasis on public works as a method of providing employment was more than a gesture. He pointed out that the State had available about $100,000,000 for construction in appropriations from current revenues and in bond issues which would put to work a considerable number of men, running into the thousands, if it were spent promptly.

The Department of Public Works alone has more than $42,000,000 for its program, he said, almost all of which would have to go for labor. Most of the money for Long Island parks would be spent for that purpose, too, he continued.

"If this is just the program of the State authorities, how much more there must be if the work of cities, towns and counties is included," the Governor declared. "Their work has to be done some time. Let them begin right now. If there is a plumbing job to be done in the county Court House of Chemung County during the coming year, let them have it done now.

"I am not making any wild suggestions for useless building. What I suggest is to have work which is already planned get started and work which is already begun intensified."

Republicans Stand by Park Cuts.

On one point the Governor received no encouragement from the Republican finance chiefs. He urged them to reconsider the cuts they had made in the Long Island Park appropriations and the Capitol Park in Albany on the ground that the projects would afford employment to a great many men and would have to be effected some time, in any case. The Republicans stood firm on their modified program.

"Yet some of the parkway work which must be done another year, anyhow, would give employment to New York City laborers right at the edge of the Queens line," the Governor said later. "As for the Capitol, I could put men in Albany here to work in two weeks if they would give me the $200,000 I requested to raze the buildings which the State has already bought, and which must be pulled down to complete the park we started."

The Governor declared that concentration on the public works program would be particularly helpful because, according to the report of Industrial Commissioner James A. Hamilton, the building trades are now especially slack. He pointed out that $2,000,000 was now being appro-

LOST COLLEGE GIRL MAID IN KEW HOME

WILL MEET FATHER TODAY

Freshman, 22, Thought to Have Been Sensitive Over Her Age and Her Size.

Less than twelve hours after she had been reported as missing to the Missing Persons Bureau at Police Headquarters, Miss Catherine Elizabeth Tierney, 22-year-old freshman at Marymount College, a Roman Catholic school for girls at Tarrytown, N. Y., was found late last night, working as a maid in the house of Harry Lobsenz, an importer, at 160 Richmond Hill Avenue, Kew Gardens, Queens.

The young woman's disappearance was reported to Captain Ayres of Police Headquarters yesterday by William Rodgers of 2,115 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, her uncle.

Miss Tierney was the second college girl to be reported as missing within the last six weeks, the police having conducted in the meantime a futile search for Miss Frances St. John Smith, 18 years old, of 120 East Seventieth Street, who disappeared on Friday, Jan. 13, from Smith College at Northampton, Mass.

Miss Tierney left the college on Friday, Feb. 3, obtaining permission to leave from the Faculty on the pretext that she was going to visit her grandmother, Mrs. Martin Rodgers of 471 East 140th Street, the Bronx.

She did not reach her grandmother's home and on the following Sunday, Feb. 5, she telephoned her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Tierney of 159 Spring Street, Middletown, Conn., asking how she had made out in her midyear examinations. The telephone call was made from some point in this city, it was learned, and until she was recognized by Mr. Lobsenz last night that was the last heard of her.

Meanwhile the girl's father had reported her disappearance to the Chief of Police at Tarrytown and had also visited police headquarters here. A general alarm was sent out from headquarters for the girl yesterday.

Although it is expected that Miss Tierney will be put in touch with her father this morning, when she retired last night the news that she was being sought by the police was withheld from her by Mr. Lobsenz. Mr. Lobsenz, whose offices are at 100 Reade Street, read in the afternoon papers yesterday of the disappearance of the girl and from her name, description and published pictures at once recognized her as the girl he had engaged as maid for his two small children a week ago.

He communicated with Mrs. Rodgers, the girl's grandmother, Miss Tierney having given her grandmother's address when she was engaged, and Mrs. Rodgers informed Mr. Tierney at Middletown, Conn. Mr. Tierney said that he would meet Mr. Lobsenz in the latter's office this morning and the importer said that he would bring Miss Tierney to town with him.

Answered Ad Week Ago.

Mr. Lobsenz said that about a week ago he inserted an advertisement in the newspapers asking for a maid for his children, Elli, 8 years old, and Gladys, 7. Miss Tierney answered the advertisement, he said, and gave as reference a man whose name he thought was something like "Commander." She also furnished the gentleman's telephone number and said that she had been employed as a maid in his home for a week previously. Mr. Lobsenz said that he checked up her statement and found it correct and then engaged her to care for the children.

At Marymount College, Miss Tierney's failure to make her whereabouts known was not viewed with apprehension by the Sisters. Sister Superior Mary Gerard said that she believed Miss Tierney was well and able to take care of herself. She said that the girl was somewhat older than other members of her class and that while she was popular with her classmates she evidently felt the discrepancy in ages and wanted to make her own way in the world.

MAYOR BANTERS THRONGS

ALABAMANS SING HIS PRAISE

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 20.—Mayor James J. Walker of New York was greeted on his arrival here tonight for the Carnival of Mardi Gras with honor such as no man has ever received on a visit to New Orleans.

The honor was not the attachment of an extra locomotive ordered by the Reception Committee to help make up an hour of lost train time between Mobile and this city. It was not the sounding of every siren and whistle on all the locomotives in the train yard, on the roofs of the factories and on the ships in the harbor, a din which drowned every other sound. It was not the great crowd of men and women, many of them masked and in costume, who came to the station to greet him with cheers of welcome.

It was the holding up of the colorful parade of Proteus for twenty minutes so that the colorful Mayor of New York, whom everybody immediately hailed as "Jimmy," could see it.

Catches Gifts of Paraders.

Mayor Walker enjoyed every minute of everything New Orleans gave him tonight from the first greeting at Gulfport, Miss., by a committee led by R. E. E. De Montluzin. He was whisked through the streets to the City Hall on St. Charles Street. There in the Mayor's reviewing stand, which thousands cheered, hurling sallies and receiving quips, he stood smiling while scores of flares lighted the streets for scores of photographers.

He bubbled when the colorful floats representing heroes and heroines of history passed with their masked characters who, in accordance with the ancient custom of Mardi Gras festivals, threw largess to the crowd and especially at Mayor Walker.

The Mayor caught with his own hands every thing that was hurled at him. He had a magnificent collection of beads of every color which he hung about his neck until the last float passed, whereupon he presented his collection to a delighted child.

Spots Negro "Klansmen."

The Mayor was apparently enchanted by the floats. As one preceded by a squad of white robed and hooded negroes bearing torches, passed the stand his eyes went wide with astonishment and his lips parted in a laugh of delight.

"Look!" he cried. "There are crosses on the backs of those robes. They're the first black Ku Kluxers I ever saw."

The crowd who heard yelled with delight for the Ku Klux Klan, it appeared, was being spoofed in the parade by New Orleaners and they were glad to see that the joke had been observed.

Christopher Columbus passed in a moment on a wheeled replica of the Caravel Nina. Mayor Walker doffed his hat to Columbus.

"There," he declared to everybody, "is the greatest man that ever lived."

"Except for him I'd be in Ireland now instead of New Orleans."

"Pocahontas Looking for Al Smith."

Next came Haroun Al Raschid. "He was a man about town, too," commented the Mayor, but he amused the crowd most when Pocahontas passed.

"There goes Pocahontas," he

New Portrait by Speicher Bought by the Metropolitan

The Metropolitan Museum of Art has just purchased the most recently finished painting of the American artist, Eugene E. Speicher, it was learned yesterday. The portrait, called "Polly," was purchased from the artist through the Frank K. M. Rehn Galleries, 693 Fifth Avenue.

The portrait, for which Polly Rosen, daughter of Charles Rosen, the artist, sat, was completed this Winter. It is the second portrait of Miss Rosen by Mr. Speicher, the earlier being in the collection of Mrs. George Bellows.

The painting portrays a young girl in a brown tailored suit sitting in a wicker chair. The canvas measures some 45 by 30 inches. The Metropolitan has another painting by Mr. Speicher called "Morning Light," and other canvases of his are distributed among several American museums.

Mr. Speicher, who was born in Buffalo in 1883, has won many awards. Last year he was made a member of the National Academy.

WOMAN, DRESS AFIRE, FOUND DYING IN WOOD

TAKEN IN COMA TO HOSPITAL

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Feb. 21.—When Eno Campbell, a Bernardsville fox farmer, driving home from Morristown shortly before midnight tonight, saw a blaze in the shrubbery behind the Woodside roadside stand near here he looked closer and perceived the flames were wrapping a human body. The fire's victim was a woman apparently between thirty-five and forty years of age.

Campbell beat the fire out. Much of the woman's clothing had been burned and the police believe it had been saturated with gasoline. Campbell left the woman unconscious in the snow, drove four miles to Bernardsville and returned with a policeman, Charles Cavanaugh. Together they lifted her to Cavanaugh's car and brought her to All Souls Hospital here.

Physicians believe she will not live through the night. Her burns covered much of her body and left her face disfigured. The remnants of clothing which still covered her are of good quality. Her hat bears the label, "Bedell, Paris," and her sealskin coat that of "Louise, Buffalo."

She wore gold glasses and a gold wrist watch. Her hair is graying and her complexion is light. The police have no clew to her identity.

Campbell said he heard screams as he approached the filling station. He was next attracted by the flames which seemed to come from a bonfire in a grove not far from the road. By the time he determined the nature of the fire the woman had fallen to the snow unconscious. When Campbell returned with Cavanaugh they found that fire in the woman's clothing had burst forth again during their absence, as if a smouldering spark had ignited inflammable material.

Dr. B. M. James of Bernardsville found that the woman's right side had been severely burned, both legs were charred to the knees and her right hand was charred.

State Trooper Leon of the Morristown barracks, taking charge of the investigation of the case, is examining the possibility that the woman had been overpowered at some place other than where she was found, had been dragged there, saturated with gasoline and set afire. The scene is about five miles from a spot where the body of a man apparently murdered was recently found.

The woman was 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighed about 120 pounds. She was wearing black strap pumps, and the buckles of arctics were found near where she fell. About her neck was a string of red and green beads and a light green yarn flower such as women wear on their coats was found near her. Her hair was carefully waved. All about her there was a strong odor of gasoline or kerosene.

55-Story Building to Rise Near Grand Central; East 42d Street Project Involves $30,000,000

The Grand Central zone is to have another skyscraper, the third to be announced in the course of a week.

It will be a fifty-five-story store and office building on the site of the Lincoln Safe Deposit building and the old Athens Hotel, Forty-second Street, between Madison and Park Avenues.

The site is opposite Grand Central Terminal, between Forty-second and Forty-first Streets, being practically all of the property west of the Belmont Hotel with the exception of the Heckscher Building at the southeast corner of Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue and the fifty feet on the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-first Street.

Frederick Brown, real estate operator, purchased the Lincoln Safe Deposit Company property in 1926, the Athens Hotel property in the early part of 1927 and 303 Madison Avenue was purchased through Pease & Elliman from the Riker estate in the latter part of 1927.

Mr. Brown now disposes of his entire holdings in the block to the 530 Corporation, Francis S. Bancroft, President, representing a syndicate organized by Pease & Elliman for the purchase of the property, consisting, among others, of Dwight P. Robinson, Louis H. Bean, John H. Carpenter, J. E. R. Carpenter, Nathaniel J. Hess and the Comrades Realty Corporation.

The buyers will get possession in June and the building will be erected by Dwight P. Robinson Company from plans prepared by J. E. R. Carpenter and associates.

The entire transaction will involve nearly $30,000,000.

The Chanin Construction Company is now erecting a fifty-two-story commercial building on the west side of Lexington Avenue between Forty-first and Forty-second Streets, estimated to cost $12,000,000, and a sixty-three-story building has been planned for the block front on the east side of Lexington Avenue from Forty-second to Forty-third Street.

A thirty-one-story hotel was announced last week for the northeast corner of Thirty-ninth Street and Park Avenue, estimated to cost $8,500,000.

STATE COURT WARNS L.R.T. NOT TO VIOLATE 7-CENT FARE STAYS

HINTS AT CONTEMPT ACTION

Federal Case Comes Up Today —Road Denies Overtures to Labor Leaders.

TO APPEAL UNION RULING

Says It Will Discharge Men Who Join Amalgamated—Organizer Sees a Lockout.

The hearing on the State Supreme Court injunctions barring the Interborough Rapid Transit Company from increasing fares on its lines to seven cents was put off yesterday until Friday. This leaves the way clear for a hearing on the Federal writ before Federal Judge William J. Bondy in United States District Court today.

There was a possibility last night that the argument in Federal Court might also go over. Samuel Untermyer, the Transit Commission's special counsel, was suffering yesterday from a cold and might not be able to appear today. Last night, however, Mr. Untermyer was said to be improved.

Another element was injected into the fare situation when the Interborough, by way of reply to a report that it was seeking to settle its labor differences in return for support by the union in the 7-cent fare fight, issued a statement reiterating its intention to discharge the union members. In return, James H. Coleman, the union organizer, charged the Interborough heads were planning a lockout to further their efforts to raise the fare.

Upon the outcome of today's hearing may depend whether the I. R. T. will succeed in its intention to put the 7-cent fare into effect on March 3. Although the Interborough heads believe they will be able to raise the fare if the Federal restraining order preventing interference by State official remains in effect, Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Callahan, in postponing the State Court proceedings, raised doubts as to the company's right to violate the State injunctions, even though the Federal writ does prevent city and State officials from enforcing them.

Justice Callahan took the position that the Federal injunction did not restrain the Supreme Court itself and that he, as the Court, might act to hold the company heads in contempt.

A Matter of Courtesy.

As a matter of courtesy, when the Federal courts enjoin proceedings in State courts, the State court itself is not restrained, but all persons are restrained from prosecuting actions before it. Under the terms of the restraining order signed by Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow at his home in Yonkers last Friday night, the city and Transit Commission attorneys could not even request a postponement of the State actions. Judge Winslow orally modified his order to permit them to do that, however, and the request was made yesterday.

Justice Callahan, however, held this to be unnecessary. He said he himself would have continued them, making it unnecessary for the attorneys to risk contempt action.

"I do not feel that the dignity nor the power of the Supreme Court of this State requires us to enter into any mad scramble for jurisdiction in any case, no matter how important it is," Justice Callahan said.

"I feel that the United States courts will properly and promptly determine the question of jurisdiction as far as they are concerned, and I believe that this Court should and will step aside and wait for an orderly determination of the question, but I wish to advise the defendants that the order of this Court is there and that it is effective.

"I think, as I say, in the meantime the Federal court will take the matter up and we will act in an orderly fashion. There is no sense or need of any haste now. As I understand the situation, the threatened increase of fare was not to become effective until March 3. The stay in the State court simply anticipated that increase. The stay in the Federal court stays the parties in this court pending determination of the question in the Federal court, on motion there.

"In so far as the order of this Court which stayed the increase of fare is concerned, and as far as my reading in the press of the order of the Federal court is concerned, it properly in no way attempted to interfere with that stay and under the circumstances, of course, it is not necessary for me to advise the defendant railway company of the result, and I do not intend to do so, but it is there and we will adjourn this matter in the meantime until the Federal court has an opportunity to decide the question before it."

Cases Come Up Friday.

Justice Callahan put the cases on his calendar for Friday, but said there would be a further postponement if the Federal court had not got had time to pass upon the injunction action there.

The city was represented by Assistant Corporation Counsel M. Baldwin Fertig and Joseph A. Devery and William G. Fuller represented the Board of Transportation. Mr. Untermyer was unable to be in court and the Transit Commission was not represented. A letter was sent by him,

William L. Ransom, the Interborough's special counsel, appeared in court in the case for the first time. He read a formal statement into the record explaining that he appeared merely to object to the jurisdiction of the State court and to serve notice on the Court of the Federal injunction. He said:

"I appear here specially in behalf of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, without waiving in any respect the rights of the company as to the lack of jurisdiction of this court as to the subject-matter of these two actions and this summary proceeding. With all deference to this Court, I come here solely for the purpose of bringing to your Honor's attention formally and without prejudice the temporary restraining order made by the United States District Court on Feb. 17, and subsequently served upon the various plaintiffs in these two actions and this summary proceeding. I submit to your Honor a certified copy of the order of the Federal court.

By the terms of that order each of the plaintiffs, together with their counsel and special counsel, in each of the actions and proceedings here before your Honor, are stayed from taking any further steps or proceedings in any of these cases here before this Court.

"You will understand that I make this limited appearance here and this statement in behalf of my client, with the utmost respect and deference for the courts of the State of New York and for your Honor personally. The interests of my client require that it take and make clear to your Honor this definite position as to the matters before you. With this special appearance and the statement I have just made, I withdraw, with all deference, from further participation in the proceedings in which each of the plaintiffs has been stayed."

Prepare for Today's Action.

The course which the city and the Transit Commission will follow with respect to the Federal proceeding today was not disclosed. The city and commission attorneys conferred all afternoon with Mr. Untermyer in his apartment in the Ambassador Hotel, preparing for the hearing today.

Although the case will come before Judge Bondy, he may refer it, and Judge Winslow, who granted the original temporary order, may be the one to sit. It is also possible that a statutory court, consisting of two District Judges and a Judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals, may be convened, a procedure provided for cases of this sort where State statutes are involved.

The Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation, it was learned, will have a representative in court today, but will take no part in the proceedings. The company will follow the I. R. T. fare fight closely, it was said. An authorized spokesman for the company said last night, however, that the B. M. T. had no intention of joining in the litigation.

To Appeal Labor Decision.

Meanwhile the I. R. T. promptly met a report that it was seeking support of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes for its seven-cent fare program with the promise to recognize the union, with an announcement that an appeal would be taken from the decision of Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel setting aside an injunction which the company obtained against the union.

The statement, which will be mailed to every employe, was over the name of Frank Hedley, the President of the company, who is now in Florida. It read:

"The law department of this company will take steps to obtain a review of the recent decision denying an injunction to restrain interference to procure members of the Brotherhood (the company union) from breaking their agreements. In the meantime every member of the Brotherhood is assured that it is the intention of the management to live up to the agreement in every way.

"The agreement between the Brotherhood and the company is plain that no Amalgamated member can remain in the employ of the company. That agreement will be carried out by the company so long as the existing agreement lasts. It is not intended to permit a small group of misguided employes to dictate terms to an overwhelming majority of loyal employes."

Reply by Labor.

James H. Coleman, organizer for the Amalgamated, said Mr. Hedley would treat with the I. R. T. employes who are members of the union "if he remains at the head of the company."

"It does not appear at all certain that he will remain so," he said. "His statement reads like that of a desperate man. If he hopes to enrage his employes as a means of muddying the waters of the transit controversy he will find that the union is not blind.

"What Mr. Hedley proposes is a lockout. He says that men may not be members of the Amalgamated and still remain in the employ of the company. Since a vast majority of his employes are members of the Amalgamated, the moment he carries this threat into execution the lockout is on and the lines are tied. Perhaps that is what Hedley and Quackenbush want at this juncture.

"These men are still in the Interborough employ and still members of the Amalgamated. If he lives up to this threat his word is broken before the whole city. It is significant to note that his defy was issued in the absence of Mayor Walker from the city. Mr. Hedley has challenged the union, but he has not set the date. When he orders this lockout we will be ready. In the meantime, the truth is that Local Division 977 of the Amalgamated is in complete control of the situation and Mr. Hedley is not running the show."

MISHAPS MAR DRIVE FOR SPEED RECORD

KEECH BURNED IN WHITE CAR

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20.—Frank Lockhart, the American racing champion, failed today in an attempt to break the new world's automobile speed record of 206.958 miles per hour, made yesterday on the beach here by Captain Malcolm Campbell, the English driver.

Clutch trouble developed in Lockhart's motor on the run with the wind before he had completed half of the test mile and he finished the run with engine throttled down, making little more than 100 miles an hour for the entire distance.

He won the distinction on his windward run, however, of making better time than Captain Campbell did yesterday on his run against the wind. Lockhart's time on the latter run today was 200.22 miles an hour as compared with Captain Campbell's windward speed of 199.667.

J. M. White's three-motor, 1,500-horsepower car made its first run over the timing wires today with Ray Keech, the professional racer, as driver. It finished the mile with the wind at 186.046 miles an hour despite a broken water line, which sprayed steam over the driver, scalding his legs, but not seriously injuring him.

White tonight declared that the tachometer reading showed his huge car was going 235 miles an hour when it entered the test mile and that only the broken water line prevented the setting of a new record.

He said that he would immediately install a reverse gear, for lack of which the American Automobile Association barred him from the official trials, and make an attempt to break the record, possibly tomorrow. The contest officials timed his run today as a courtesy, but announced that whatever speed he might attain would not stand as an official record. The mechanical trouble prevented a second run.

Lockhart tonight said that he was confident that he would set a higher record than Captain Campbell's with his sixteen-cylinder motor, which is rated at 7,200 revolutions a minute. He said that on his windward run today the highest number of revolutions reached was 6,000. He will make his second attempt tomorrow.

Wade Morton of Indianapolis today set a basic official record for stock cars over a straight course at 104.347 miles an hour. He was driving an Auburn roadster. Under new rules the test was made with stock body and gears, only windshield assembly, running board fenders and lamps being removed. His windward run was made at 138.466 miles an hour, his leeward run at 100.530.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Major H. O. D. Segrave announced tonight that he contemplated going to Daytona with the idea not only of beating Captain Campbell's automobile speed record, but also any further record that might be established by any American rival.

"I aim at a speed of 230 miles an hour or more," he said.

Smith to Be Newsboys' Guest.

In accordance with his custom Governor Smith will attend the annual Washington Birthday dinner at the Brace Memorial Home for Newsboys tomorrow afternoon. Numerous patriotic, civic and religious organizations will attend special services in churches tomorrow to commemorate the birthday of George Washington.

A service will be held at noon in St. Paul's Episcopal Chapel, Trinity Parish, Broadway, between Fulton and Vesey Streets, under the auspices of the Sulgrave Institution. This will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. Joseph P. McComas. It was in St. Paul's Chapel that Washington worshipped regularly on Sundays while in this city. His pew is set aside and is visited by thousands every year.

The annual memorial service for members of the New York Chapter Knights of Columbus who have died during the year will be held tomorrow at 10 o'clock in St. Patrick's Cathedral. The Right Rev. The Rev. Edward F. Leonard, pastor of St. Malachy's Church, will be the celebrant of the mass and the Rev. Alexis Cunneen, a Passionist, will deliver the sermon. This chapter comprises the forty-one councils in Manhattan and the Bronx, with a total membership of about 25,000. The mass is celebrated annually on Washington's Birthday.

The annual mass for members of the New York Postoffice branch of the Holy Name Society who died during the year will be held tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock in St. Columba's Church, 339 West Twenty-fifth Street. The celebrant will be the Rev. John J. Kiernan, spiritual director of the society. The preacher will be the Rev. Charles F. Connor, S. J. A bugler from the Marine Barracks will sound "taps" at the conclusion of the mass. As tomorrow is also Ash Wednesday ashes will be distributed to the members and their families.

The Long Island Diocesan Assembly of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew of the Episcopal Church will hold its annual corporate communion tomorrow morning, beginning at 8 o'clock, in St. Ann's Protestant Episcopal Church, Clinton and Carroll Street, Brooklyn.

Breakfast will follow at 9 o'clock at the St. George Hotel, after which there will be a meeting in the hotel. The speakers will be Bishop Stires and Charles G. F. Wahle of Brooklyn. The Chairman will be William F. Legge, President of the Long Island Diocesan Assembly.

Washington's Birthday will be celebrated this evening by the American-Irish Historical Society at the headquarters of that association, 132 East Sixteenth Street, with a program of musical selections, addresses and readings.

N. S. JONAS DECLINES HONOR

Objects to Renaming Jewish Hospital in Brooklyn for Him.

Nathan S. Jonas, founder of the Jewish Hospital of Brooklyn, has refused to permit the Board of Directors to change the name of the institution to the Nathan S. Jonas Hospital, it was announced yesterday. Last month the Directors proposed that the name be changed as a tribute to Mr. Jonas. Several days ago, in a letter to Joseph J. Baker, President of the Hospital, which was made public yesterday, Mr. Jonas declined the honor on the grounds that the interests of the hospital could best be served by retaining the present name.

"For twenty-five years," he said, "the hospital has made an enviable reputation and prospered under its original name, which has been a matter of pride to the Jewish community, and in my opinion, a name which has become synonymous in the public mind with human and efficient service should be continued."

Green Is Made Court of Claims Judge; Hawley to Be Ways and Means Chairman

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—President Coolidge today nominated Representative William Raymond Green of Iowa, Chairman for six years of the Ways and Means Committee, to be a member of the United States Court of Claims. His confirmation by the Senate is expected soon.

The leadership of the Ways and Means Committee, which has been held in the past by such men as Payne, Dingley and McKinley, will pass to Representative Willis Chatman Hawley of Orgeon, who will be, it is said, the first man from the Pacific Coast to have reached the Chairmanship of the committee which initiates legislation providing for the nation's revenues.

This change, if the Senate confirms without delay, will come while the tax reduction bill of 1928, which already has passed the House, is pending in the Senate Finance Committee.

Mr. Green was warmly congratulated by his colleagues this afternoon. When he was eulogized by Representative Collier, Democrat, of Mississippi the members stood and applauded and Mr. Green thanked them.

Mr. Green's choice by Mr. Coolidge attracted much interest. The Ways and Means Committee under his leadership scrapped the Administration's tax reduction plan this year and passed a bill calling for a cut considerably greater than advocated by the President and Secretary Mellon. It also rejected the Administration suggestion for repeal of the estate tax.

Mr. Green is the only Republican from the mid-West on the Ways and Means Committee and has been ranked as a "conservative" member of the farm bloc.

Mr. Hawley has had longer service in the House than Mr. Green, having been there continuously for eleven terms, or twenty-two years, including the one that expires next year. Mr. Green has been in the House seventeen years. He was a Judge in Iowa from 1894 until 1911, when he came to Congress.

WAR MOTHERS' BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

WIDOWS ARE INCLUDED

Voyage Would Be Allowed Within Next Three Years—Action Now Up to Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP).—Without protest or debate, the House today approved a bill to enable mothers and widows of war veterans buried in Europe to make a pilgrimage to American cemeteries overseas at Government expense. The widows would be restricted to those who have not remarried.

The measure, which now goes to the Senate, would empower the President, in cooperation with the American Red Cross, to arrange for the pilgrimages "at any time during the period of three years from July 1, 1928."

The mothers and widows would be taken to Europe in groups. Each group would remain abroad approximately two weeks and in no case longer than three weeks, unless transportation were unavailable. First-class accommodations would be provided either on Government-owned or chartered ships. Passports would be arranged for by the State Department and immigration laws would be suspended in the case of aliens.

The bill, sponsored by Chairman Butler of the House Naval Committee, would not call for a specific appropriation, authorizing the expenditure of "such sum as may be necessary."

During consideration of the bill by the House Military Committee it was estimated by Mrs. Mathilda A. Burling, national representative of the Gold Star Mothers' Association of America, that not in excess of 3,000 mothers would desire to make the trip. There are approximately 30,000 American soldiers, sailors and marines buried in Europe.

Chairman Morin, in reporting the bill, quoted from Mrs. Burling's testimony to the committee as follows:

"I would like to make a case for There are so few. The Government has done such good work in identifying the bodies. I believe there are only about 300 left. What a comfort it would be to let these mothers kneel at one of the graves marked with a marble cross with these words: 'Here lies an honored American soldier known but to God,' and be comforted, thinking it might be her boy."

an example. On Feb. 13 it will be the tenth anniversary of my boy. He was my only child. To me he was only a child. Only 17 years old when he went across, he was killed at the time when to me life was the sweetest, only to be turned to sorrow at the receipt of the dreadful telegram announcing his death.

"There were many nurses who were with the boys when they died. They had informed mothers that the boys' lips were sealed with the words, 'Mother, Mother.' Oh, what a death to be calling for his mother.

"Can a Government ever repay us for our loss? The cost of this pilgrimage would be very little for the Government to do for us. It would only be fitting to send us across this year, this being the tenth anniversary of our great sacrifice, and I am sure it would not be asking too much.

"May we not include the mothers of the unknown dead on this trip?

ITALY'S CABINET BACKS NEW ELECTORAL BILLS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Feb. 20.—Today's session of the Council of Ministers approved two bills presented by Premier Mussolini which are among the most important shaped by the Fascist régime to build up a new Italy. One concerns the election of a new Chamber of Deputies, and the other exempts families having more than seven children from paying certain taxes.

The new electoral law follows the lines already laid down by Premier Mussolini. It suppresses universal suffrage, substituting for it a voting class made up as follows:

Men from 18 to 21 years of age who are married and have children.

Men who, being of age, pay at least 100 lire yearly in taxation or are owners of at least 500 lire of State consols.

This reduces the number of Deputies from 535 to 400, and establishes that candidates shall be chosen by thirteen confederations of employers and employes of various categories, including agriculture, industry, commerce, sea and aerial transportation, internal navigation, banks, all the professions and artists. The lists chosen by the confederations shall be submitted to the Fascista Grand Council, which has power to modify such lists before submitting them to the electors, who can approve or reject them by a "majority of half plus one."

HYLAN READY TO RUN AGAIN.

He Will Seek Mayoralty If People Request It, He Says in Florida.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20.—Following the dinner here tonight of the New York and Florida Society, John F. Hylan, former Mayor of New York, declared in an interview:

"I will run for Mayor if the people demand or request it. If the present Administration foists an increased fare on the public it is an imposition."

Former Mayor Curley of Boston was elected President of the society.

MYERS CASTIGATES WALSH OF MONTANA

INQUIRY A 'CRYING SHAME'

Myers Seeks Later to Withdraw Words From Committee Record, but Walsh Insists They Stay.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—"Charges of villainous unfairness" and suppression of evidence were made against Senator Walsh of Montana by Abram F. Myers, Federal Trade Commissioner, during today's hearing before a sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Senator Walsh held himself in restraint while Mr. Myers alleged that he had been unfair in the "bread trust" investigation and "aluminum trust" inquiry.

After the hearing Mr. Myers sought to withdraw the language he had used, but Mr. Walsh declined to allow what he termed "your insolence" or any of the details of the allegations by Commissioner Myers to be stricken from the record.

Summoned to explain why there was a discrepancy between a letter he had sent to Federal Judge Morris A. Soper of Baltimore in the bread merger case and a carbon of a letter he had allowed to go into the sub-committee record, Mr. Myers repeated his explanation that it was by "sheer accident" that his stenographer, Miss Alice N. Giesler, had sent the committee a carbon of a letter he had written to Judge Soper but later supplanted with another without sending the first one.

Miss Giesler testified today that she had made the mistake of sending the wrong letter.

Senator Walsh asked Mr. Myers today about a newspaper statement in which he was credited with having said that every important action of the Department of Justice or Federal Trade Commission in recent years had been attacked politically at the Capitol, and that the time had come to "shed some light on the methods employed in some of these investigations."

"Please shed light," Senator Walsh said.

Mr. Myers then declared that Senator Walsh, in the hearings on the "aluminum trust," had "featured" the report of an investigator named Diggers, while refusing to accept the report of Henry Ward Beers, a Trade Commission investigator.

"When you found he did not share your views you did not call him in," Mr. Myers asserted.

"I think your investigation of the 'bread trust' is a crying shame," Mr. Myers added.

"Is it a proper method for you to have sitting beside you in that inquiry a man running a little society and whispering in your ear?"

Mr. Myers pointed at Basil Manley of the People's Legislative Council, a spectator at the hearing.

"Your report," he continued, "was as villainously unfair as anything ever put on paper, although the consent decree was a white monument. You sneer at it and go all over it looking for flyspecks."

Both Mr. Myers and Miss Mary G. Connor a special assistant in the Department of Justice, said that Judge Soper was in a great hurry the day the bread merger decree was signed and that he agreed to allow only twenty minutes for its consideration.

OPPOSE PARCEL POST FOR CUBAN CIGARS

Three Democrats Tell House Committee It Would Hurt the Home Industry.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP).—Opposition to the parcel post shipment of cigars from Cuba in less than 3,000 lots was voiced before the House Rules Committee today by three Democrats, Oldfield of Arkansas, Rainey of Illinois and Abernathy of North Carolina.

They contended that it would provide for box shipments direct to the American consumer and seriously impair the American cigar industry.

President Coolidge was said today by Chairman Green of the House Ways and Means Committee to be anxious that the bill permitting the entry of Cuban cigars by parcel post be approved promptly.

The parcel post convention between the United States and Cuba expires March 1, and the bill before the committee is intended to modify Cuban opposition to further relations of this nature unless the cigar provision is adopted.

Representative Green, after a call at the White House, said he expected the Rules Committee to permit discussion of the bill on the floor some time this week.

The President also conferred today with O. K. Davis, Secretary of the National Foreign Trade Council, which is supporting the cigar bill.

EXPLOSION ENTOMBS FOURTEEN IN COAL MINE

Fire Follows Blast in Kinlock Diggings Near Pittsburgh, Barring Rescuers.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 20 (AP).—Fourteen men were entombed when an explosion wrecked the interior of the Kinlock Mine of the Valley Camp Coal Company at New Kensington, near here tonight. Members of the United States Bureau of Mines crew here were preparing to take charge of the rescue work at the diggings.

A report from officials of the mine to the Bureau of Mines said fire followed the blast and was spreading through the diggings. George S. McAs, fire fighting expert of the Mines Bureau, assembled a group of rescue workers and left here for the mine on a rescue truck.

The appeal for aid came from officials of the mine. They also said heavy smoke was pouring from the entrance to the shaft and all efforts to enter the levels at that time proved futile.

Fire fighting apparatus and men employed at the mine were fighting the blaze from the surface. They were aided by volunteer firemen from nearby towns.

TEXANS CHEER REED ASSAILING COOLIDGE

within the limits not only of the letter but of the spirit of the Constitution.

"For the abolition of government by boards and bureaus.

"For the equalization of the burdens of taxation, the repeal of all laws creating special privilege, and the dismissal of a vast army of spies, snoopers, sneaks and informers.

"For the liberation of honest business from oppressive interferences by governmental agents.

"The prosecution and punishment of those who by criminal conspiracy in restraint of trade make war on honest business, and

"For the swift and sure punishment of all public plunderers, bribegivers, election corruptionists and other malefactors.

"These are the great issues. Upon many other problems we may be in division, but here is a field on which the Democratic Party can plant its banners. Here is the ground where all Democrats may assemble and where Democratic victory may be achieved."

Assails Scrapping of Warships.

"During recent years two movements running along parallel lines have been gradually undermining these established policies. The first is a combination of pacificism and internationalism. We entered upon that scheme. At a time when we had substantially created a navy great enough to guard our shores against all attacks, the Harding Administration agreed to scrap four to five hundred million dollars' worth of our great dreadnoughts, constructed or in process of construction; only to discover that Japan and Great Britain were building vast fleets of smaller vessels, so that our fleet would be destroyed by Great Britain and probably by Japan.

"Now, having lost our superior advantage and destroyed our great vessels at a loss of between four and five hundred million dollars, we find ourselves compelled to seriously consider the expenditure of $750,000,000 to construct a fleet of smaller craft, which would have been wholly unnecessary had we not destroyed our major vessels.

"Without pursuing a militaristic policy, I would keep this country forever in a position to defend her honor and to protect her shores."

Turns to Attack on Mellon.

He then attacked the appointment of Andrew W. Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury.

"A Federal statute forbade the appointment to the Treasury portfolio of any man engaged in trade," said Mr. Reed. "Mellon was appointed in the teeth of that statute. He was the director in sixty-eight great banks, railroads, trust companies and industrials, embracing almost every line of human endeavor from the control of the aluminum trust to the manufacture of a very excellent brand of whisky.

"Mellon was at the time and now is probaly the richest man in the United States and by and through his associates represented literally complained of the influence of the great interests upon the Government. But in this case the interests were not content with influence on the Government; they moved in and took possession.

"Mellon declared that the revenues of the Government were so low that a bonus could not be paid to the soldiers. He compelled Mr. Harding to retract his campaign promise to the soldiers that a bonus would be promptly paid. Immediately thereafter he advocated a tax reduction of $90,000,000 per year on the surplus profits of the millionaire class. He preferred to serve his wealthy associates, even though to do so the soldiers who had fought for their country must be denied the pittance they sorely needed. It has been charged (and never denied to my knowledge) that had Mellon's recommendation been adopted by Congress it would have brought a reduction of $9,000,000 per annum upon the taxes of Mellon and his companies.

"Under Mellon's scheme there was to be no substantial reduction of taxes on moderate incomes. The plan was twice defeated by a coalition of Democrats and insurgent Republicans in the Senate; but it was persisted in until Mellon substantially had his way. In all this Mellon had the backing of the Administration and the stand-pat element of the Republican Party."

Hits at War Debt Terms.

Next the Senator took up the war debt settlements, saying that "during and subsequent to the war great financial interests, chiefly the Morgan group, had floated or acquired $13,000,000,000 of European securities bearing high rates of interest and obtained at heavy discounts. Knowing that if the United States insisted upon the payment of the debt due it, they might be postponed in the collection of the debts due them, the Morgan interests boldly demanded the cancellation of the debts due our Government."

Regarding the settlement with Great Britain, Mr. Reed said a skilled accountant certified that the difference in interest compounded throughout the sixty-six years amounts to more than $22,000,000,000.

"This unjust settlement," the Senator added, "was forced through the Congress by the direct action of Mellon and the President, backed by a stand-pat organization efficiently supported by a skilled financial lobby."

Mr. Reed declared that Italy escaped the payment of $1,612,000,000 and that if the French transaction is completed "there will by the transactions aforesaid have been placed upon the backs of the American people an aggregate burden of $10,705,000,000, which by every principle of justice ought to be borne by European nations. The annual interest charge which must be paid by our taxpayers for the money on that part of the debt thus transferred from European countries to America is $105,617,000."

"The whole attitude of our Government has been one of vacillation and cowardice," continued Senator Reed. "An Administration guilty of such transactions as I have described ought to be driven from power and buried in the grave of shame."

Farmers and the Tariff.

The Senator then discussed the tariff, declaring that "no sooner was Harding inaugurated than the protected interests swarmed upon Washington as the locusts swarmed upon Egypt." He said "tariff rates were raised to a point never before demanded. And this was done for the express purpose of holding the price of American manufactured products at the war level.

"This infamy was consummated at a time when the American farmer, whose prices had been regulated down by Mr. Hoover during the entire war, was compelled to sell his surplus upon the bankrupt markets of Europe, and the price of the surplus, of course, fixed the level of the domestic market. Thus, from that day to this the farmer has been compelled to pay an unnatural and unjust price for everything he purchases and to sell in a market where he is not permitted to buy.

"That tariff they propose to maintain, although last year they shipped more than $4,000,000,000 of manufactured goods out of the country, sold them in the open markets of the world and at prices from 25 to 50 per cent. less than were exacted from the American people."

Oil Scandals Denounced.

Senator Reed, referring to the oil scandals, said "the scaly hands of the conspirators reached into the Navy Department and corrupted or deceived certain of its high officers. The first act of Coolidge was to approve the policies of the Harding Administration. A Senatorial investigation exposed the infamous oil transactions. In its efforts to ascertain the facts and bring the criminals to book the Senate committee received no assistance from the Coolidge Administration."

Mr. Reed asserted Harry M. Daugherty, then Attorney General, "paralyzed the Department of Justice so that its arm was not stretched forth to apprehend Fall and his fellow-conspirators. Whilst the Senate committee under these adverse conditions was laboring to expose the oil land frauds, Coolidge never lifted a hand. He remained as mum and inactive as a Boston oyster stranded on the beach in the month of August. In the face of overwhelming evidence Daugherty was retained until the blaze of public indignation grew so hot that Coolidge was obliged to back away from the fire."

Reed Rebuked as "Jaywalker."

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 20 (AP).—Senator Reed of Missouri was "bawled out" for "jaywalking" by a Dallas policeman as he returned from the city auditorium here, where he had delivered an address opening his speaking tour of the West.

The Senator and his party walked across the street with the traffic lights against them without knowledge of the city traffic regulations. As the Senator stepped on the curb on the far side a policeman walked up.

"You'll get along better if you watch the signals," he said.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Feb. 20.—Colonel Leroy Springs, textile manufacturer of this city and Lancaster, S. C., father of Captain Elliott Springs, war ace and author, was shot in the head and seriously wounded this morning by Eldred Griffith, cotton broker. The bullet went in the upper left cheek bone and lodged in the skull near the base of the brain. Colonel Springs was rushed to the Charlotte Sanitorium, where it was announced tonight that his recovery seemed assured.

Mrs. Springs is widely known in social and political circles. At the last national Democratic convention she was placed in nomination for Vice President. Colonel Springs's son, Captain Elliott White Springs, was an aviator in the World War, and has since gained note as a writer. Colonel Griffith is 76 years old.

TO SELL 20 MILES OF YOSEMITE TREES

Two of Three Groves of Finest Sugar Pines in Country to Be Cut Down.

PARK OFFICIALS POWERLESS

Special to The New York Times.

YOSEMITE, Cal., Feb. 20.—Twenty square miles of the Yosemite Park, including part of the finest sugar pine forests in the country, will be turned over to lumber interests and two of three groves of the giant trees for which Yosemite is world-famous will be eliminated from the park if a plan now being worked out between the National Forest Service and California lumber interests is put into effect. Only prompt action by Congress in providing funds for condemnation and acquisition of the threatened lands, most of which are privately owned, can save these natural wonders. National Park Director Mather is expected here Thursday to discuss details of the plan, which he has already approved.

The reason given by park officials for approving this restriction of Yosemite boundaries is that the lands to be eliminated are either already privately owned and so cannot be protected by the park service or are given in exchange for privately owned lands elsewhere within the park area. They declare that the transfer will facilitate the park administration and will assure preservation of areas in more traveled portions of the park. Whether the lands are transferred or not, they say, the timber on privately owned lands within the park is doomed within the next few years, as lumber companies acquired title to them before the park was created. Only through condemnation proceedings with indemnification of owners or through purchase by the State of California can they be saved from destruction, it is believed.

The total area to be cut out of the park is 13,200 acres, of which 7,080 are privately owned. Of the latter, 1,500 are already cut, mostly from around the world-famous Merced and Tuolumne groves of giant trees which now stand in a desert of destruction and desolation within the park boundary.

It is proposed to make these groves two national monuments so that they may not fall into the hands of lumber companies.

Profit of $90,000 Seen.

The value of timber on Government lands to be excluded from Yosemite is estimated by lumber companies at $168,000 and by the United States Forest Service at $230,000. The park will receive in exchange a full title to privately owned lands within a boundary containing timber valued by the lumber companies at $184,000 and by the Forest Service at $144,000. According to Forest Service estimates, the lumber companies, therefore, are gainers by nearly $90,000, in addition to obtaining lands which are more accessible to their logging railroads. The explanation of this disproportion is that the lands to be surrendered by the park are to be cut only 80 per cent. instead of being completely denuded, and that requirements of the Forest Service, which would supervise their cutting under the new plan, require cleaning up and other processes more expensive than to follow the usual lumber company procedure of leaving the ground covered with branches and wood refuse until a forest fire completes the work of destruction.

The plan has been under consideration for two years but has been blocked by the inability to reach a satisfactory arrangement of all details. In the meantime, logging within the park area has proceeded rapidly, lumber interests evidently fearing the public would discover the destruction of the park forests and force Congress to hasten condemnation proceedings acquiring title to privately owned lands within the park, thus checking lumbering operations. The trouble goes back many years, owing to the failure of Congress to acquire title to these lands when the park was created. The Park Service is powerless to prevent lumber companies from cutting timber on their own lands within the park boundary. Unfortunately, by arranging for ribbons of timber to be preserved along the principal highways, the Park Service has prevented the public from realizing the extent of the destruction of the priceless park treasures. Not one tourist in a thousand has any idea that park lands are being rapidly denuded.

The threatened area includes the finest stands of gigantic sugar pines, considered by naturalists as among the most splendid trees in America, next to the sequoias and redwoods. The failure to condemn privately owned lands within the park surrounding the famous Merced and Tuolumne groves of giant trees has resulted in the surrounding region being completely stripped of an enormous pine forest, with great injury to the natural beauty of the park area and a serious fire hazard for these two historic groves. Already it is too late to save the region, but some of the other forest can be saved if prompt action is taken by Congress. Undoubtedly this is a great menace to a national park.

PROTESTS WADSWORTH AS DELEGATE-AT-LARGE

A protest against the selection of former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth as a delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention was sent yesterday to State Chairman George K. Morris by Miss Grace Van Braam Roberts, Legislative Chairman of the New York Women's Committee for Law Enforcement. Miss Roberts declared that at least one woman known to favor prohibition enforcement should be selected and suggested Mrs. Chauncey Hamlin of Buffalo. Miss Roberts said:

"I feel your committee should not send Mr. Wadsworth to the National Convention. The only reason for sending him, given me by party leaders, is that Mr. Wadsworth wants to go. It seems to me Mr. Wadsworth's wants are his chief trouble, the one outstanding thing about him.

"A delegate-at-large of a higher calibre should be selected, one who feels responsibility to his party platform and his country instead of a man who wants things personal to himself. Why not a woman? Why not Mrs. Chauncey Hamlin of Buffalo?

"Mr. Wadsworth is just one who wants to go. We are the many who don't want him to go. A great body of women who are deeply concerned in the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment in the State don't want him to go, besides the many men who are protesting to you about his going. This dry sentiment, Mr. Morris, is the progressive, growing side; its weapons are facts. Reactionaries can never overcome it with just their wants."

RITCHIE DECLINES DEBATE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 20.—Governor Ritchie says he will decline the invitation he received from the American Forum to debate with Ogden L. Mills, Under Secretary of the Treasury, on the chances of a Democratic victory at the next Presidential election.

The debate was to have been held in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. The invitation to the Governor was first extended in a letter. Last week it was repeated by a representative of the American Forum, who called at the executive offices at Annapolis.

"I feel it is too early to discuss such a subject," the Governor explained, "particularly when I do not know who the candidate will be, although everything is pointing to Governor Smith of New York.

"I do not wish to assume that Governor Smith will or will not be the candidate. Another candidate might have different views from Governor Smith on a number of subjects. Such a debate should depend on the candidate."

EPISCOPAL CLERGY 3-1 ON DRY FAILURE

FOR GOVERNMENT CONTROL

Bulk of Replies Express Opinion That Time Enough Has Been Given for a Fair Trial.

Failure of prohibition is attested by almost a three-to-one proportion by American clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church in answering questionnaires on the subject sent out by the Church Temperance Society of that denomination, it was announced yesterday afternoon following a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Society in the Town Hall, 123 West Forty-third Street.

Yesterday's report closes the returns on the questionnaire formulated and distributed by the Temperance Society last Spring.

Answering the question, "Is prohibition a success in your locality?" 1,304 clergymen wrote "No," as against 501 that replied "Yes," according to the report made at the meeting by the committee on the nation-wide poll of the Episcopal clergy. The report was read by the committee Chairman, the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Livingston of Setauket, L. I.

More than 1,000 new answers to the questionnaire distributed by the society last spring had been received since the committee reported in November, Dr. Livingston announced.

"The majority favor a modification of the Volstead act with some form of Government control as in Quebec," the report said. "In addition to the answers received on the postal cards, hundreds of letters have been received from bishops and rectors in every State in the Union, setting forth at length their views about prohibition.

"An analysis of these reveals the vast majority hold that prohibition is wrong in priciple and contrary to Scripture, and for that reason, they contend that even if 100 per cent. of enforcement could be obtained, prohibition would still be a failure."

Vote for Modification.

Response to the question "Have we had the law long enough for a fair trial?" was Yes 1,329, No 758. To the query "Regardless of one's attitude toward the use of liquor, do you believe a prohibition law offers the best solution for the problem of intemperance?" the replies were Yes 643, No. 1,601. On the question "Should the Volstead act be modified?" the replies were Yes 1,399, No 673.

Answering the question "Should the Eighteenth Amendment be repealed?" the report showed Yes 953, No 984. And to the query "Are you willing to cooperate with the Church Temperance Society in a campaign for more practicable legislation in the interest of temperance and morality?" Yes 1,421, No 502. The total number of clergy to whom the questionnaire was sent was 5,301, and the number of replies 2,980.

"Comparison of the present questionnaire with our former polls of the clergy taken before the Eighteenth Amendment became the law," concluded the report, "shows that those clergy that formerly believed in prohibition have voted in full strength this time for prohibition, except about twenty of the prohibitionists, who have had their faith destroyed in trying to build character with a club."

Other members of the committee were the Venerable Archdeacon Joseph H. Dodshon of Southern Ohio, the Rev. Dr. John W. Gill of Brooklyn, the Rev. Dr. Frederick D. Evenson of Liberty, N. Y., and Christopher T. Emett Jr., 901 Livingston Avenue. The report was adopted unanimously.

The meeting adopted a resolution declaring that enforcement had broken down and that the time had come for adequate remedies. Another resolution which was adopted advocated "our support to the plan of the Association Opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment for a national referendum on the subject of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, and of the Volstead Act." In concluding, it voiced approval of the efforts of Senator Borah and Representative La Guardia to clarify and focus the attention upon the prohibition issue through questioning Presidential candidates.

Congratulations to the general superintendent of the society, Dr. James M. Empringham, and the physicians and staff of your institution located at 535 St. Nicholas Avenue" on the accomplishments of the year was contained in still another resolution adopted.

MRS. FEICKERT DENIES SHE WILL QUIT RACE

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 20.—Mrs. Lillian F. Feickert, former Republican National Committeewoman and President of the New Jersey Women's Republican Club, told members of the Camden Women's Club at a meeting here tonight that she had no thought of retiring from the United States Senatorial race.

Declaring that none of the three men who oppose her for the Republican nomination "stands for a definite object" and that all "straddled the important issues of the day," Mrs. Feickert said she was in the campaign "to the bitter end."

She asserted that her platform included strict enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and a continuation of Coolidge policies. Statistics gathered from all parts of the country proved that her stand on the prohibition enforcement issue represented the wishes of a majority of the nation's voters, she contended.

"Many tales of party strife and misguidance of public trust reached my ears while I was touring Europe," she said. "When I heard of what was going on back home I made up my mind to enter the race right then and there. And I'm going to stick in it to the bitter end.

"The women of this State must be given recognition, and I would not be playing fair with them by withdrawing at the instance of political leaders."

REPUBLICANS PICK DEPEW.

Richmond Leaders Name Him for the National Convention.

The Republican Executive Committee of Richmond County at a meeting last night in St. George, S. I., selected Chauncey M. Depew as their delegate to the Republican National Convention. Staten Island is in the First Congressional District, which includes Lower Manhattan. The two delegates and two alternates are divided equally between the two sections of the district. The delegate chosen in Staten Island was Clinton Sharrett, local Republican leader.

The Democratic delegates from the same district, already named, are Controller Charles W. Berry, from Staten Island, and Alderman Peter J. Hammil, from Manhattan. The alternates are Representative Anning S. Prall, from Staten Island, and Alderman Martin Tanahey, from Manhattan.

When the Republican alternates are selected all the names will be placed on the petition for the primaries.

HOOVER BACK AT DESK.

Secretary, on Return From Florida, Takes Up Dry Questionaire.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Returning to Washington today after a week's fishing in Southern Florida waters, Secretary Hoover found a great mass of correspondence awaiting his attention and enough persons desiring conferences to keep him busy a week, had he been able to say "yes" to all who sought access to him. Mr. Hoover said he felt in better shape physically than in a long time.

Within the next few days, perhaps tomorrow, Mr. Hoover will make public his reply to Senator Borah's prohibition questionnaire, which the Idaho Senator is submitting to all candidates for the Republican nomination for the purpose of putting them squarely on record as to how they stand on rigid enforcement of the prohibition laws.

Cincinnati Picks Hoover Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 20.—The dove of peace descended upon the Hoover followers here tonight and candidates for Hoover delegates were agreed upon after numerous conferences during the last four or five days. Both the insurgent and regular wings of the Republican Party, which will contest bitterly for county offices, will be as one man for Herbert Hoover, having decided to forget their local differences when considering national affairs.

REVIVE MOVE TO GET C. E. HUGHES TO RUN

State Leaders Will Try to Get Him to Reconsider His Stand on Presidency.

POINT TO HAVANA SUCCESS

Consent Would Relieve New York Chiefs of Their Embarrassment Over Hoover.

New York organization Republicans will make another effort to get former Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes to reconsider his determination not to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, it was learned yesterday. The renewal of the attempt to place Mr. Hughes in the field as New York State's candidate has followed Mr. Hughes's success in smoothing out difficulties at the Pan-American Conference at Havana. It is the belief of those advocating his nomination that the conference at Havana has again demonstrated that Mr. Hughes is an outstanding American and that it would be comparatively easy to bring about his nomination, if he would give his consent.

The consent of Mr. Hughes to become a candidate would relieve the State Republican organization of the embarrassment caused by the candidacy of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, it was said. There was little doubt, it was said, that Mr. Hughes would have the solid vote of the New York delegation, including those now favoring the nomination of Mr. Hoover, if he would consent to the presentation of his name to the convention.

Personal friends of Mr. Hughes said that they did not believe that Mr. Hughes would change his decision not to run. One such friend who had discussed the situation with him just before he went to Havana said that Mr. Hughes at that time showed no indication of changing his mind. In announcing that he would not be a candidate, Mr. Hughes, who is 66 years of age, said he was too old. According to his friends, it is his intention to continue the practice of law several years longer and then to retire.

PAPER AT ODDS ON SMITH.

Jacksonville Publisher Favors Him, but Editor Doubts He Will Win.

An unusual situation of a newspaper owner advocating the nomination of Governor Smith for President while the editor of the newspaper expressed disagreement was presented yesterday, when the Jacksonville (Fla.) Journal printed an editorial by its editor, John Temple Graves 2d, setting forth the reasons why John H. Perry, owner of the paper, advocated the support of Governor Smith by the Florida delegation and at the same time expressing his own disagreement. A copy of the editorial was telegraphed to this city.

Mr. Perry, who is President of The American Press Association and owner of the Reading (Pa.) Times and the Pensacola (Fla.) Journal and News, declared his belief that Governor Smith would be nominated, that he was the only Democrat who could be elected and that his religion did not constitute a bar to his candidacy. Mr. Graves in his editorial expressed concurrence in the view that Governor Smith's religion, attitude on prohibition or affiliation with Tammany should not bar him but disagreement with the view that he would be nominated or could be elected.

WON'T ENDORSE HOOVER.

Engineers Praise Him but Refrain From Political Action.

A. M. Knowles, a member of the New York Chapter of the American Association of Engineers, advocated the organization's formal endorsement of Herbert Hoover's candidacy for President at a meeting last night in the Hotel McAlpin. After a discussion in which two other speakers supported his suggestion and five opposed it, President J. H. Griffin ruled that the majority sentiment made the organization's endorsement impossible.

Every speaker endorsed Mr. Hoover personally as the type of candidate engineers should support, but most of them argued that it was against the policy of their organization to become involved in politics. The New York chapter of the association has 350 members, about 50 of whom attended the meeting.

WELCOMES WALKER IN JOYOUS TUMULT

cried. "Pocahontas, looking for Al Smith."

This was the only time during the evening that Mr. Walker mentioned the Governor of New York, whose interests as a Presidential candidate his visit here was supposed to promote. It was the closest also that he came to politics, which seemed not even to exist in his consciousness. But he did get in a good word later in the evening for New York. That came in his brief radio address over station WSMB in reply to a welcome by Mayor O'Keefe.

Mr. O'Keefe had said that New Orleans appreciated his visit and asked him to tell the radio listeners how he felt about New Orleans.

Mayor Voices His Gratitude.

"I was never so thrilled in all my life as with the reception accorded by New Orleans to the Mayor of the City of New York," replied Mr. Walker. "This reception has never been excelled except by my desire to see New Orleans. For so many years I have wanted to come here, expecting so much and I found everything plus.

"I hope to see a great deal more not only of the carnival, but of the city itself—the historical city so antique, yet so modern.

"I have had a wonderful experience tonight and with all my devotion and all my gratitude to the Republic I saw tonight one potentate who I hope will live forever—Rex of New Orleans.

"I am sorry only about one thing tonight; that is the observation made by Mayor O'Keefe that I had to go home in two days. Two days is too short a time for the Mayor of New York to spend here. Tomorrow is Mardi Gras, Fat Tuesday, Shrove Tuesday and the next day is Ash Wednesday, next come forty days of lent—forty troublesome days ahead and only forty-eight hours here.

New York's Debt to South.

"But New Orleans will be penalized in the future for this reception tonight. It is going to have the Mayor of New York or the former Mayor of New York always with you when he can make it. I feel gratitude to New Orleans for the regard which this reception shows New Orleans feels for New York.

"New York owes much to the sons and daughters of the Southland. They've come to us and helped us make our city what it is and they've been received and welcomed and measured on their merits in a city which has no regard for where they came from but for what they are. New York admires and appreciates the genuine hospitality of New Orleans."

Soon after the speech was concluded, Mr. Walker, Charles S. Hand, his secretary, and Paul Block, his close personal friend, who is a member of his party, went in company with Mayor O'Keefe and the members of the Reception Committee to the Ball of Proteus.

Race Today Named for Walker.

Many events have been arranged for the Mayor for tomorrow. They include a motor tour, review of two parades, in one of which Rex comes to the city and merry making begins, and two balls.

He will also go to the Louisiana Jockey Club race track and make the award to the winner of the Jimmy Walker Handicap, which will be the sixth race.

It is likely, too, that the Mayor may take an opportunity to go incognito, so to speak, among the people in the streets during the merry making. Every one will be masked all day and Mayor O'Keefe has provided Mayor Walker with a domino. The Mayor said tonight that he hoped he would get a chance to wear it.

The political significance of the trip today was manifest mostly in the apparent friendliness felt by the Southerners for the Mayor as soon as they saw him in the various towns at which the train stopped. He made friends easily, as those in New York expected, and if Tammany and Governor Smith can be helped by the personality of Mr. Walker, they unquestionably received some aid today.

Atlanta, which will be one of the cities to be visited on the return home, sent a telegram today through Hollins N. Randolph, leader of the Georgia delegation at the Democratic Convention in New York and one of the firmest opponents of Governor Smith then, declaring Mr. Walker would have to remain in Atlanta longer.

"We haven't the least idea, my dear good friend and benefactor," read Mr. Randolph's telegram, "of permitting you to remain in Atlanta only three hours. Such a thing is unthinkable, and amounts to lese majesty. Forget it and prepare to spend the evening. The town will be yours."

Hailed in Heflin's State.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 20.—Several hundred residents of Senator Heflin's home State came to the railroad station here today with a piano and a specially written song of greeting for Mayor Walker of New York as he passed through on his way to New Orleans.

"Jimmy Walker, We Like You," was the title of the song, and it seemed to express the feelings of the men and women who were there to meet New York's Mayor.

The Alabamans were headed by Mayor William A. Gunter, and City Commissioners William Orum and J. H. Hardaway welcomed the Mayor to Montgomery and invited him to stay longer. The crowd applauded this and also the song, which was sung on the station platform by Jack Stone, its author, to the accompaniment of Fred Thompson, composer of the music. The words follow:

There's a man from New York town
And he has world-wide renown;
Jimmy Walker is the name
Of the man who has the fame,
But you'll find he's just one of the boys.
North or South, East or West
You're the guy we like the best,
Jimmy Walker, we like you.

You may go from pole to pole,
Meet the fellows young and old,
And you'll find that they like you.
If we had our way today
We would nominate you, too,
Al Smith first and Jimmy next
Is what we would like to do.
Get this right: There is one guy
Who has captured every eye—
Jimmy Walker, we like you.

The Mayor spoke for only a moment on the platform. He made an indirect reference to the criticism of Governor Smith by Senator Heflin by saying he objected to "unjust criticism of individuals or a calumny against New York."

"I am always against such things," he said, "and I'll fight with all my strength against it. We have one country and one Constitution, without regard to geography. Every man and every place deserve to be judged on their merits."

There was applause for this, and, smiling, the Mayor made next what was considered a reference to the bulk of Senator Heflin.

"But we shouldn't mind the source of this criticism," he said, as the crowd grinned. "The bigger they are, the harder they fall." And the crowd laughed.

Incidentally, since Mayor Walker has come South to make friends for Governor Smith, Alabamans assured him that Mr. Smith had friends in this State. Several made it a point to tell him so. Already, it was said, Governor Smith could count on four delegates at the convention, and probably there would be eight delegates next Summer.

ATLANTA WILL GREET WALKER.

Mayor Ragsdale Names Committee to Welcome Him Thursday.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 20.—Mayor Walker of New York will receive a rousing reception on his three-hour stop-over in Atlanta Thursday afternoon. Mayor I. N. Ragsdale named a committee of thirty-three prominent Atlantans today to greet the visitor.

Mayor Walker passed through Atlanta at 5 o'clock this morning, traveling in a private car en route to New Orleans to attend the Mardi Gras.

Mayor Ragsdale, in his letter of appointment, called attention to the fact that Mayor Walker had made a notable contribution to the Stone Mountain Memorial through the sale of a large number of coins in New York City.

For this reason, Mayor Ragsdale stated, it was especially appropriate that Mayor Walker should receive a cordial welcome on his stop-over here. He appointed Hollins N. Randolph, President of the Stone Mountain Memorial Association, Chairman of the Atlanta welcomers.

In addition to naming the committee, Mayor Ragsdale sent a telegram to Mayor Walker urging him to prolong his stop-over here.

"That is not long enough by any means and I earnestly request you to stay longer," said Mayor Ragsdale's message.

OUR EMBASSY ACTS ON FRENCH OIL PLAN

POINCARE MAY EASE TERMS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—The State Department, through the medium of its representatives here, has conveyed to the French Government its concern over the provisions of the projected oil monopoly, which has been approved by the Petroleum Commission of the Chamber of Deputies and is scheduled for final consideration by that body tomorrow.

Without questioning the right of France to adopt such a measure, the point has been emphasized that the operation of the monopoly, as the bill is now written, would work out to the distinct disadvantage of American oil interests by limiting their present business and depriving them of millions of dollars worth of future sales.

It was explained today that there is still reason to hope that Premier Poincaré will refuse to sanction the monopoly as amended by the Socialists ten days ago. At that time the monopoly provisions were so worded as not seriously to affect American oil concerns.

The bill now provides that all foreign oil companies doing business in France shall receive licenses to import an amount of oil annually not greater than the average brought in during the last three years. This average would be even less than the total sales today, and the measure does not take into consideration the very large outlay of capital made by American companies in anticipation of greatly increased future sales.

Leaves Much to Uncertainty.

Supplementary licenses would be sanctioned, but since it is the purpose of the bill to favor purely French corporations wherever possible, the best the Americans could expect would be a régime of anxious uncertainty, depending upon how the Government Oil Commission chose to act.

It is the hope of the American interests that M. Poincaré will intervene with changes which will permit the Americans to continue to do business on the basis of their present maximum sales until such time as France shall begin to receive the huge quantities of oil she expects from the Mosul fields and from Russia.

French Government agents admit that it will be a number of years, probably six or seven, before the Mosul fields produce large quantities of oil. Meanwhile the nation must depend upon what the French call the "Anglo-Saxon oil trust," meaning the American and British companies, which do about 80 per cent. of the total business. Present French production is only 7 per cent. of requirements, or roughly 150,000 metric tons.

If the present entirely unofficial and informal hints do not result in a satisfactory compromise, then the State Department, it is indicated, may feel called upon to resort to a more conventional form of protest, assuming of course that the monopoly bill passes the Chamber of Deputies in its present form and goes to the Senate for ratification.

Say Bill Does Not Discriminate.

PARIS, Feb. 20 (AP).—Washington dispatches to the effect that Secretary of State Kellogg has instructed Ambassador Herrick to inquire into the French plan for a commission to control petroleum imports have caused some curiosity in French Government and Parliamentary circles.

The Government measure, it is stated in Parliamentary circles, involves no discrimination among the petroleum producing countries, and consequently it is difficult to imagine what phase of the problem the United States desires to take up.

Parliament and the Government, it was added, are simply endeavoring to put to profit the lessons learned during the war that the vital thing for every country is to make itself as independent as possible in fuels, especially petroleum.

M. Chariot, who made the report on the petroleum control project, says that France probably will have to buy the greatest part of her petroleum supply for years to come and will buy from the producing countries, as heretofore, on the best terms she can get, but without discriminating in the least against any of them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Complaints of American oil companies against the alleged restrictive features of the pending French petroleum law have led the State Department to ask Ambassador Herrick for a report on the situation, but it was denied today on the authority of Secretary Kellogg that any representations were involved or that any move had been made beyond a request merely for information.

American oil companies fear the measure, if enacted into law, will curtail their operations in France by limiting their business to the volume of recent years. Whether the State Department will make any move in the situation, it was officially said, would depend upon the outline of the situation forwarded by Ambassador Herrick.

KRANTZ FREED IN KILLING.

Berlin Court Finds Student Guilty of Possessing Arms.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 20.—Berlin's "cause célèbre," the trial of the youthful student Krantz which has filled the German press for the past ten days with its salacious details, ended late this afternoon. The defendant was acquitted on a charge of manslaughter or of instigating this crime, but was sentenced to three weeks imprisonment for illegal possession of a deadly weapon. The original indictment charged murder and inciting to killing but this charge was dropped last week by the prosecutor.

The trial created excitement throughout the country because it was considered to disclose a dubious moral standard among the generation of young students. The facts established in open court prompted Nationalists and Centrists to submit motions before the Reichstag and Prussian Diet that publication of testimony in such cases should be forbidden and the public excluded from the trials. The accused man left the court a free man as the prison term imposed was considered to have been served during the time he spent in jail since his arrest.

Although he tried to leave unostentatiously, a crowd gathered in the street and gave him an ovation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Feb. 20.—Japan's first manhood suffrage election passed off quietly throughout the country today. Polling began at 7 A. M. and continued steadily and slowly all day. The rush was greatest in the afternoon, but polling booths were numerous and the arrangements allowed the voters to perform their duty methodically and quickly. In a tour of the principal Tokio polling places the most impressive feature was the atmosphere of order and tranquillity.

Numerous officials shepherded the voters, all men, through the necessary operations. First, the voters handed in the certificate sent to them by post, receiving in exchange a ballot paper on which they wrote the name of the candidate they preferred. The paper was then folded and placed by the voter in a ballot box. In Tokio stations, which doubtless mirror the rest of the country, the secrecy of the ballot was never in question.

The demeanor of the new voters was almost reverential as they bowed right and left to the officials. The votes will be counted tomorrow and the results are expected to be completed on Wednesday. Officials report that polling was heavy, with 80 per cent. of the electors voting. In Tokio a fair proportion of workmen voted, though if the polling hours had been extended past 6 P. M. they would have had had a better opportunity to record their votes.

TOKIO, Feb. 20 (AP).—A milestone in the history of Japan was raised today when universal suffrage was introduced for the first time in a general election and thousands of laborers and rickshaw pullers cast their votes in the same way as the proud descendants of the ancient Samurai.

At the last national election the right to vote was limited to taxpayers and only 3,000,000 persons were entitled to cast their ballots. Today male citizens 25 years of age who could read and write and could fulfill residence qualifications were privileged to take part in the polling, under an imperial edict. Approximately 9,000,000 voters were added to the electorate, making a total of about 12,000,000. Intense interest centred in the election and the business life of the nation has been virtually at a standstill during the last few days of the campaign. The weather was bright in Tokio and the forty polling stations in the city were crowded all day long. The northwest districts were struck by snowstorms and this slowed down the voting there.

There were 989 candidates for the 466 seats in the Diet which was dissolved last month. The Seiyukai, or Government party, had about 370 candidates, and the Minseito, or Opposition party, had about the same number. The rest of the candidates were divided between the proletarians and the independents.

FAVORS MONEY AID IN CRISES OF WAR

By WYTHE WILLIAMS.

cal areas, but insisted that the new rules and regulations should not be too specific, inasmuch as the British Government considered the League Covenant itself sufficient to prevent war "in the majority of cases." He also suggested that the committee draw up two forms of draft treaties, one covering multilateral and the other bilateral agreements.

Concerning arbitration and conciliation he cited the hundred years of peace between Britain and the United States, during which, he said, many grave incidents had arisen which might have resulted in war, but all were amicably settled by these means. Therefore, he asked that the British be regarded as experts in such matters and that other States follow their example.

Another notable point in Lord Cushendun's speech was that the present British thesis holds disarmament and security to be interdependable. Previously the British viewpoint—supported mainly by Sir Austen Chamberlain—had been opposition to the French security argument, or, namely, disarmament first.

Chairman Benes decided that for the moment the committee's work should take the form of a general debate, except for the Drafting Committee which is to draw up the texts of the new proposals, and should not divide into subcommittees.

Question of Moving League Discussed.

The League Secretariat corridors were crowded today for the first time since the settlement of the Polish-Lithuanian dispute by the December Council and buzzing with comment over the violent press discussion now going on in the Continental press on the subject of moving the League headquarters to Vienna. The general feeling is that an official hearing on the question will be accorded by the League of Nations before the final vote to spend many millions to erect a new palace on the shores of Lake Leman.

Many objections to the suggestion that the Austrian capital be chosen as the future home of the League have changed the slogan from "Move the League to Vienna" simply to "Shall the League remain where it is?" Thus Brussels has forged ahead as a candidate, and it is pointed out that Britain, while possibly opposing Austria, might be inclined to support the Belgian claims.

A most interesting suggestion—which comes from a high British source—is that, if Brussels is chosen, to declare a neutral zone through Belgium, which would be a definite barrier against future aggression from Eastern Europe. It is also suggested that the Egmont Palace in Brussels, now in disuse, would be an ideal League home. It is also pointed out that the city is in easy train distance from the chief European capitals.

Swiss methods of organization have been the subject of fresh complaints from many correspondents here who have been covering the Olympic Winter sports at St. Moritz. They allege extreme overcharging by hotels and vehicle drivers, also miserable press facilities and bad management, the officials withholding scores hours after an event has been completed.

Cushendun Stirs Latin Americans.

GENEVA, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Latin-American delegates to the Security Committee came to attention today when Great Britain, through Lord Cushendun, proposed definite regional non-aggression accords between nations of the same world areas and tonight began cabling home to ask for instructions in case a compact should be suggested for Latin America.

The opinion in Latin-American circles here is that a security regional compact in Latin America, with one or more nations guaranteeing its operation, as Great Britain and Italy guarantee the Locarno compact, is impracticable. The absolute equality of all the signatories, it is said, would be a primary requisite, as Latin-American States would neither welcome the United States nor the A B C nations as guarantors.

One idea informally heard expressed was that there could be one regional accord in Central America and another for South America.

But Lord Cushendun found little favor for his proposal of definite regional compacts from Dr. Ernst von Simson, German industrial expert. He voiced the fear that such accords would create hostile groupings of States within the League.

WON'T SCRAP BRITISH NAVY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Defending the British Government against the charge that it was responsible for the failure of the Geneva Conference, W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of Admiralty, speaking at Southport tonight, reiterated his statement that no other country could show so fine a movement toward disarmament as Britain.

"The British Government," he said, "made the best proposals placed before the Geneva Conference. It is quite true that the big navy party in America were determined, if possible, to prevent an agreement, but it is not true to say that the failure at Geneva is responsible for the increased building of the United States, whose program is only a continuation of the cruiser policy America put forward at Geneva.

"There is no need to get excited and worried over what America is doing. She is entitled to do what she likes in her own defense. The important thing is to prevent any kind of friction and refrain from spreading the idea that there is any danger of war between the two countries.

"We are in danger of being stampeded by certain enthusiasts who are anxious to rush at a great pace in the direction of disarmament. We are prepared to do more in that direction, but are not prepared to sacrifice the British Navy until we see an equivalent sacrifice made by other countries."

SOVIET DISARMAMENT PLAN.

Workers Would Be Included in an International Control Body.

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Feb. 20.—The Soviet observer at the Geneva Security Committee meeting, Boris Stein, was today instructed to transmit to the League Secretary, Sir Eric Drummond, a Soviet proposal for speedy practical disarmament, beginning with a universal 50 per cent. demobilization of armed forces, the destruction of arms and munitions, and cessation of all military and naval construction. The disarmament is to be completed in four years, leaving nothing but police, frontier guards, &c.

The most interesting point of the proposal lies in the final clause:

"Control over the fulfillment of the disarmament convention has been entrusted to a permanent international control commission, formed on the basis of equality, with participation of the legislative, administrative and working classes."

This frank offer to collaborate with the League of Nations, foreign Parliaments or what not is probably the least revolutionary statement issued from Moscow in many years, and can mean only one of two things—either the Russians are sure the offer will be refused and are trying to play politics to influence the coming elections in the most important European countries or they are genuinely making a bid for "readmittance to the world comity of nations." The latter seems nearer the truth.

That the Soviet leaders are honestly anti-war there can be no doubt—if only for the reason that their present economic difficulties and immense industrialization program make army and navy expenditure the most unwelcome feature of their budget.

At the present moment—so it seems to the best-informed foreign observers here—the Soviet Government is uncertain how to direct its policy—undecided whether to swing right or left. If the League and world opinion generally treat today's proposal with the same cynicism as they constructed Litvinoff's equally genuine offer last November, the Soviet Government is likely to feel it has small chance of friendly cooperation with the Western capitalist world.

If, on the other hand, there is a tendency to meet the Soviet half way—even should the proposal itself prove unacceptable—it will be a distinct and helpful encouragement to the more rational sections of Soviet opinion.

JAPAN MAY REVISE ARBITRATION TREATY

Viscount Saito, at Geneva, Intimates That Several Reservations Will Be Omitted.

GENEVA, Feb. 20 (AP).—Believing that possibly they are too far-reaching, Japan may revise her arbitration treaties, which exclude from arbitration disputes that affect Japanese territorial and political independence, Japanese vital interests or Japanese honor.

This announcement, made by Viscount Saito tonight at the preliminary Security Conference, created somewhat of a sensation. The delegates are wondering whether Japan will go a step further than the United States and France did when they negotiated the recent compact of arbitration and outlawry of war.

Viscount Saito declared that world conditions had changed since the old treaties were signed and the Japanese Government was giving the treaties close examination from the standpoint of whether they were too far-reaching, or at least too indefinite.

It is remarked that the arbitration treaty between Japan and the United States will soon expire and must be renewed, and it is being asked how far the United States would be disposed to go to meet any sweeping Japanese proposal calculated to make the new treaty a more effective instrument against war.

Lowry Sees Herriot on Import Restrictions—Will Meet Managers in Paris.

HE PREDICTS AGREEMENT

American Bookings for 1928 Actually Are on 9 to 1 Basis of New Decree, He Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—Colonel Edward Lowry, European representative of the Motion Picture Producers and Exhibitors Association of America, arrived in Paris today to confer with M. Herriot, Minister of Public Instruction, concerning the provisions of the new Government decree regulating the showing of foreign films in France. The decree is effective March 1, and it has been estimated, will result in American films being curtailed 25 per cent.

Colonel Edward Lowry, as spokesman of Will H. Hays's organization, will meet the managers of American film companies here tomorrow. As yet, the American companies have disclosed no special point of view about the decree, chosing rather to await its operation.

Colonel Lowry told the correspondent he did not anticipate any serious difficulty for American companies.

"Of course, a great deal depends upon how the commission administers the decree," he said. "Very broad powers have been given; but the fact remains that the movie-going public in France has been built up largely upon American films. They are popular because they are entertaining, and the exhibitors, being business men, are going to display the wares which sell best.

No Prejudice on French Films.

"I think the decree may stimulate French production somewhat, but there again the sale of French films abroad must depend, as do the American ones, upon their ability to please the largest number of persons.

"It is not true that there is any prejudice against French films in the United States. On the contrary, exhibitors are anxious to diversify their programs as much as possible. I think it is fair to say that every French film suitable for the American market has been purchased when offered.

"As to the likelihood of the decree forcing the sale of large number of French films in America, I do not believe the sale of anything can be forced. The product must fill a need; otherwise economic necessity will work against it."

Colonel Lowry said American companies had obtained visas for the most of the pictures to be shown in France this year, and that the present proportion to domestic films was actually but nine to one, the immediate quota provided by the Herriot decree.

Gains Foreseen in France.

It is still the opinion of well-informed commercial observers that the net result of the decree will be to increase the sale of French films abroad, especially in the United States. The experts think the American companies will eventually regard it as good business to purchase more of the better class of French films, rather than to encounter the many obstacles which the commission could place in their way.

While the French market produces less than $2,000,000 gross, or well under $1,000,000 net, profit to American companies, every one in the industry feels that it is potentially a big market which will yield big returns in the distant future.

Hence the view is that it will be much sounder business tactics to seek a friendly working agreement, always assuming that the French industry does not become too exacting in its demands, rather than to incur the displeasure of the Government commission in its carrying out of the new decree.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The Earl of Oxford and Asquith was buried today with simple rites in the rural churchyard of Sutton Courtney. As he had requested, there was no pomp. A memorial service, attended by dignitaries of the realm, will be held tomorrow in Westminster Abbey.

Numbers of the late Liberal leader's distinguished friends, including Sir James Barrie, were present, but the crowd mostly consisted of villagers and country neighbors of the statesman. Wreaths from all parts of England filled the little church testifying to the Earl's fame.

The Bishop of Oxford conducted the service and a choir from New College, Oxford, sang.

During the funeral the flag on Victoria Tower of the Houses of Parliament in London and those over Government offices in Whitehall fluttered at half staff, while blind were drawn at 10 Downing Street, the home of the Prime Minister.

MARY DAVIES IS DEAD; AIDED GANGRENE TEST

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Miss Mary Davies, the Welsh bacteriologist who while at the American hospital at Neuilly inoculated herself with gas gangrene germs and thus made possible a successful test of a remedy found by another doctor, has died at Cannes. Miss Davies was a daughter of Sir R. H. Davies, former Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab.

While acting as a nurse in the American hospital in 1915, Miss Davies was under Dr. Taylor, bacteriologist of the Imperial Cancer Research Committee. Dr. Taylor had been experimenting with guinea pigs on a preparation for the cure of gas gangrene, from which thousands of soldiers died in the early years of the war, but was unable to secure an uncomplicated case of the disease by means of which to test the efficacy of the remedy on human beings.

Without saying a word to any one, Miss Davis took a room near the hospital, sent for Dr. Taylor, told him that she had injected into herself some culture, such as was used on guinea pigs, in order to provide a pure case of the disease. Two hours later the symptoms of gas gangrene appeared. The doctor injected a quinine preparation with which he had been experimenting, and twenty-four hours later the patient was out of danger.

NANKING TAKES STEP TO PAY SALT LOANS

WON'T REPUDIATE DEBTS

He Also Predicts Peking's Capture by South in Three Months and Tariff Action Thereafter.

By HENRY F. MISSELWITZ.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20.—Assurance that the Nanking Nationalist Government has not repudiated and will not repudiate any of China's "just obligations" was given by T. V. Soong, the Nationalist Finance Minister, in a statement this evening announcing a proposal to restore governmental control of the salt revenues and the establishment of a new salt inspectorate throughout the Nationalist territories.

This is Mr. Soong's second proposal since his recent installation as Finance Minister looking to rehabilitation of civil control of the revenues. The first dealt with the tariff problem and Mr. Soong's desire to bring the seat of the Customs Administration, which is now in Peking, into the Nationalist area.

Incidentally, A. H. F. Edwardes, Acting Inspector General of Customs, is still in Shanghai awaiting definite word of Nanking's reactions to his tariff proposals, but Mr. Soong intimates that he is not willing to take action at present

In fact, both Mr. Soong and other Nanking Government officials intend to await military developments. In an interview today Mr. Soong declared:

Foreigners Approve Plan.

"We shall capture Peking within three months and destroy the last vestiges of mandarinism and militarism. Then we shall talk tariffs."

Mr. Soong's restoration of the salt inspectorate is meeting with approval in foreign circles, the Minister avowing that he intends to use the revenues to meet the "salt loans," which are loans secured by salt taxes.

The military took over the old salt gabelle more than a year ago, but Mr. Soong, in an effort to restore confidence abroad, intends to make an attempt at least to regain control and pay the salt loans as soon as practicable in the face of the disturbed conditions.

Mr. Soong's statement declares:

"First, the Ministry of Finance will seek to promote the creation of a modern civil service. The entire staff of the Salt Inspectorate, including the foreign personnel, therefore, will be restored.

"Second, the Salt Inspectorate will be expected to produce an efficient and effective collection and control agency.

Obligations Acknowledged.

"The Salt Inspectorate, however, will not be charged with the task of earmarking any funds for repayment of foreign loans, such repayment from the general funds of the Treasury being the specific task of the Ministry as such.

"Third, the Nationalist Government will not repudiate any of China's just obligations. Most of the obligations secured on the salt revenue are being met by payments from the customs. Wherever this is not the case, the Ministry of Finance, as an earnest of its good faith, is making arrangements to contribute toward placing the salt loans on a basis which will provide ample evidence of its intention to fulfill its obligations."

Mr. Soong's statement concludes by recalling that the Nationalist Government is facing heavy financial burdens in the task of "consolidating the sources of revenue and by the exigencies of civil warfare."

During the interview Mr. Soong declared that the Southern drive against Peking and the Northern military alliance would continue very soon. He said that Nanking was unable to attempt to consolidate its present territories and must capture Peking which, he believed, it would do this Spring.

He declared that it was evident that there were extremists within the Kuomintang, or Nationalist political party, but that the party was still controlled by moderate members.

"In our own revolutionary activities," he admitted, "we were forced to resort to unscientific and unwise measures to achieve military successes," but he added that Nanking must now seek as the first consideration a "physical basis for reconstruction."

"Trade and trade routes," he explained, "must be our first thought. Education, welfare work and human happiness must be supported by prosperity in trade."

Calls Sun's Program the Guide.

Mr. Soong indicated that he was seeking foreign friendship in order that China's trade might prosper and that he hoped to form a tariff schedule which would bring to the Government maximum revenues without stifling commerce.

"In our reconstruction," he concluded, "we shall turn to Dr. Sun Yat-sen's economic program proposing roads, railways and highways—that is, modern means for the movement of goods. In the Finance Ministry we seek to make taxation uniform and to end leakages so that the taxes will facilitate trade."

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The seal with which the British are going after world trade is shown by the British Industries Fair, which was opened at Shepherd's Bush, London. Among thousands of exhibits was one of sisal rope, with which they hope to take the Manila rope business, amounting to $10,000,000 annually, from America.

On exhibition are specimens of both kinds of rope which has been exposed twelve months to ocean tides. After one year the Manila rope is said to have lost 60 per cent. of its strength, as against 03 per cent. by the sisal rope. Experiments have shown that sisal can be grown in Kenya, Nigeria, the Gold Coast and the Malay States.

THE EXPOSITION OF MODERN FRENCH DECORATIVE ART

Will Open to the Public Wednesday, February Twenty-nine

This postponement of the opening date is necessitated by the delayed arrival—from France—of certain of the more important exhibits.

We regret to be obliged to make this change, but we are impelled thereto by our desire to present to America a truly comprehensive collection of authentic examples of Modern French Decorative Art.

Moreover, the widespread interest already evidenced by artists, educators, producers and merchants has emphasized to us the responsibility we have assumed in planning this event—and we must discharge this obligation creditably.

So—our goal being definitely before us—we feel doubly certain that the delay is justifiable.

VOTES ONLY $90,000 TO BUY BATTLEFIELD

PRICE IS CALLED TOO HIGH

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 20.—After a spirited debate the Assembly tonight unanimously passed the Hutchinson bill providing for the appropriation of $90,000 from bond money for the purchase of land in connection with the restoration of the Saratoga battlefield.

As originally recommended by Governor Smith in his executive budget, the measure carried an appropriation of $190,000, but the Republican fiscal leaders of the Legislature chopped $100,000 out of the measure, insisting that $90,000 would be sufficient to purchase the land desired. The Governor requested the $190,000 appropriation at the suggestion of the Battlefields Advisory Council, composed almost entirely of Republicans.

An intimation by Assemblyman Russell G. Dunmore, Republican majority leader, that the Legislature had been asked to appropriate two or three times what the Saratoga battlefield land was worth so that some one could make a good profit out of the State threw the House into a rather bitter wrangle for a few minutes.

The fight to have the Legislature appropriate the original amount was led by Assemblyman Burton D. Esmond, a Saratoga Republican and a member of the Battlefields Council. He declared that impartial Federal appraisers had placed the value of the land at from $90 to $100 an acre. This appraisal showed that $190,000 would be just about sufficient to purchase the land.

Dunmore Starts Wrangle.

After Assemblyman Maurice Bloch, Democratic leader of the House, had joined with Assemblyman Esmond and had declared that Governor Smith's original request should have been followed by the fiscal leaders, Majority Leader Dunmore jumped to his feet, exclaiming:

"There is no reason why we should appropriate two or three times what the Saratoga property is worth just because some one had taken a few options and perhaps has an idea of making some profit for himself.

"The cry here tonight is to spend the money, but no one seems to remember the fact that the State has got to foot the bill."

The intimation by Majority Leader Dunmore that some person was planning to profit by holding options on the Saratoga Battlefield property aroused the ire of Assemblyman Esmond, as well as Minority Leader Bloch.

Assemblyman Esmond heatedly declared there was no evidence that any person or group of persons was holding options on the battlefield land with an idea of making private profit out of the State.

"I want to say right here and now to the majority leader that there is no evidence to support what he has just said about some one or two persons holding options on this land, who are seeking to obtain from the State more money than the land is actually worth," Assemblyman Esmond exclaimed.

Without debate, and without a dissenting vote, the lower house passed a bill sponsored by the Ways and Means Committee appropriating $3,150,000 to be spent by the Long Island State Park Commission on the Southern Parkway, Jones Beach Park and Causeway, and the Conduit Boulevard. This sum is about $500,000 less than the original amount requested by Governor Smith.

CALCUTTA GIVES SIMON A MIXED RECEPTION

Some Indians Welcome His Commission With Flowers, Others Tell Him to Go Back.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CALCUTTA, India, Feb. 20.—The reception accorded Sir John Simon and his colleagues of the Statutory Commission when they arrived at Howrah Station today was in impressive contrast to the manner in which they were received when they first landed in India. European, Moslem, Marwari and Hindu liberal representatives had assembled to greet their arrival. The members of the commission were adorned with garlands of flowers and departed for Forgot House amid cheering.

Their reception en route was more mixed. Outside the station, processions paraded the streets with banners inscribed "Welcome to the Simon Commission," but on the other side of the bridge was a black banner with the words "Simon, Go Back."

In an interview Sir John Simon said that he regarded it as a misfortune that the legislative assembly at Delhi should have rejected by a narrow majority the idea of adding an Indian wing to the commission, but that he did not think that a majority of six could decide this matter for all time.

"We have plenty of patience, complete good temper, real sympathy and understanding," he said, "to do our best and be helpful. The commission has its own plans and will carry these out, and I hope the work that we are trying so hard to do will be for the real advantage of India."

In opening the budget session of the Bombay Legislative Council, Governor Sir Leslie Wilson said that he could have disallowed some resolutions about the Simon commission for which notice had been given for discussion in the council, but that he did not propose to do so because he welcomed the fullest discussion of matters of such importance.

If he admitted that India and its aspirations were misunderstood by British politicians, he asked himself how much more they would be misunderstood if the representatives of all three political parties in Britain were handicapped by a refusal by responsible Indian politicians to cooperate with them.

DOG SAVES SEVEN FROM GAS

Protesting Yaps Brings Patrolman in Time to Revive Family.

Zip, a brown fox terrier of uncertain lineage, saved seven persons from gas at 680 North Eighth Street, Brooklyn, yesterday morning, but left as soon as the door was opened. He has not been seen since he disappeared down the steps, tail between his legs, and still yapping a protest at the unpleasant odor of the gas.

It was his barking and whining which saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kerestider, their three children and two boarders. A cock on the stove became opened in some manner and flooded the apartment with gas during the night. Zip's howling and barking at 8 A. M. brought a patrolman, who found the family unconscious but alive. All were revived with a pulmotor.

SENATE VOTES BILL ON ALIEN PROPERTY

It Passes Without Roll-Call Measure for Payment of War Claims.

NOW GOES TO CONFERENCE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20. — The Alien Property bill, providing for the return of enemy alien property seized during the World War, for the payment of compensation for German ships, radio stations and patents, and for the financing of the payment of awards to American citizens, was passed by the Senate this afternoon without a roll call.

The House has adopted a bill based on similar proposals, and it is believed that differences which exist can quickly be adjusted in conference. As a result, the chances appear to favor final adoption of the legislation during the present session. The principal change in the Senate bill was to include provision for compensation to Austrian and Hungarian, as well as German, nationals.

Debate on the Senate bill related chiefly to the question of awards by the Mixed Claims Commission to marine insurance companies and the compensation of former owners of seized German ships.

Senator Howell, Republican, of Nebraska, opposed the payment of awards amounting to $32,000,000 to American marine insurance companies, but an amendment to defer such payments until after other groups have been taken care of, including awards to the United States Government, which under the terms of the bill come at the bottom of the list, was defeated, 51 to 21.

Sees Burden on Taxpayers.

Senator Howell contended that the marine insurance companies, as a whole, broke even during the war and that many of them made enormous profits and that the payment of awards of the Mixed Claims Commission would merely increase those profits. Such payments would be made at the expense of American taxpayers, he said, inasmuch as the Government must wait more than a dozen years before it received any of the $62,000,000 due it on awards by the Mixed Claims Commission.

Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, defended immediate payment of awards to the insurance companies, asserting that they did not make profits as a class during the war and that the question of profits should not enter into the decision.

The Senate defeated, 54 to 21, an amendment by Senator Fletcher, Democrat, of Florida, reducing the maximum allowed for the payment of compensation for ships, patents and radio stations from $100,000,000 to $75,000,000. Senator Fletcher asserted that the bill would permit excessive compensation for the German ships.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP).—In action today on the Alien Property bill, Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, was successful in putting through his previously defeated amendment under which interest at 5 per cent. would be paid on $25,000,000 in accumulated interest on German property now held by the Alien Property Custodian and which would be used under the Senate plan as a part of the fund for liquidation of American private claims.

ELEVATED STATION IN PERIL

Sixth and Ninth Av. Traffic North of 155th Street Is Suspended.

Traffic on the Sixth and Ninth Avenue elevated lines north of 155th Street was suspended at 6 o'clock last evening on orders of Battalion Chief John Carlock of the Fire Department when the north wall of the building at Jerome and Anderson Avenues, the Bronx, which burned on Sunday night, appeared in danger of falling.

Earlier in the afternoon firemen of Engine Company 68 and Hook and Ladder Company 49 pulled down one section of the wall that seemed in danger of falling on the elevated station at the intersection of the two avenues.

Late last night, more than twenty-four hours after the fire started, firemen were still pouring water on the embers. All eight floors of the building fell, weakening the walls to such an extent that the surrounding block was roped off and all traffic diverted.

BATHING SUIT FROLIC IN SNOW JAILS HIM

GOOD FOR HEALTH, HE SAYS

He Has Strolled Fifth Avenue in Same Raiment, He Tells Court, and His Ills Are Vanishing.

Anthony Scalafani, 55 years old, a real estate operator of 55 West Fifty-second Street, did not impress Patrolman Jenkins of the Oak Street Station when, clad only in a bathing suit and a pair of tennis shoes, he caused a fur-coated crowd to collect at the statue of Civic Virtue in City Hall Park yesterday afternoon. Jenkins admitted he has heard much about the "snowbirds" who gambol on the beaches these Winter mornings, but he considered that Scalafani had committed a disorderly act as he rolled about in the snow like a polar bear.

"Put on your clothes!" commanded the patrolman, as he announced that Scalafani was under arrest and must accompany him to the Tombs Court.

"These are all the clothes I wear," replied Scalafani, with a wave of the hand toward the gray-colored bathing suit and the tennis shoes.

Without further ado the patrolman led his prisoner before Magistrate John V. Flood, where Scalafani declared that it was not his intention to commit a disorderly act, and added he could not see any reason why a person could not wear a bathing suit in the Winter.

"I don't want any crowds to collect about me, your Honor," continued the prisoner. "In fact, I'd like to go about the city minding my own business and, incidentally, demonstrating that people are making a mistake in wearing clothes in the Winter or Summer. About six weeks ago I was sick. I began to lose my sight. Since I have been going about without heavy clothes for the last four weeks my eyesight has improved and I'm on the way to perfect health.

"I've walked up and down Broadway and Fifth Avenue without the police bothering me. Only yesterday I walked from my home to Central Park and made several laps about the old reservoir while policemen looked on. I plead not guilty to this charge and I'd like to be permitted to go out and get a lawyer to defend me."

When the Magistrate said that he would hold a hearing in the case next Thursday and set bail at $500, Scalafani replied:

"All right, Judge. I'll go right out and arrange with friends to furnish the bail."

"No, you'll go to the Tombs while your friends are arranging for bail," replied the Magistrate.

TWO MEN ARE KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Contractor Is Hit by Truck in the Bronx—Two Drivers Are Arrested.

Richard Pfeifer, 44 years old, a welding contractor, residing at 574 East 134th Street, the Bronx, died yesterday morning in an ambulance on the way to Lincoln Hospital after he had been hit by a truck driven by Walter H. Wiegert of 1,933 Hobart Avenue, the Bronx, at Southern Boulevard and St. Ann's Avenue, the Bronx. Wiegert said that he did not know he had struck any one until he heard a shout from a pedestrian. He was held pending an investigation by the District Attorney.

Harrison D. Vreeland, 40 years old, of 1,647 West Eleventh Street, Brooklyn, was killed last night by a truck owned by the Nazareth Cement Company of 441 East Forty-second Street at St. John's Place and Washington Avenue, Brooklyn. Jere Jordan of 884 East Thirty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, driver of the truck, was arrested.

Mrs. Mabel Duryee, 62 years old, wife of the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Duryee of 139 East Thirty-sixth Street, was slightly hurt by an automobile yesterday afternoon at Thirty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue. She was treated by an ambulance doctor for cuts on her head and went home. Michael Cohen of 1,214 Avenue T, Brooklyn, driver of the automobile, was not held.

Patrolman Samuel J. Oldham of 108 St. Nicholas Avenue, Brooklyn, was knocked down by an automobile truck late yesterday as he was assisting an aged woman across the street at Broadway and Union Avenue, Brooklyn. The patrolman absolved Herbert Meyers of 170 West Eighty-first Street, Manhattan, a driver for the Interborough News Company.

Three eight-year-old boys were injured, two of them seriously, yesterday afternoon by a taxicab at Morris Park and Radcliff Avenues, the Bronx. Walter Fox of 1,568 Pierce Avenue, suffered a fractured skull and possible internal injuries, and Jacob Corsin of 1,578 Yates Avenue, suffered concussion of the brain and a fractured right thigh. Both were taken to Fordham Hospital. John Fox, not related to Walter, living at 1,588 Paulding Avenue, received lacerations and bruises. Max Kirschner, 28 years old, of 2,000 Mapes Avenue, the chauffeur, was taken to the Westchester Station.

'DAWN' IS BARRED BY BRITISH CENSORS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The British Board of Film Censors tonight decided against exhibition of the film "Dawn," based on the life and death of Edith Cavell.

"In our opinion," says a statement issued by T. P. O'Connor, Chairman of the board, "the theme of this film renders its exhibition in this country inexpedient in the present circumstances."

This decision does not bar the film from all presentation. The Board of Censors has no jurisdiction over other than film theatres owned by members of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association. It could be shown by non-members of this body or in ordinary theatres, although it would still be open to municipal bodies, like the London County Council, to exert pressure against this method of presentation.

It is revealed tonight that another film dealing with the life of Nurse Cavell entitled "Nurse and Martyr," made in 1919 from a story by Edgar Wallace and passed by the censor, will be reissued.

GUN RAMPAGE COSTS POLICEMAN HIS JOB

J. J. Brennan, Who Opened Fire on Arc Lamps in Queens, Is Dropped by Warren.

SMASHED AUTO LIGHTS, TOO

List of Charges Reveals He Started Career of Destruction While on Night Duty in Newtown.

John J. Brennan of the Newtown Station no longer is a member of the police force. Last Saturday Commissioner Warren decided that the Police Department and the people of Newtown, which is in a quiet part of Queens, inclusive of Calvary Cemetery, had seen quite enough of Brennan and dismissed him.

The reason for Brennan's dismissal was set forth yesterday by the Commissioner in the department bulletin, which was sent to all precincts. Mr. Warren explained in a special order that Brennan had been found guilty of ten charges lodged against him for his post-holiday actions on Jan. 3 and 5 and, which officially were held to comprise "conduct unbecoming an officer, neglect of duty, acts prejudicial to law, order and decency of the department and violations of regulations."

Although the details of Brennan's offenses are not fully set forth in the special order, it was said that Brennan, while on night post near a park, suddenly took a dislike to the lights on three automobiles, several electric arc lights and the windows of eleven stores. He then, it was said, fired at the arc lights, putting out one, smashed the automobile lights and sauntered along the street for a spell, smashing in the store windows.

The charges further explained that when a superior officer examined Brennan's pistol on his return from his tour of duty it was found to contain six empty cartridges. When his summons book was examined also it was found that, although he had issued a summons to somebody during the night, he had failed to deliver the stub of the summons to the desk lieutenant.

More than that, according to the Commissioner's findings, the patrolman failed to make proper entries on the stubs of other summonses which remained in the book.

ROWLAND PUTS OFF SAILING

Prosecutor Hears England Might Not Extradite Prisoner.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 20.—District Attorney Arthur Rowland of Westchester County has tentatively postponed his proposed trip to England to extradite John Wenzel of Yonkers, he announced today, following a cablegram from British officials that Wenzel's extradition may not be possible under British law.

Wenzel is charged with the theft of $6,600 in bonds from his wife, Mrs. Marie Wenzel, who is suing for separation.

Mr. Rowland's proposal to sail on Friday was followed by criticism in three Westchester County papers operated by Terrence Brady of Mount Vernon. In the articles Mr. Rowland was referred to as the "sea-going District Attorney."

Following the publication of the articles the office The Mount Vernon Star was raided on orders from the District Attorney, who later said the raid had been conducted because the newspaper's books were needed to investigate the failure of Mr. Brady to file incorporation papers for the publication.

GERMAN NATIONALISTS LOSE

Democrats and People's Party Show Increase in Hamburg.

HAMBURG, Feb. 20 (AP).—Tabulation today of the vote in the election of the Free City of Hamburg's Parliament yesterday showed gains for both the Democrats and the People's Party.

The Democrats increased the number of their seats from 16 to 21 and the People's Party from 18 to 20. The seats of the German Nationalists decreased from 25 to 22 and the Socialists from 68 to 60. The Communist and Fascist votes increased, but the number of seats held by them remained the same. The new Government is likely to consist of Socialists, Democrats and members of the People's Party.

OPENS WAY TO RECOVER AUTOS IN LIQUOR CASES

Supreme Court Holds Illegal Use of Car Bars Seizure Under Revenue Law.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP).—Owners of automobiles, whether they are individuals or financing companies, are to have an opportunity, under a decision of the Supreme Court, to recover their cars when used without permission of the owners in the unlawful transportation of intoxicating liquor.

The decision was a blow to the Federal prohibition enforcement practice of attempting to confiscate such machines, under a section of the Internal Revenue laws which do not grant the owners an opportunity for recovery.

In a case from Seattle the Court held today that, when possession was a part of the illegal transportation, the Government could only seize the automobile under the Prohibition Enforcement act, which gives the owner a chance to recover the car upon showing that its illegal use had not been authorized.

The case was regarded, not only of great importance to owners whose machines might be unlawfully used by friends in the transportation of liquor, but to the financing companies which retain title to approximately three-fourths of the 4,000,000 automobiles sold annually on deferred payments, involving financing operations estimated at $2,000,000,000.

The decision was in such a case, involving a car whose owner had given notes for a part of the purchase price. The companies insisted that confiscation under the Internal Revenue law, where the companies would have no opportunity to recover, was prohibited when the driver of the car was prosecuted for illegal possession.

SEE MANY DANGERS TO CHILD WELFARE

SCORE COMPANION UNIONS

Coolidge Letter Praises Efforts—Boy Scout Receives Medal for Rescue of Child.

Social workers, Governors of States and experts in various lines of endeavor met yesterday at the Commodore under the auspices of the Child Welfare Committee of America to confer on the best means offered by modern sociological knowledge for the rearing of orphans and other dependent children. A score of speakers agreed that the best place for a child is the "old-fashioned" home.

Evil influences are undermining the home, some speakers declared, and went on to denounce companionate marriage and what they saw as a general tendency toward the replacement of liberty by license.

"The education, economic independence and new freedom of woman have introduced a new factor into our economic and social life," said Governor Theodore Christianson of Minnesota. "The home is under new strains and stresses. It is being tested in a crucible of fire.

Sees Marriage Bond Weakened.

"The marriage tie is not regarded as the binding, sacred thing it once was. The companionate marriage is the latest, the most fantastic and I believe the most dangerous expression of the revolt against the home."

Governor Christianson declared that while scientifically conducted institutions for the care of dependent children were of value to society, every child had a right to a good home and that nothing could replace it. Marriage, he held, failed in its obligations when it did not provide one.

"Marriage is the one covenant in human life which contains the greatest possibilities and is fraught with the most searching and wide-reaching consequences," he said, "and yet marriage and parenthood constitute the only profession in this country which can be entered into without even the most elementary knowledge of what it involves."

Divorce was too common in some States, he asserted.

"But the great problem of the home is not divorce, but marriage," he continued.

Sees Hankering After License.

Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of The Temple, Cleveland, Ohio, condemned companionate marriage as subversive to the home and unfair to children.

"The present talk of companionate marriage," he declared, "is but a hankering after license and greater self-indulgence."

Coolidge Praises Efforts.

The White House,
Washington, Feb. 18, 1928.

I am very glad to have this opportunity of extending to the National Conference on Child Welfare my greetings and good wishes.

It is universally recognized that the welfare of destitute children, and those who have been deprived of the advantage of home training in its best sense, is of primary importance to the country. Many organizations are working to this end along different lines, but it is only through coordinated effort and a helpful interchange of views that the most effective results can be obtained. Your conference furnishes this agency, and if its deliberations shall result in unified action in various States upon the primary features of welfare work its existence will be amply justified and its work of the highest values.

Very truly yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Kerrigan Welcomes Delegates.

A group of 100 delegates to the conference were received at City Hall by Charles F. Kerrigan, who read a greeting from Mayor Walker, now traveling in the South.

A feature of the afternoon session was the presentation of a medal to Jack H. Campbell, 12 years old, Boy Scout of Middleport, N. Y., who saved Mark Hammond, 6, from drowning last year by jumping in and bringing him to shore.

The speakers at yesterday's session included William H. Gratwick, President of the New York State Board of Charities; Governor John E. Weeks of Vermont, former Governor Moore of Idaho, Homer Folks, Secretary of the State Charities Aid Association; W. W. Husband, Assistant Secretary of Labor; State Senator Benjamin Antin, Dr. John H. Finley and Sophie Irene Loeb, President of the committee.

Speaking at a dinner of the committee last night at the Commodore, Representative F. H. LaGuardia declared that the Supreme Court decision in 1924 that the Child Labor Amendment was unconstitutional was "a blot on the history of the nation." He deplored the expenditure of millions on "future and past wars," and urged that more be spent for training of children.

Asks Funds for Hobart College.

President Murray Bartlett of Hobart College addressed the New York Alumni Association of that institution at its forty-fifth annual dinner at the Hotel McAlpin last night. He appealed for funds to install a tutoring system, designed to meet and solve each student's personal problems. Dr. Ransom S. Hooker succeeds Louis A. Wasey as Alumni President. The other officers elected were the Rev. Dr. C. B. Ackley, Vice President; T. G. Herendeen, Treasurer; Irving A. McGrew, General Secretary, and D. H. MacNeil, Secretary of the New York Association.

City College Wins Debate.

The City College debating team, upholding the negative, defeated the Wagner College team, in a debate, "Resolved: That Radio Should Be a Public Monopoly," at Wagner College, Grymes Hill, Concord, S. I., last night. Irving Lubroth captained the New York debaters, Frederick Ericksen their opponents. The verdict of two to one in favor of City College was handed down by three judges, J. A. Wortzel, Charles Otten and J. C. Bernard.

OPERA WON'T HALT PLANS FOR NEW SITE

Directors Considering Other Locations, but Aim to Proceed With Care.

LIKELY TO WAIT TILL MAY

Plans for a new home for the Metropolitan Opera Company will not be halted by Otto H. Kahn's announcement on Sunday of his decision to sell the plot he assembled in West Fifty-seventh Street between Eighth and Ninth Avenues as a site for the new opera house. Mr. Kahn, as Chairman of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has won practically unanimous support for the idea that the Metropolitan Opera Company must have a new home even though there have been divergent opinions as to the proposed West Fifty-seventh Street site, according to Frank N. Dodd, Secretary of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company, the holding corporation.

No action on any alternative site now under consideration can be taken until several of the directors of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company, including Robert Fulton Cutting, Chairman, have returned from Southern Winter resorts. Mr. Cutting is not expected back for two or three weeks.

It is possible that the directors of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company may take no definite action regarding a site for the projected new opera house until their annual meeting in May.

Shun Commercial Contact.

In opera circles it was explained that the stockholders of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company would develop their plans with the utmost care. While they have been in entire accord with Mr. Kahn's views as to the urgent need for a new and more comfortable home for the opera, some have felt, it was explained, that Mr. Kahn's plans, which included combining apartments with the new opera house, brought the opera into uncomfortably close association with commercialism.

De Lancey Kountz, one of the committee appointed by the stockholders to look for a new site, said:

"Both the directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company and the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company are working together to come to some sort of understanding. These things are more or less long-drawn-out. They always take time. Mr. Cutting is down South and nothing will be done until after he gets back."

Mr. Kountz said that the box holders were in accord with Mr. Kahn as regards the need for a new opera house. It was only on a question of site that there was any difference of opinion. The committee is still considering other sites, but is not yet ready to indicate the properties in which it is interested, because any premature announcement would only serve to boost the prices asked for these plots.

Won't Scrap Architect's Plan.

Although Mr. Kahn has offered the West Fifty-seventh Street site for sale, it does not necessarily mean that the plans begun by Benjamin Wistar Morris, architect of the new Metropolitan Opera House, will be scrapped. The belief was expressed in opera circles that Mr. Morris's plans, as far as developed, could be made available for any site likely to be selected.

Mr. Kahn's announcement of the abandonment of the West Fifty-seventh Street site was a signal for the Lower Manhattan Industrial Association, Inc., 74 Varick Street, to renew its movement to induce the Metropolitan Opera Company to establish its new home in Greenwich Village.

Indian Chief to Plead With Coolidge.

HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 20 (AP).—Sun-Kee-Mikko, chief of the Alabama Indians, was on his way to Washington today to see President Coolidge and to plead for Federal aid for his poverty-stricken tribe, which has lived on a small tract in East Texas since Texas became free from Mexico. He was accompanied by McConnico Battise, an Indian aide, and C. F. Fain Jr. of Livingston, Texas, the tribe's trusted white adviser. The trip was financed by contributions from Texans after Mr. Fain had issued a plea for funds.

DR. HARRIS PRAISES PNEUMONIA SERUM

Says New Treatment Will Save 10 Per Cent. of Patients Doomed Under Old Methods.

AMOUNT IS NOW LIMITED

Free Anti-Body Solution Will Be Given Out Only After Conference With Laboratory Heads.

The recently developed pneumonia anti-body solution, of which the city is buying a supply, will save 10 per cent. of those who would die of lobar pneumonia under the traditional methods of treatment, Health Commissioner Harris said yesterday. The importance of the new process cannot be overestimated, according to Dr. Harris.

The new serum is the result of years of research, the funds for which were donated by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and Lucius N. Littauer. Four years ago a serum to combat pneumonia was prepared at the Department of Health Research Laboratory, which was considered promising. A refinement of this serum was effected by Dr. Floyd Felton of Harvard University. The new serum is a further refinement, prepared by Dr. Edwin J. Banzhaf, biological chemist of the Health Department, working with Dr. Felton and Dr. Harry Sobotka.

Dr. Harris emphasized that this serum was not a cure-all and could be used only in certain types of lobar pneumonia. It takes three weeks to refine the serum, so a supply to meet all needs is not immediately available. Great discretion and selection of the right kind of cases will have to be exercised, Dr. Harris said. Physicians have been advised to confer with one of the heads of the three city laboratories, Dr. William H. Park, Dr. Charles Krumwiede or Dr. Anna Williams about the manner of administering the serum.

"The earlier it is given," said Dr. Harris, "the more likely it is to bring results. There will be either an earlier crisis, or the severity of the disease will be very greatly abated in half the cases. Although the cost to the city will be about $10 to treat each case, the serum will be given free."

Case Alumni Elect Officers.

New York alumni of the Case School of Applied Science of Cleveland, Ohio, met last night at their annual dinner at the Fraternities Club in celebration of founder's day. Eugene R. Gardner was elected President, W. M. Van Deusen Vice President and J. H. Ramage Secretary. Professor Frank H. Neff and Professor Herbert M. Boylston, members of the Faculty of the school, and Wesley P. Sykes of the Alumni Association spoke. The dinner was one of twenty-six meetings held simultaneously throughout the country by alumni.

AMERICAN ILLUSTRATION
FEBRUARY 21ST TO MARCH 1ST

"Back almost as many thousands of years as mankind goes—we discover proof of the desire for that particular form of art known as illustration. Naturally, too—for it was perhaps the earliest and simplest method of visible communication. And we find it evidenced on the walls of caves, on wood, metal, and on the hides of animals.

Down through the ages this picturing of people, of things and of events has increased in quantity, quality and in the number of its media until—now—it is one of the most important functions of the life of today.

Publicity, more than any other activity of the present, has utilized, and been bettered by, improved illustration, and—to the men and women who devote their lives to this art—modern business owes a great debt."

There was a shot in a ground floor apartment at 541 Union Avenue, the Bronx, shortly after 9 o'clock last night, and a moment later a tenant entered the building just in time to see two men, one clinging to the coattail of the other, running from the door of the apartment. As he watched, the second man, bleeding from a bullet wound in his right side, let go his hold and sank to the floor in the hallway. The other man ran down the hallway and out of the building.

A few minutes later, while the tenant was telephoning the police, other occupants of the building, attracted from their apartments by the shot and accompanying cries of "help," "murder," saw an expensively dressed man and a woman slip out of the door of the apartment, which is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Berman, and run into the street.

When policemen arrived a little later the door of the elaborately furnished three-room apartment was ajar and the apartment was empty save for a little white dog which cowered in the corner. An electric piano was still clamorously playing "Blue Heaven."

In the apartment, however, were found drills, hats with the names and labels carefully removed, and hundreds of letters, telegrams and cablegrams, which led District Attorney McGeehan, who was summoned to the scene, to the conviction that the headquarters of a gang of international thieves had been uncovered.

Man Dead in Hall.

The man in the hall was dead when the police arrived. In his right hand was found $102, mostly in one dollar bills, with a bullet hole through them. Evidently this was the same bullet which had entered his right side and punctured his lung, as tenants heard only one shot. He was soon identified from police records as William Doll, 30 years old.

When District Attorney McGeehan arrived he immediately began a check-up of the apartment. In addition to the drills, hats and letters he found half a dozen pairs of cheap white cotton gloves such as safe crackers use. Cablegrams from Russia and Paris revealed, Mr. McGeehan said, that the occupants had been involved in diamond smuggling as well as safe breaking. Many of the letters, he said, were either from known criminals or referred to criminal exploits or prison life.

Couple Known to Police.

From the letters and cablegrams Mr. McGeehan identified the tenants of the apartment as "Ike" Berman and his wife Anna, also known as Bess. Both, he said, were known to the police. Among the possessions of Berman, who also went under the name of Berhan, was found a bankbook showing a deposit in a bank in Mumol, Ind., the town in which Gerald Chapman was arrested.

Acting upon information obtained from the letters and messages Mr. McGeehan ordered an alarm broadcast for Berman and his wife and dispatched detectives to several addresses about the city. The identity of the first man who ran from the apartment remains a mystery.

AMERICAN PAINTINGS ON EXHIBITION HERE

Artists From Colonial Times to the Moderns Represented in Public Showing.

The second annual exhibition of the Associated Dealers in American Paintings, Inc., was opened last night with a dinner at the Anderson Galleries. From today until March 10 the exhibition will be open daily to the public.

William Henry Fox, Director of the Brooklyn Museum, and William M. Hekking, Director of the Albright Art Gallery, Buffalo, speakers at the dinner, said they were much impressed by the "very representative exhibition of American artists."

The 125 oil paintings in the show include examples of the work of some of this country's most famous artists, from Colonial times to the moderns. In addition to about eighty-five water colors and eighty-three etchings, there are thirty-two pieces of sculpture.

Sargent is represented by his "Portrait of Mrs. Shaw Speare" and "Shoeing Cavalry Horses," and by a water color called "Girgenti." Conspicuous also are the "Master Roland Dana Chase" and "Mrs. Chase and Cosy" of William M. Chase.

TO RUSH 'PANTS GANG' CASE

Dodd Orders Evidence in Police Murder to Grand Jury.

Satisfied that the four youths now under arrest were the principal members of the "Pants Gang," which preyed on Brooklyn druggists for several months, and that he has a complete case against them for the killing of Patrolman William E. Kelly on Jan. 31, District Attorney Dodd yesterday instructed his assistant, Joseph V. Gallagher, to present the case to the Grand Jury.

"I expect quick action by the Grand Jury," said Mr. Dodd, "and I hope to be able to put these men on trial within ten days."

The men under arrest are Isadore Helfont, 19 years old, known also as "Fatty," of 1,934 Bergen Street, Brooklyn; Harry Dreitzer, 20, of 48 Rutgers Street, Brooklyn; Samuel Krassner, 22, of 113 Suffolk Street, Brooklyn, and Edward Fisher, 20, known also as "Chick Baltimore," of 214 Broome Street, Manhattan.

HOLD UP THEATRE, LOBBY CROWDED

TRIO TRICKS THE DOORMAN

They Display Badges and He Escorts Them Into Bronx Movie, Where They Whip Out Pistols.

Three robbers escaped with $2,200 from the safe of the Luxor Theatre, a moving picture house at 208 East 170th Street, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon, after they had been led to the theatre office by a credulous doorman to whom they said they were revenue men performing their duty.

Shortly before the theatre was opened at 1 o'clock, Miss Catherine Alexander, 25 years old, the cashier, who lives at 121 Park Place, the Bronx, left her window and went to the office on the second floor to get change for ticket sales. She was in the office with John P. Smith, 1,411 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, manager of the theatre, when the three criminals came up the stairs, escorted by Philip Frank, doorman, 621 West 172d Street, the Bronx.

Before Frank could speak, two of the men whipped out pistols and a third produced a ball of stout twine with which he trussed up Frank and the cashier. She complained that the bonds were too tight, whereat one of the trio said:

"Shut up! You've got too much gab!"

She quieted down and the work continued. While one thief stood guard at the door, the others forced Smith to open the safe and hand them $2,200 out of the strongbox. Then they tied him hand and foot and with admonitions to all three not to shout a warning, left the office.

Meanwhile a crowd of theatre patrons, irritated and wondering why no one was selling or taking tickets, had gathered in the lobby. Several had strolled inside and taken seats. The thieves shouldered their way through the throng, hurried to an automobile parked near by, and drove away.

After Frank had got over his surprise, he said that the three men had approached him in the lobby, informed him they were revenue officers, and flashed brass badges. They told him they were looking for a negro employed as a porter at the theatre, and wanted to see the manager, he said.

The theatre is a few steps around the corner from the Grand Concourse, one of the busiest thoroughfares in the Bronx. People were passing to and fro in front of the theatre at the time of the hold-up. Inspectors John Duane and Joseph Thompson investigated the case.

TALKING DOG ATTRACTS INTEREST AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 20.—Princess Jacqueline, A. K. C. 521,509, is nearly three years old and she talks. She is just a dog, but with aristocratic breeds to the right of her, thoroughbreds to the left of her and pampered pets in front of her, she is the principal attraction at the Eastern Dog Show here.

Dogs may come and dogs may go, but Princess Jacqueline, the talking dog owned by Mrs. Mabel A. Robinson of Bangor, Me., is in the "limelight" now. For whoever heard of a dog saying "Hello" when greeted? Princess does.

Who ever heard of a dog able to say "Out" when asked where it wants to go? Princess does. And if you ask Mrs. Robinson she will get Princess to spell out vocally "ball" and "Bangor."

"What did you use to ride up and down on when we had an apartment in Bangor?" asked Mrs. Robinson.

After this question is asked several times Princess, in a voice resembling that of a parrot, answers "elevator." The words which Princess speaks are readily understood, although they are rather high pitched.

Princess frequently demonstrates her feminine tendencies by saying "I will" and "I won't," according to her mood.

Frank Dole of New York, noted dog authority, saw the talking dog today and came away singing its praises.

"I have been a doubting Thomas on this sort of thing," he decalred. "But this dog is the most remarkable of its kind I ever saw."

MOBILIZING STATE AGENCIES.

Industrial Commissioner and Hudson Guild Urge Aid for Jobless.

In line with Governor Smith's plans to rush public improvements to relieve an unemployment situation reported to be more serious than at any time since 1921, State Industrial Commissioner Hamilton yesterday began mobilising the full machinery of public employment agencies to find work for the jobless. At the same time Superintendent John L. Elliott of the Hudson Guild announced that the unemployment problem had appeared in the Chelsea district, and S. W. Straus & Co. made public the results of a survey as the basis for a prediction that the situation would show improvement within the next sixty days.

In his letter to the superintendents of the State employment bureaus in nine different cities Commissioner Hamilton says:

"Following the Governor's recommendation, I am writing you to urge that you immediately get in touch with the local authorities in your city and also with the county supervisors and local county officials in order that the State employment bureaus may do everything they can to make the contact between the unemployed and any building or contracting work that may be going on.

"I also hope that you may be able, through the local press, to bring to the attention of employers of labor as well as the unemployed that the State employment bureaus are equipped to help employers seeking workers and likewise to help workers seeking jobs."

449 Lenox Avenue, New York.
310 Jay Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.
404 S. Clinton Street, Syracuse.
27 Court Street, Binghamton.
38 Scio Street, Rochester.
257 Washington Street, Buffalo.
410 E. Market Street, Elmira.
199 Main Street, Oneonta.

Mr. Hamilton's Statement.

In a statement advising employers to get in touch with the public employment agencies when they need workers Mr. Hamilton said:

"I urge that all employers make known their wants to these established offices for all kinds of labor, both skilled and unskilled, and that community expenditure, both of time and of effort, be directed to the support of these offices and not be diverted into temporary and doubtful expedients.

"In New York City the Welfare Council has a committee actively at work on the possibilities of arranging a clearance bureau for handling any surplus of labor calls which come to any of their member organizations operating employment bureaus. More than fifty such organizations now conduct employment bureaus, some with several branches. The Employment Centre for Handicapped Persons, organized under the auspices of the Welfare Council, now serves as such a clearing house for all applicants suffering from disabilities which would render their placement by an unspecialised bureau difficult.

"Such efforts are highly commendable, and I urge that in every locality the voluntary agencies cooperate with each other and with the employment bureaus operated by the State Department of Labor so as to prevent overlapping of functions and duplication of effort."

Commissioner Hamilton was in conference in the morning with the Industrial Council, and later it was announced that the Industrial Council "strongly favored speeding up of public improvements so as to relieve the present situation as much as possible."

Hudson Guild Active.

Because the unemployment situation in the Chelsea district has grown more serious, according to Dr. Elliott, the Hudson Guild has appointed a special committee, headed by Alexander M. Bing, President of the Board of Trustees, to make an immediate survey of the situation. The special committee will hold its first meeting this afternoon at the Hudson Guild, 436 West Twenty-seventh Street.

The Hudson Guild also has called a special conference of the Council of Chelsea Agencies, to be held at 12:45 o'clock on Tuesday, Feb. 28, to hear reports from representatives of the thirty social agencies, organizations, schools, churches and the welfare departments of commercial and industrial firms composing the council.

Dr. Elliott in a formal statement said:

"More recently we have been discovering a considerable degree of unemployment in the skilled worker class, particularly in the building trades. Men affiliated with the Hudson Guild, such as tile workers, electric workers and plumbers, who have been enjoying steady employment for the last two or three years, have recently been working only part time. Also our visiting nurse department reports the discovery of the effects of unemployment in the poorer homes of the district. Children in many of these homes are showing signs of undernourishment, and the same observations have been made in our clinics, where the recovery of sick children is being retarded by lack of adequate food."

The statement of S. W. Straus & Co. says the unemployment situation in New York City and throughout the country "stands a good chance of improvement within the next sixty days as a result of increased building activities." The statement says that in the first half of January in Greater New York public plans aggregating $50,000,000, a gain of $8,000,000 over the same period for 1927, were filed.

DRIVERS' ROW FAILS TO HALT FUNERALS

UNION INSISTS ON BAN

But It Promises Not to Interfere With Procession of Bodies to the Cemeteries.

The campaign which members of the Funeral Chauffeurs' Union began yesterday against non-union drivers of hearses and funeral cars caused little inconvenience to mourners. It had been announced by the union that its members would abandon any funeral procession which contained non-union drivers. Few conflicts between the rival groups arose, however.

Eugene K. Cohan, Secretary-Treasurer of the union, declared there were 1,600 union men and fewer than a hundred non-union drivers. He said his organization's ban on non-union drivers would not halt funeral processions.

"The body will go to the cemetery in every case," he said. "Either the union drivers will bring it there, or the non-union drivers. Our men, however, have gone on record as being opposed to working with non-union drivers. There may be a few delays at funerals, but as soon as the undertaker sends the non-union drivers away, our men will work."

There were only two cases reported yesterday of non-union drivers attempting to drive cars in a funeral for which some union cars had been hired. Two non-union drivers almost disrupted a funeral at St. Thomas's Church, Fifty-third Street and Fifth Avenue, yesterday afternoon. Union drivers discovered the presence of the two unorganized men while funeral services were proceeding in the church. The union men complained and the non-union drivers were sent away.

At another funedal two non-union men were allowed to remain in the procession until it reached the church. They were dismissed after the union drivers had threatened to strike.

Thomas Gannon of 522 West 126th Street said he was organizing non-union men who drove their own cars so that they would be able to enter the union. He said he was not trying to fight the union.

James J. Finan, President of the Hearse Owners' Association, which employs only union drivers, said there had been little trouble and no disorder was anticipated.

SNIPER VISITS PHILADELPHIA

Makes Two Attacks, Then Returns to Jersey for His Fortieth.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 20.—After ferrying across the Delaware River and conducting a sortie against Philadelphians, the ghost-like sniper of southern New Jersey returned today for his fortieth attack since Thanksgiving Day. Shortly before noon he sent a slu through the windshield of a car driven by Edwin Byron, an electrical contractor of Collingswood.

This investigation was progressing when Sylvester Corson of Audubon reported that his windshield had been fired upon as he was passing through Fairview. The glass of his car was not punctured, however, and police were inclined to think the sniper innocent of this charge.

In his Philadelphia invasion the shooter shot through a window of the power room at the Market Street ferry house of the Pennsylvania Railroad with a 38-calibre bullet. The other Philadelphia shooting took place on Sixty-sixth Avenue, near Old York Road, when an automobile passed a machine driven by Al Janke. The windshield of the Janke automobile cracked. The youth pursued the assailant into Cheltenham Township, but the sniper outdistanced him.

PROTESTANTS DIFFER ON WHAT AILS CHURCH

Clergy and Laity Offer Views on Why It Fails to Win Its Share of Converts.

A dozen more explanations for the Protestant Church's failure to win its share of converts were offered yesterday at a meeting of the Men's Church League at the Madison Square Hotel. The diagnoses came from clergy and laity from all sections of the country, and nearly all differed in their opinions as to the nature of the Church's ills.

"It seems to me that we are in a transition stage, which is always an unfruitful one," said George B. Cutten, President of Colgate University, in a letter made public at the meeting. "We have changed from our old basis of authority in religious matters and have not become well settled on a new. The constructive side of the new theological beliefs is still weak, but I believe as time goes on that these will be strengthened and that religion will be just as powerful a factor in the human life as it was under the old ideas and ideals."

Bishop Theodore S. Henderson of Cincinnati, a Methodist, wrote:

"Additions to membership instead of converts to Christ are cursing the Church. Our church activities have outrun our spiritual experience. Spiritual anemia, spiritual inertia, spiritual complacency and spiritual incompleteness are strangling Christ within the Church."

"A return to the New Testament practice of personal witness by the individual membership of our churches" is the solution offered by E. W. Hunt, President of Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.

Bishop Thomas F. Gailor of the Episcopal Diocese of Tennessee believes "that the dominion of material interests, fostered and encouraged by the results of physical science, has infatuated many people and made them indifferent to their spiritual obligations."

"The Church's lack of Christ's passion for the souls of humanity" was the reason given by Bishop William H. Washinger of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ of Portland, Me., while Bishop S. P. Sprong of Napersville, Ill., saw the root of the trouble in "the decline of vital, aggressive evangelistic effort on the part of pastors." Bishop W. B. Beauchamp of Atlanta, Ga., found fault with the "needless theological discussions and controversies, emphasis on secondary things rather than the evangelistic program, and the substitution of theories for the gospel."

Frank H. Robson, President of the league, suggested that the churches in a community accept a spiritual obligation to "Christianize" their communities by dividing them into sections, assigning groups of individual workers headed by leaders, and work along evangelistic lines.

ROCHESTER FIRE KILLS 3.

Mother, Ill, and Two Children Are Trapped in Burning Home.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP).—An 18-year-old mother, who lay ill in bed, and her two children, one an infant, were burned to death today in a fire which destroyed their home here. They were Mrs. Mildred Bents and her sons, Harvey, 4 years old, and William, two months.

Mrs. Henry Warner, mother of Mrs. Bents, seized two small children of her own and leaped through a window as flames cut off her escape by two doors. The three were injured and were taken to a hospital.

Mrs. Warner made several frantic attempts to enter the room where her daughter lay with the two young children, but the flames forced her back. The charred bodies of Mrs. Bents and the four-year-old son were recovered from the ruins, but the infant's body was not found.

William, the baby, was the first child born in Monroe County this year and his parents received an award of money from a local newspaper.

FLIER SAVES EIGHT IN BURNING HOUSE

HE DOES NOT MENTION IT

News of Clearfield (Pa.) Rescue on Feb. 10 Comes in Letter of Thanks From Merchant.

Through a letter received here yesterday from Clearfield, Pa., officials of the National Air Transport Company learned that Paul F. Collins, mail pilot on the night route between Hadley Field, N. J., and Cleveland, had saved a family of eight from a fire on the night of Feb. 10.

Collins himself had said nothing about the incident beyond reporting when he arrived at Hadley Field that he had seen and circled the fire. Collins was flying over Clearfield about 2 A. M. when he saw a small isolated dwelling in flames. He dived in the big Douglass mail plane to within a few hundred feet of the fire and then circled it again and again as closely as he dared, meanwhile trying to see if there were any signs of life about the house. The roar of the Liberty motor awakened the family and Collins saw a man and a woman and several children leap from second-floor windows, all apparently escaping in safety. A letter from H. W. Flegal, a Clearfield merchant, was received yesterday, giving added details.

"It may interest you to know," Mr. Flegal's letter said, "that the pilot who flew over Clearfield on Friday morning, Feb. 10, at about 2 A. M. is responsible for saving the lives of six small children and their mother and father.

"At this time the pilot must have noticed the fire that destroyed their home and must have circled it. By doing so he awakened the family just in time for them to jump and save their lives. It seems that no one noticed the fire, let alone the family that lived in the house. The entire home was a mass of flames, and even at this time there had been no alarm.

"The facts stated are not generally known, for the reason that the people in question are unable to speak English."

Mr. Flegal added that several of the children were painfully hurt in jumping.

"Will you please make these facts known to the pilot," the writer said in closing, "and express our thanks for his act."

REMUS IS SANE, ALIENIST TESTIFIES

LIMA, Ohio, Feb. 20 (AP).—George Remus of Cincinnati brought his legal forces into action again today in an effort to gain his freedom from the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, where he was committed after a jury found him not guilty of murder in connection with the killing of his wife, Imogene, on the ground of insanity.

To substantiate his motion for a writ of habeas corpus, freeing him from the asylum, Remus produced six alienists who started their testimony as to his present mental condition before the Court of Appeals.

Dr. Shelby Mamautie, former physician at the Longview Hospital of Cincinnati, who occupied the stand all day, testified that he believed Remus is sane. Dr. Mamautie based his conclusion, he said, on an exhaustive examination.

Remus, who appeared in a genial mood, volunteered his services to the Court when Dr. Mamautie attempted to decipher letters which Remus had written to his wife a short time before he was released from the Atlanta Penitentiary, where he served a term for violation of the Federal Prohibition act.

The doctor was stumbling over a letter when Remus rose and said: "If the Court please, I will read it."

He proceeded with the introduction: "To the only true and sweetest girl in the whole—"

Here he suddenly stopped. "Some one has written in 'damn,'" Remus shouted. "It should be 'in the whole dear world.'"

Then he launched an attack on the persons who had tampered with the letters.

Dr. Mamautie said that Remus had told him it was "wrong legally" to kill his wife, but "right morally."

Another alienist will be placed on the stand by Remus's attorneys tomorrow. Four more have been subpoenaed.

When court opened this morning the State questioned jurisdiction of the court to act on the writ. After brief arguments the Court instructed the State to proceed, saying it would rule on the question of its jurisdiction later.

Swift & Company's Cattle Dollar

A thousand pound beef steer will yield on an average of 550 pounds of beef and 150 pounds of hide and other finished by-products.

Swift & Company, at its various packing plants, buys thousands of cattle each week, transforms them into beef and by-products, sells the beef to retail dealers and the by-products to various kinds of manufacturers to be worked up into forms which the consumer desires.

From every dollar which Swift & Company received in 1927 from sales of beef and by-products an average of 85 cents was paid to the producer of live stock for his animal; 14 cents was required to pay manufacturing, freight and selling costs, and one cent remained as earnings. Out of his 85 cents the farmer has to pay the cost of the animal and the expense of feeding and marketing before he makes any profit.

The story of beef is an interesting one. Something of this, as well as many other details of the packing industry, are told in the new Swift & Company Year Book for 1928.

LEGION CHIEF BACKS FULL NAVAL PROJECT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Before the House Naval Affairs Committee today Commander Edward E. Spafford of the American Legion assailed Frederick J. Libby of the National Council for Prevention of War as an "arch slacker" because he has been circularizing the country against the adoption of the pending naval program.

The Legion, Commander Spafford said, is behind the bill as it has been presented to the committee, and he urged that it be adopted. He declared the United States ought to "keep faith" with those who died in the World War, and added that he had not been in sympathy with the President's naval conference at Geneva last year.

Commander Spafford said that word had been sent out already to members of the Legion to support the naval construction measure and advised the members of the committee to "get your form letters ready to answer."

"We have been bombarded," he said, "with letters from people such as Libby, who are pacifists."

Mr. Andrew added that reports about costs had been misleading, and contended that the program would require less than one-third of a cent a day for every person in the country.

Thirteen of the members of the Naval Affairs Committee were said today to be in favor of a definite program and opposed to the optional plan of giving the President the choice of completing the ships at his discretion. Final consideration of the bill will be taken up in executive session tomorrow.

"Considering tonnage alone, compared with Great Britain," Admiral Moffett said in a statement issued today, "the United States is short today 48,000 tons, or three and one-half 13,000-ton carriers, and short four carriers as to flight decks. In other words, in order to attain equality with the British navy as it stands today, at least four carriers should be built, and even if they were started today this equality with the British could not be attained within less than three years. Moreover, the British are about to lay down an additional carrier (they still have available 20,000 tons of the total of 135,000 tons allowed)."

DOUBTS HORNED TOAD TALE

Dr. Ditmars Calls Survival for 31 Years in Cornerstone "Impossible."

Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of mammals and reptiles at the Bronx Zoo, characterized yesterday as "utterly impossible" the survival of a horned toad for thirty-one years in the cornerstone of a building. Such a toad was said on Sunday to have been found in a stone of the old court house at Eastland Texas, when the building was being torn down.

Dr. Ditmars said that the horned toad, a species of lizard, is capable of going without food for from three to four months; if it had a little water now and then it might possibly live six months. But horned toads breath, he said, and breathing would be impossible in a sealed cornerstone.

MORE CONFUSION IN BERGEN

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 20.—Ex-Assemblyman James N. White has added more confusion to the Republican situation in Bergen County by announcing today that he is a candidate for State Senator.

The belief that Senator W. B. Mackay would be a candidate for Governor or get a Judgeship has led several to enter the field, including Assemblyman Ralph W. Chandless, Charles F. Black, ex-Judge John B. Zabriskie and ex-Assemblyman John Y. Dater. It may happen that Mackay will run for renomination, and then there would be more confusion. It was also announced today that B. Duncan McClave, former County Committee Chairman, would manage Joseph S. Frelinghuysen's Senatorial campaign in Bergen County.

BRITISH CLAIM LOST LAND.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The British Government has laid claim to the portion of the earth's surface known as Thompson Island. It is prepared to defend the claim against all comers, but unfortunately does not know exactly where Thompson Island is. This was revealed by Sir Austen Chamberlain when asked in the House of Commons today what information he had of the island's existence, since its existence has been denied by Norwegian whalers.

The Foreign Secretary replied that Thompson Island was first sighted by Captain Norris in 1825, and had only once been sighted since by Captain Fuller, an American seaman. It was unsuccessfully sought in 1896 and again in 1926, but in view of Norris's definite statement and Fuller's confirmation, there seemed no ground for questioning the existence of the island though uncertainty existed regarding its actual position.

Also claimed by the British Government is Bouvet Island—Thompson Island's neighbor in the South Atlantic—from the Norwegian Government on the ground that it also was occupied by Captain Norris in 1825.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20 (AP).—More than 300 Chinese passengers on the steamer Hsin Ta-ming were reported today to have drowned following a collision with the Japanese steamer Atsuta Maru in the Yangtse River between Shanghai and Nanking.

The captain of the Atsuta Maru said today that he was descending the river Saturday night and had reached a point thirty miles east of Chin-kiang when the Chinese vessel attempted to cross his bows.

He said that he ordered his engine reversed but that the Hsin Ta-ming crashed into his port side, driving a hole in his vessel, while the bows of the Chinese steamer were crushed below the waterline.

The 550 Chinese on the board the Hsin Ta-ming became panic-stricken, although their vessel remained afloat about an hour. Some leaped into the water, but the majority went down with the ship.

The Atsuta Maru and several Chinese river junks rescued more than 100 who were floundering in the water, but many of these died later from cold and exposure.

It was estimated that between 300 and 400 perished.

Approves Passaic River Bridge.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 20.—The State Board of Commerce and Navigation approved today construction by the Pennsylvania Railroad of a drawbridge over the Passaic River between Harrison and Newark. The bridge is a part of the railroad's improvement program in connection with a new terminal at Market Street, Newark. Three restrictions were imposed by the board in approving the bridge. It must have 24 feet vertical clearance, 200 feet horizontal clearance, and steamers must not be compelled to wait more than ten minutes for the draw to open.

DEFER TESTIMONY OF M. F. BLACKMER

BANK RECORDS AWAITED

New York Men Will Be Questioned Thursday—Stewart Decision Expected This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The investigation of the Continental Trading Company deal by the Senate oil inquiry committee will be resumed on Thursday morning when Graham Youngs of Blair & Co. of New York; Robert Ray, manager of the New York branch of the Dominion Bank of Canada, and Robert W. Kenwell of the Hyva Corporation, which is owned by H. F. Sinclair and his family, will be examined as to whether or not they have any information that may aid in tracing about $2,000,000 of the Continental profits which remain unaccounted for.

All of these witnesses have been notified to bring all records which show transactions from 1921 to 1923, inclusive, in 3½ per cent. bonds of the First Liberty Loan. All of the Continental profits, except a small amount used for overhead, was invested in First Liberty Loan bonds as fast as the money from the resale of the Mexia oil came in.

Mr. Ray is also asked to bring all records of transactions with H. S. Osler of Toronto, who was President of the Continental, and who gave the order for the purchase of the bonds.

Myron F. Blackmer of Denver, son of Harry M. Blackmer, one of the guarantors of the Continental deal, will not be examined Thursday. He requested today that his appearance be postponed until Saturday morning, and the request was granted.

A phase of the oil cases now nearing an end is the contempt proceedings against Sinclair, Day, William J. Burns and others.

The proceedings, it was said today, will probably end sometime Thursday. Justice Siddons is expected to hand down his decision immediately after arguments are concluded. If he holds the accused in contempt, jail sentences of as much as one year may be imposed.

Court action in the case of Robert W. Stewart, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, failed to materialize today. Justice Bailey is to decide in a few days whether the Senate was within its powers when it ordered the arrest of Colonel Stewart and his arraignment before the bar of the Senate to be asked questions he had refused to answer when a witness before the committee investigating the Continental Trading Company deal.

CROWE'S KIN A TARGET FOR CHICAGO BOMB

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—Bombers who renewed their warfare with the blowing up of three places on Friday, planted a heavy charge of explosive tonight in the hallway of a building where one of the apartments is occupied by Lawrence Cuneo, Secretary and brother-in-law of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe.

Whether Mr. Cuneo was the target of the bombers was not definitely known, but the charge was placed directly under the mail box bearing his name and this, coupled with the fact that one of the places bombed on Friday was the home of Municipal Judge John A. Sbarbaro, long known as a Crowe aide, led investigators to believe the intention was to frighten Mr. Cuneo.

The bomb tore out the front door, shattered a glass inner door and a partition leading to the lobby. Patrons of a hotel across the street were alarmed.

Mr. Cuneo and members of his family were absent at the time, but other residents of the building fled into the hallways and then to the street. No one was found who saw the bombers.

ENVOY WARNS OF IMPOSTOR.

Says Name of Spanish Ambassador's Son Is Used in Fraude.

Rafael de Casares, Spanish Consul General in New York, said yesterday that an impostor using the name of Ramon Padilla, son of the Spanish Ambassador at Washington, had obtained money from various persons in New York by fraud. The Consul General sent the following formal communication to THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"At the request of his Excellency Don Alejandro Padilla, Spanish Ambassador at Washington, D. C., I will appreciate it very much if you will kindly publish in the columns of your valuable newspaper a warning to the effect that complaints have been received lately that there is an impostor in New York City who uses the name of Ramon Padilla, a son of the Ambassador, for the purpose of obtaining money from incautious persons in this city.

"The real Ramon Padilla, son of the Ambassador, is an attaché to the Royal Spanish Embassy at Washington, D. C., and has not been in New York City for more than a month. He is well known to friends of the Ambassador and does not need any pecuniary assistance.

"In the name of his Excellency the Ambassador, I thank you very kindly for the consideration you may give to his request."

Questioned about the complaints received at the Spanish Consulate, Mr. de Casares said that the whereabouts of the impostor was unknown. Mr. de Casares would not divulge the names of those victimized.

SIMONOVICZ, VIOLINIST, ASPHYXIATED IN HOME

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 20.—Harry Simonovicz, 51 years old, concert violinist, who was found dead in a gas-filled room in his home at 14 Catherine Street, here, shortly before midnight last night, was buried this afternoon in Oheb Sholom Cemetery, Hillside.

Mr. Simonovicz, who was concert master of the Pavlowa Russian Ballet during its world tour in 1915-1918, was found dead seated in a chair in the living room of his home by his wife when she returned from a visit in Philadelphia. On the floor was an overturned gas heater. The family believes that Mr. Simonovicz fell asleep and, in moving, his foot knocked over the stove.

Mr. Simonovitz was born in Russia and was educated in Warsaw, and later in Leipsic. In 1893 he was engaged to come to America to play at the World's Fair in Chicago. After that he made his home in this country.

For four seasons, from 1908 to 1911, he played in the New York Symphony Orchestra under the leadership of Walter Damrosch. He was a close friend of Mr. Damrosch. Of late years Mr. Simonovicz devoted his time to teaching students of the violin, having had studios here and in New York.

Besides his wife, he leaves a daughter, Miss Doris Simonovicz, who lives here, and two sons, Julius Simonovicz of Baltimore and Lester Simonovicz of this city.

Have you ever wanted to be a whole orchestra yourself? Even though you don't play a single note on any instrument? Now, even this is possible!

You can have as many instruments as you like, all playing at once, with no altercations between the banjo and the flute, and no unexpected sputterings from the big bass viol. It sounds incredible, doesn't it? But the entire thing is set up in our Radio Department and we are already showing hundreds of people how it works.

There is practically no limit to the number of possible effects, depending on the number of stringed instruments, brasses or woodwinds you use. You can play Tschaikowsky or Paul Whiteman with equal ease!

We suggest this for restaurants, hotels, clubs. The instruments can be bought at Macy's: Banjos (Tenor), $9.94 to $69.50, Cellos, $59.50, Saxophones, $89.50, Violins, $7.94 to $49.50, Trombones, $32.50. Other instruments, also reproducers, record "pick ups", and amplifiers for the combination, at equally low prices.

The Phantom Orchestra is worked very simply by the connection of a phonograph or radio with the tone chambers and sounding boards of any collection of instruments—so that the instruments themselves seem to play.

IMPERIALISM ISSUE KEENER, FRENCH SAY

FINDS RESULTS MEDIOCRE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—The semi-official Temps, doubtless taking inspiration from the Quai d'Orsay in this as in other matters, sees the Havana Conference as proving that the Latin-American republics intend to fight against "American imperialism." It fails to see that Washington has achieved any sort of victory in the conference at the Cuban capital.

"The whole conference gives the impression that Pan-Americanism is traversing a crisis due to the irreducible opposition of the aspirations of Latin America and the imperialism of the North Americans," the Temps comments. "The moment has not yet arrived when a Pan American Union, based on international laws freely accepted by all its members, can resemble a real League of Nations of the New World."

The Temps thinks that Washington should see that it "cannot transform the Monroe Doctrine, originally a doctrine of defense against further conquests by European powers, into a system of forced domination by North Americans. Latin Americans will not permit this doctrine to become an argument in favor of the imperialism of the North Americans. This consideration dominated everything else at the sixth conference of the Pan American Union."

The Temps says there is no question that there existed at Havana a clear majority for non-intervention, but that Mr. Hughes skillfully dodged the issue. The paper says that it is just as well that no resolution was voted for, "despite all eloquent speeches about equality of members of the union, no decisions by Honduras, Salvador or even Mexico would suffice to make the United States change its policy."

The Temps finds the positive results of the conference mediocre and notes that Washington even then made reservations.

It thinks that the American delegation came near to accepting the French point of view regarding wars of aggression and sees in this circumstance an indication of what Secretary Kellogg's coming note to M. Briand may say with regard to the treaty project.

"What should be remembered about the conference," it says, "is that the Latin-American republics find themselves clearly aligned against the imperialism of the United States. The Latin bloc and the Anglo-Saxon bloc are facing one another. It is not certain that Washington will worry much about it, for Washington feels the immense force, political and economic, which its wealth, its power and its fleet assure the United States and which explains the new imperialism of American foreign policy."

The Matin's comments tomorrow will say that the Havana experience should show Washington that international difficulties cannot be settled by ignoring them, and this paper thinks that the real Pan-American problems were not solved but only postponed. "In some respects the Havana meeting reminds us of a League of Nations meeting where for two years there have been adjourned the most real problems which deserve attention," it says. "However, we do not agree with the idea that the Pan-American meeting was without results. Even if it did not do much positively, it helped the situation by enabling different countries to make their positions clear."

The Matin takes note of the Hughes declaration that the North Americans would get out of Nicaragua as soon as our citizens are no longer in danger.

BERLIN, Feb. 20.—Thirty-eight of forty murders committed in Berlin last year have been cleared up, according to a report submitted to the Prussian Diet today. The Police President praised the high efficiency of his force, consisting of 18,885 men. He especially stresses the good work of the policewomen, who were organized some time ago to combat prostitution and white slavery.

Twenty-four of the thirty-eight murderers who were caught during the year ended their own lives by suicide. Three were executed, four were sentenced to long prison terms, while nine still await trial.

CHIEF'S WIFE ASKS DIVORCE

Files Petition Against Rochelle Park (N. J.) Police Head.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 20.—Chief of Police Woodward of Rochelle Park has been made defendant in a divorce petition filed by his wife, Mrs. Woodward names Mrs. Natalie Beattie of 86 Summit Avenue, Hackensack, alleging that Chief Woodward has been living with her at the Summit Avenue address since Dec. 1.

The application for alimony will be heard before Vice Chancellor Vivian Lewis in Jersey City Feb. 27.

Mrs. Woodward had had her suspicions for some time, it was learned. Then seven tons of coal were delivered to the Woodward home, although the bins were full. The coal men insisted the Chief had ordered it, but when Mrs. Woodward looked on the slip the address was 86 Summit Avenue, Hackensack.

Again, some electric refrigerator representatives came to the Woodward home one day to take out the refrigerator, as the instalments had not been paid. Mrs. Woodward was surprised, as the Woodwards do not have an electric refrigerator.

City Technical Men Will Ask for a Pro-Rata Distribution.

City-employed technical men, including architects, draftsmen, engineers, chemists and engineering inspectors, will assemble at the City Hall at noon Thursday, March 8, to urge the distribution of salary increases among them upon a flat percentage rather than an individual basis. They will appeal to Mayor Walker and to the Board of Estimate, it was agreed last evening at a meeting attended by 200 city-employed technical men in Labor Temple, 242 East Fourteenth, near Second Avenue.

Instead of flat increases, Charles L. Kohler, Director of the Budget, has asked department heads to recommend individuals who for particular ability merit increases.

FOX DISPUTES VOLSTEAD.

Brewers' Head Says They Did Not Originate "Half of 1 Per Cent."

The United States Brewers' Association, through its Secretary, Hugh S. Fox, took issue yesterday with the statement of Andrew Volstead that the fraction "one-half of 1 per cent." originated with the former beer makers and not with the "fanatical drys," according to The Associated Press.

Mr. Volstead in a letter to the Women's Christian Temperance Union at Chicago two days ago said the Treasury Department on suggestion of the brewers, adopted a regulation that all beer containing as much as one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol should be treated and taxed as intoxicating.

"It is indisputable that the standard of one-half of 1 per cent. arose in the Federal system merely as a standard for taxation and it was never intended to be a criterion or test of intoxicating quality," Mr. Fox said.

Mr. Fox declared that from the time of the Civil War Revenue act of 1866 all fermented liquors were taxed, and in order to know what was subject to taxation the Department of Internal Revenue early ruled that only liquors containing one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol by volume would be deemed "fermented."

Campbell Says Supervision of Alcohol Is Biggest Problem.

Major Maurice Campbell, prohibition enforcement officer for this district, addressed the members of the Lower East Side Community Council at its monthly meeting at the Educational Alliance last night.

Major Campbell said that a large part of his problem was the supervising of the distribution of industrial alcohol. Public sentiment regarding the Eighteenth Amendment had a direct bearing on the enforcement problem, he said, but he believed that in time the problem probably would become less acute.

HAVANA PARLEY ENDS IN HARMONY

By RUSSELL OWEN.

Delegates of the various nations in the conference made congratulatory speeches during the afternoon and expressed their hopes that the next conference would be as production of good results and good feeling as the one which just closed.

There was the general feeling that even if the conference had ont accomplished much in concrete results, the general effect had been a fortunate one and that the States of the three Americas had a better understanding of their mutual problems.

This was expressed by Dr. L. S. Row in a statement after the close of the conference in which he said:

"The Sixth International Conference of American States, which adjourned today, will go down in history as in many respects the most significant, as well as the most fruitful of the series of conferences inaugurated by the first conference held at Washington in 1889.

"None of the preceding conferences has had as varied a program nor have the programs included so many important questions closely affecting the larger interests of all the republics of the American continent. It is a significant fact that in each and every one of the questions included in the program of the present conference, important and constructive forward steps have been taken.

"As regards the Pan American Union, the fact that unanimous agreement was reached in the formulation of a convention is in itself an indication of the importance which the American republics attach to the Pan American Union. This convention places the union on a firmer basis than it has ever before occupied.

Pan-American Ties Strengthened.

"Furthermore the discussions in the conference relative to the organization and functions of the Pan American Union indicated the deep interest of all the republics in the development of the functions of the union and in the strengthening of its position as the official international organization of the American republics.

"The decision of the conference not to entrust political functions to the Union will serve to enlarge the Union's usefulness in the field of commercial, educational and cultural cooperation between the republics of America, for it will remove any misgivings that may have existed that the Union will interfere with the sovereignty of the constituent States.

"In the domain of public and private international law the conference made important steps forward. The acceptance by the delegations of twenty States of the code of private international law prepared by Dr. Antonio S. De Bustamante is a step of deep significance to the future of Pan-American relations.

"The greatest triumph of the conference in the field of public international law is the resolution, unanimously adopted, providing that disputes of a juridical nature be submitted to arbitration and that a conference of the American republics be held in Washington within twelve months for the negotiation of a convention to render obligatory arbitration effective.

"A further resolution of great importance, also unanimously adopted, outlaws aggressive war and commits the republics of America to the use of peaceable means for the settlement of all disputes that may arise between them.

Law Code and Aviation Compact.

"The codification of international law for the American republics has begun and the sixth conference has been able to prepare and agree upon conventions dealing with public international law on:

"1. The rights of asylum.
"2. Duties of neutrals in civil strife.
"3. Maritime neutrality.
"4. Treaties.
"5. Diplomatic agents.
"6. Consular agents.
"7. Status of foreigners.

"The signing of a convention on commercial aviation and the action taken on the Pan-American railway and on the Pan American highway constitute real achievements in the field of communications.

"The program of the conference was also carried forward in the field of cultural relations. The establishment of a geographical institute and of a Pan-American Institute of Intellectual Cooperation will mean much to the development of better understandin. between the nations of America.

Extension of Sanitation Code.

In the field of social problems, the unanimous purpose to give the Pan-American Sanitary Code full effect in all the republics of the American Continents carries with it the possibility of far-reaching results in the field of public sanitation, especially the possibility of Pan-American cooperation in this important matter.

"The full significance of the results of the conference will become fully apparent when the conventions and resolutions are made effective, and in this respect a large responsibility will devolve on the Pan American Union.

"Too great praise cannot be given to the Cuban Government and officials entrusted with the organization of the conference. They have spared no effort. The distinguished President, Dr. Bustamante, and the Secretary General, Dr. Carbonell, have placed the entire continent under obligations to them for the admirable manner in which they conducted the work of the conference.

"Due praise also goes to every member of the delegation of Cuba, and especially to Dr. Ferrara for his constant and unfailing cooperation with the delegations from the other countries."

Bustamente Lauds Gain in Prestige.

HAVANA, Feb. 20 (AP).—The farewell exercises and speeches of the Sixth Pan-American Conference occupied the final session this afternoon. Dr. de Antonio Bustamente, President of the conference, in the name of the Cuban Government, bade Godspeed to the delegates.

Dr. Bustamente reviewed the work accomplished by the considerable progress in the codification of international private and public law, better organization in the Pan American Union, giving it a strictly contractual form, remarkable progress in plans for aerial, land and maritime communication, most fruitful efforts for intellectual cooperation and the advancement and the solution of numerous economic, social and sanitary problems.

"We convert international law, which for many years was the law of war, into an instrument of good works, of solidarity, equally preoccupied with individuals and nations, which operates intensely for the happiness of both—to make the latter prosperous and great and the former cultivated and healthy," he said.

The decision to hold all the activities of the conference in public, he said, gave the gathering an enormous prestige by allowing the public opinion of America to follow the developments.

He also congratulated the conference for having allowed the women to make their voice heard in favor of equal rights. America, he said, owes a special debt to women, since it was a woman, Isabella of Spain, who enabled Columbus to embark on his voyage of discovery.

Varela Stresses Reconciliation.

Upon Jacobo Varela of Uruguay, as the representative of the country where the next Pan-American Conference will be held, fell the honor of replying to Dr. Bustamente in the name of the Governments which had been the guests of Cuba.

The chief function of Pan-Americanism, he said, was "to reconcile the magnificent civilization" which is flourishing under the Stars and Stripes and "the other civilisation so characteristic of twenty republics" which perpetuate Hispanic traditions.

"To say that everything joins the United States and Latin America and nothing separates them," said Señor Varela, "would only create deep misunderstandings or dangerous prejudices.

"The Americas have much in common, especially in democratic principles and commercial and financial intercourse, and traditional policy regarding the rest of the world, which one republic enunciated and many lauded. But important interests and formalities hold back perfect harmony and collaboration.

Tribute to the United States.

"More than mere stock, different temperaments, a different intellectual outlook, those economic interests which remain apart, and, above all, language are diverging forces which only come together when the abyss of misunderstanding which still exists in important sections of public opinion in the North and South shall be conquered.

The highest aim of the Pan-American conference, Señor Varela added, was to "promote a better understanding for a fuller knowledge of the cultural and moral worth of both civilisations and for dispassionate examination and comparison of their interests and aspirations in an effort to reconcile them, in a spirit of harmony, and not intransigeance.

"The United States," he continued, "is not only a marvel of industrial organization, an Eldorado which its citizens knew how to conquer, but a prodigious country which gave to the world a model of free institutions, which later even made objects speak, through the genius of Edison, and sent with wings, which the Wright brothers created, Lindbergh to conquer the heart of France and Europe."

Constructive Spirit Acclaimed.

Dr. Rafael Martinez Ortiz, Cuban Secretary of State, who presided over the final session, said that the conference fulfilled the ideal of modern cooperation by "constructing, not destroying."

"To the ever dissatisfied, to those who dream of reaching the goal at the first effort, the results accomplished might seem modest, but the thinkers will surely not see these things in the same light," he said. "They will understand that nature does not progress by leaps and that ideas, in order to crystallise, require the same conditions that are indispensable to bodies for their crystallization—space, time and repose.

"However, it is already a great benefit that the directing elements of the various nations have assembled so as to confer with one another, to exchange ideas on their different points of views, and to seek with patience the definitive results which must issue from the conjunction of forces acting in diverging though not in opposite directions.

"No one, unless blinded by passion, can deny that each new Pan-American assembly has yielded its fruits and that its importance has grown in an ascending progression. The presence at the inaugural session of the congress which ends today of the President of the United States, Calvin Coolidge, marks an undeniable advancement in the spirit of cordiality and in the desire to approach nearer to the fulfillment of our common hopes."

Argentina Declared for Unity.

Dr. Laurentino Olascoaga, who succeeded to the leadership of the Argentine delegation during the last few days after the resignation of Dr. Honario Pueyrredon, gave a short address in which he said his country came to Havana "to unify itself with the majority of American thought without withholding its convictions, which were declared at all times with the high respect due the opinions of other delegates."

Following the adjournment, the delegates surrounded Dr. Bustamente with congratulations and general handshaking. The final photographs of the conference were taken with the delegates grouped on the dais around the conference Chairman. The most cordial feeling among delegates was displayed as they exchanged personal congratulations and farewells.

Amid the turmoil of good wishes at the close of the conference, the American delegation seemed well pleased. Mr. Hughes was photographed with Dr. Martinez Ortiz, the Cuban Secretary of State, and Dr. Bustamente. Henry P. Fletcher was busy for half an hour shaking the hands of delegates. Oscar Underwood, former Senator from Alabama, and Dr. James Brown Scott with other members of the American delegation were lost in the crowd.

Mr. Hughes has made reservations to return by steamer to New York, leaving Wednesday night, while the majority of the United States delegation leave tomorrow night by way of Key West.

LINDBERGH FLIES HIS OLD MAIL ROUTE

DODGES FORMAL RECEPTION

He landed safely at Maywood Field here at 7:46 P. M., and then, with that modesty that has marked his every act, dodged the formal Reception Committee prepared to welcome him, avoided the crowd of 5,000 persons who stood on a snow-covered field ready to cheer him and slipped off, like a boy on a lark, to a dinner arranged by air mail pilots.

At midnight he turned in for a few hours' sleep before he shall go back to the flying field at dawn to cry "Contact" and lift his plane into the air again for a return mail flight to St. Louis.

Colonel Lindbergh, who for the occasion had dissolved the partnership of "We" leaving his Spirit of St. Louis at its home port, was thirty-one minutes late. He flew a red, silver striped machine. With him and before him landed five planes which made up the convoy that carried, as especially stamped "Lindbergh mail," a total of nearly 200,000 pieces weighing more than a ton. Some of it had been gathered at St. Louis, some at Springfield, Ill., and some at Peoria.

Two Others Come in First.

First to arrive were two of Colonel Lindbergh's old companions, Thomas Nelson, who came directly from St. Louis and avoided the delays that the Colonel encountered at the other two stops, and Phil Love, who used to fly the same route with him in the past.

Awaiting Colonel Lindbergh, in addition to the crowd of 5,000, was the small reception committee. It was composed of Postmaster Iueder, Colonel Paul Henderson, Chairman of the Mayor's Aero Commission, and members of the Aviation Committee of the Association of Commerce.

Not even this official welcoming body was certain that it was Colonel Lindbergh who left the silver and red-striped machine and ran to a waiting truck. But they took his flight on foot in good spirit. They let it go by saying that they had hoped to bid the flier a word or two of welcome, but if he preferred to avoid a reception they had no objection.

Nelson arrived at 6:35 P. M. Forty minutes later, at 7:15, Love made his landing. The third plane in line was that of Colonel Lindbergh, but he made his escape before any one except his friends knew it was he and they kept his confidences.

Shifts Planes to Carry All.

Colonel Lindbergh first took the air at 3:50 P. M. in St. Louis. In one of the planes he circled the field and relanded. He boarded another plane, the first trip having been made to make good his promise that all the mail in the convoy would be carried a part of the way with him.

Nelson was the first to start on the business of the day. He carried letters and postcards for Chicago only. His take-off was at 4:08 P. M. Following him from Lambert Field was Love, at 4:18. He, too, had mail destined for Chicago only.

Simultaneously Colonel Lindbergh, with mail for Springfield, Peoria and Chicago, swept into the air with Bud Gurney at 4:25 o'clock. Following them went E. L. Sloniger and Leslie Smith in the fifth and sixth machines. Smith carried no mail. His plane was filled with movie camera men, assigned to do their part in dramatizing the air mail service.

The crowd in the Missouri metropolis numbered several hundred in spite of the cold, but all except those actually engaged in handling the mail were compelled to keep back from the planes.

Promptly at 5:14 o'clock, after an uneventful run of 49 minutes, the Colonel swung low over Lindbergh Field at Springfield and landed. With him was Frank H. Robertson, head of the company holding the air mail contracts.

A minute or two later he streaked skyward again in the third plane he had occupied. In it also he made but a short flight, returning to the same port and entering the cabin of the fourth plane. In this he made a business-like flight to Peoria, the time consumed being only forty minutes, from 5:32 to 6:12 o'clock.

In the growing dusk there was a cheer from a crowd of 3,000 that had gathered to see the landing. But it never got near the transatlantic flier. Three units of the National Guard held every one back from the strip of ground used in the landing. Here again a change of planes was made, and the hop for Chicago began.

The official count by the Post-office Department showed that the mail from St. Louis alone was 99,300 units. The total weight was 1,950 pounds. Heavy pick-ups were made at Springfield and Peoria and, although nothing official in this regard was brought out, it was estimated that the total number of pieces delivered here by the convoy was between 150,000 and 200,000.

Special clerks were assigned to cancel the final flood of letters at St. Louis and Springfield. Postal authorities at the former point said that most of that received for the trip came from persons living outside the city.

Checks Strip Map of Route.

Included in the cargo was the first aerial strip map ever made of the St. Louis-Chicago air lane. It was prepared by the Department of Commerce and Colonel Lindbergh had agreed to check it. It is one of a series that will be furnished the mail pilots all over the country for their guidance.

The absence of formal functions in Chicago was due to an expressed wish of Colonel Lindbergh himself. Colonel Henderson sent him an invitation to accept hospitality from the city administration, but Thomas Wolfe, division traffic manager for the mail contract firm here, received from his St. Louis office a reply:

"Lindbergh requests that there be no ceremony or reception."

Colonel Henderson's message to the air hero said, in part:

"Chicago is proud of the fact that for some time you served our city by carrying mail into it from St. Louis. We are proud of your achievements. We are glad that for the moment at least you are back at your old job. The purpose of this letter is to extend to you the official welcome of the city of Chicago upon your arrival here."

LINDBERGH MEDAL BILL ADVANCES IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—A gold medal for Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, as proposed in a bill introduced by Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, Republican House leader, and Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic Senate leader, was approved by the House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures today, and a favorable report ordered. It will be designed "with suitable emblems, devices and inscriptions to be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury."

The committee also gave its approval to a bill by Representative Kvale, Farmer-Labor member from Minnesota, creating a commission to handle the sale of a commemorative medal for raising money with which to purchase and equip the Lindbergh homestead at Little Falls, Minn.

This was opposed by Representative Lowery of Mississippi and Kemp of Louisiana, who contended that Colonel Lindberg's wishes had not been ascertained in this matter. Mr. Kemp said he yielded to none in his admiration for the "lone eagle," but "we have had no reaction from him at all on this proposed legislation." He said that the action might be "more humiliating than gratifying" to Colonel Lindbergh.

Secretary Mellon's letter of last week approving a medal but disapproving a Lindbergh coin was read to the committee.

"There would appear to be no objection," the Secretary said, "to the issuance of a medal, and in this way the very cordial sentiment of deep regard for Colonel Lindbergh on account of his achievements might be given expression, for the medal could be made at the mint and sold to the public at cost, which would probably be one dollar. The purchase of the medal by the public would be a compliment to Colonel Lindbergh and would be without ulterior purpose."

A fund of $500,000 would be raised under the Kvale bill, and of this $250,000 would be used to purchase the home and equip it as a memorial. A similar sum would be expended on a Lindbergh museum at St. Louis.

The balance of any proceeds received would go toward the promotion of research in aerodynamics and development of commercial aviation under the direction of Colonel Lindbergh, in cooperation with the Postmaster General and Secretary of Commerce.

Mrs. Lindbergh is to receive a gold emblem and life membership in the National Education Association for "characteristics of modesty and idealism and outstanding work in the teaching profession."

WOULD WIDEN BANKS' FIELD.

ALBANY, Feb. 20.—Four bills which would open the door for investment by savings banks in various public utility bonds tonight were introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman Nelson W. Cheney of Erie and Senator William W. Campbell of Lockport.

The measures carry out the recommendations made to the Legislature last week by a special legislative committee which for the last year has been investigating the advisability of giving savings banks wider latitude in investments. Similar measures were defeated last year.

In introducing the bills Assemblyman Cheney declared that similar statutes now are in force in eighteen other States.

"These bills," said Mr. Cheney, "would provide the tightest set of laws relating to savings banks investments of any State in the union. The committee is convinced that something should be done to broaden the scope of savings banks investments."

Enactment of the bills would add the following classes of securities in which savings banks could invest: gas, electric and telephone company issues; equipment trust bonds, terminal, depot and tunnel corporation securities; collateral trust obligations, municipal bonds of fire districts of this State and of boroughs, townships and some school districts of adjoining States.

ARMY FLYING CROSS AWARDED FOR FIVE

TRAIL-BLAZERS DECORATED

Macready, Kelly and Maughan Cited for Continental Flight and Goebel for Hop to Honolulu.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The deeds of outstanding officers of the Army Air Corps were recognized by the War Department today in the award of the Distinguished Flying Cross for five of its personnel who in recent years have blazed new paths in the development of aviation.

Posthumously the cross was conferred upon Captain Hawthorne C. Gray, who lost his life on Nov. 4 in an attempt to set a new world's altitude record for free balloons.

The decoration also was awarded to:

Captain John A. Macready of the Reserve Corps, then a First Lieutenant, and First Lieutenant Oakley G. Kelly, who jointly on May 2-3, 1923, made the first nonstop flight by airplane across the continent, taking off from Mitchel Field, L. I., and landing at Rockwell Field, Cal.

Second Lieutenant Arthur C. Goebel of the Reserve Corps for his flight on Aug. 16-17, 1927, from Oakland, Cal., to Honolulu.

First Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, in recognition of his dawn-to-dusk flight of June 23, 1924, from Mitchel Field to Crissy Field, San Francisco.

The Distinguished Flying Cross was given to Captain Gray "for heroism while participating in aerial flights." After reciting his effort to establish an altitude record on March 9, 1927, when for fifty-two minutes he lost consciousness at 47,000 feet due to faulty oxygen apparatus, the citation said:

"With faith still unshaken and displaying great courage and self-reliance, Captain Gray on Nov. 4, 1927, made the attempt which resulted in his making the supreme sacrifice.

"In paying too strict attention to the manipulation of his radio, in order to test its reception at high altitude, he allowed himself to ascend so slowly that his oxygen supply was more than half gone when he reached 34,000 feet. However, determined to make desired observations as well as exceed his old record, he waited for ten minutes at 42,000 feet, testing his reactions, before making a last rapid climb to his ceiling and a more rapid descent to safe atmosphere. Undoubtedly his courage was greater than his supply of oxygen, which gave out at about 37,000 feet."

PASSES ARCHITECT BILL.

Senate, by 45 to 1, Backs Measure Making Designer a Commissioner.

ALBANY, Feb. 20.—With only one dissenting vote, the Senate passed this evening the bill presented by its Committee on Reorganization, under the terms of which the State Architect becomes a Commissioner of Architecture and his department a subdivision in the Department of Public Works.

The one dissenter was Senator Thomas C. Brown of Schenectady. He quoted language of the bill in which provision is made that the Commissioner of Architecture shall "perform such functions as the Superintendent of Public Works shall direct."

"Under the terms of this bill," Senator Brown said, "a noted architect may become a Commissioner of Architecture, or they may even appoint a man who is not an architect at all to that position. In any event, he will be subject to orders from a State Superintendent of Public Works who, as the game of politics is played, may be a landscape gardener.

"I know the present State Superintendent of Public Works and have the highest regard for him, and what I say is no reflection on him."

The vote on the bill stood 45 to 1. Architects from all parts of the State have protested against the proposal, which impelled Sullivan Jones, late State Architect, and practically all his deputies to retire from the State service.

EDUCATORS GREET FLIERS.

The Department of Romance Languages of Columbia University and the Maison Française entertained Captain Dieudonné Costes and Lieut. Commander Joseph Lebrix, French transatlantic fliers, yesterday afternoon at the Men's Faculty Club of the university. About 400 guests were present, including Maxime Mongendre, French Consul General.

Professor Raymond Weekes of the Columbia French Department welcomed the fliers in French and was followed by M. Mongendre. Captain Costes expressed his appreciation for the reception and referred to his flight with Lebrix as a return call for Colonel Lindbergh's visit to Paris last May. The two flights, Captain Costes said, were symbolic of the friendship between France and the United States.

Costes and Lebrix passed last night quietly at their quarters in the Ritz Tower. They plan to go to Mitchel Field today to examine their big Breguet-plane, the Nungesser-Coli, and to talk with American pilots who know the Western airways in preparation for their transcontinental hop.

ROLLINS COLLEGE ENDS THREE-DAY FESTIVAL

WINTER PARK, Fla., Feb. 20.—Novelists, bankers, poets, statesmen, editors, artists, scientists, preachers and business men joined with educators here today in a midwinter convocation, which came as a climax to the three-day celebration observing the forty-third anniversary of Rollins College, the oldest institution of higher learning in Florida.

An attitude of appreciation rather than of criticism of the present-day college student featured the utterances of the speakers, beginning with Rex Beach, who addressed his fellow-alumni on Saturday, and closing with Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, and Dr. Edwin E. Slosson, Director of Science Service, who spoke at today's ceremonies.

Rex Beach, novelist, a selection, "Fit, Fat and Fifty"; Theodore Marburg, former Ambassador to Belgium, a poem, "Perugia"; Irving Bacheller, novelist, an essay, "The Force of Education"; Cale Young Rice, poet, four poems; Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, divine, "My Visit to India"; Jessie B. Rittenhouse, former Secretary of the Poetry Society of America, four poems; Mme. Isabel de Palencia, Spanish author, "A Sketch From Spain"; Willard Wattles, poet, three poems; Ferdinand Lafrentz, New York banker, who has recently published a volume of poems, two poems; Colonel D. B. McKay, Mayor of Tampa, Fla., and editor of The Tampa Times, an editorial, "The Parade"; Clinton Scollard, poet, two poems; Dr. Edwin E. Slosson, scientist and author, "Neophobia, or Getting Scared at New Ideas"; Opie Read, novelist, a short story, "Big Bill and Little Bill." As editor, President Holt read a foreword.

In conferring the honorary degrees of Doctor of Literature on Alice H. Hegan Rice and Cale Young Rice, President Holt set a precedent, it is believed, in awarding equal academic honors to wife and husband.

Colonel D. B. McKay, who, President Holt said, "has been a progressive and powerful champion for good," received the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature.

In conferring the degree of Doctor of Science on Edwin E. Slosson, his former colleague on the Independent Magazine, President Holt characterized him as a liberal in everything" and a "scientist, author, philosopher, educator, versatile genius."

Other eminent men and women receiving degrees were, Jessie B. Rittenhouse, Doctor of Literature, "poet, anthologist, critic and lecturer"; John George Gehring, Doctor of Science, "physician, entomologist, neurologist"; Charles E. Jefferson, Doctor of Divinity, "fearless preacher, moving orator, winning author"; James C. Penney, Doctor of Laws, "cooperator, philanthropist, mercantile genius," and Theodore Marburg, Doctor of Laws, "internationalist, diplomat, publicist."

The Algernon Sidney Sullivan medallion was presented to Mrs. Stevenson Burke on behalf of the Southern Society of New York.

Aviation and railroad executives and the Governors of two New England States discussed the possibilities of commercial aviation in New England yesterday at a luncheon at the Lawyers' Club. Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, President of the Colonial Air Transport and Colonial Western Airways, gave the luncheon. Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut and Governor John E. Weeks of Vermont were among the guests.

Others present included William B. Mayo, chief engineer for the Ford Aircraft Company; Henry P. Davison, ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, George W. Wickersham, Louis W. Stotesbury; Robert E. M. Cowie, President of the American Railway Express Company; Patrick E. Crowley, President of the New York Central, and Howard Elliott, President of the Northern Pacific Railroad.

General O'Ryan told his guests that the Colonial Airways system was planning the establishment of lines between New York and Montreal and Boston and Portland, Me. The company has under operation the airmail, express and passenger line between Buffalo and Cleveland, which is to be extended to Albany in May. The company contemplates a direct airline between New York and Buffalo via Binghamton.

Governor Trumbull, who is a licensed pilot, and Governor Weeks expressed approval of General O'Ryan's plan for a unified airway system for New England. Governor Weeks told of the aviation services to Vermont during the recent floods.

Miss Hall Flies With Mail.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 20.—Miss Candis I. Hall, daughter of Myron S. Hall of 1,165 Park Avenue, New York, "hopped off" from Hadley Airport at 12:17 o'clock this afternoon for San Francisco and Hollywood. W. C. Hopson of the National Air Transport Mail Service piloted the plane. Miss Hall is a graduate of Bryn Mawr and the Spence School in New York.

"It is just a pleasure trip," her father said as he saw her step into the plane. "She is going to visit her grandmother. She has no theatrical ambitions and the trip to Hollywood is not in that connection. She has been visiting Curtiss Field for several months and has become very much interested in the planes. She wanted to make the trip and here she is."

ST. GODARD IN FIRST IN QUEBEC DOG RACE

Seppala and Brydges Are Second and Third at Opening of Three-Day Sled Derby.

QUEBEC, Feb. 20.—Three men and twenty-one dogs fought for first place today in a field of seventeen teams. It was the first of three days of the eighth Eastern International Sled Dog Derby. The three men are Emile St. Godard of The Pas, Manitoba, which is north of 53; Leonhard Seppala of Nome, one of three American entries, and Earl Brydges of The Pas, who, like St. Godard, is at the beginning of his twenties.

St. Godard won the day. He came over the snow-buried roads through the habitant villages in the fastest time recorded for this course. Ten minutes behind him was Seppala, who has driven dogs for work and on errands of mercy for more than a quarter of a century. Third and less than four minutes behind Seppala came young Brydges.

Seventeen teams started at 9 o'clock in the morning with intervals of three minutes between the teams. The sky was clear, the wind was from the northwest; the temperature was 14 above zero and the snow along the course was six feet on the level. Snow blew across the course in fine, stinging particles.

Brydges started ninth, St. Godard tenth and Seppala thirteenth. St. Godard has two legs on the famous Gold Cup, which was given in 1922 by W. R. Brown of Berlin, N. H.; Brydges has one leg on it. Seppala is driving this year for Brown, who gave the cup. Seppala beat St. Godard in New Hampshire last year and this year. St. Godard beat Seppala last year in Quebec. Brydges and St. Godard ran each other to the limit for second place in New Hampshire ten days ago. The betting here a week ago was odds-on on Seppala.

St. Godard Breaks Record.

St. Godard traveled so fast today that he broke the record for the course. He did the forty-one miles in 3:37:35, compared with last year's fastest day of 3:47. Seppala came within fifty seconds of last year's record. St. Godard got all but fifteen seconds of his ten-minute lead on Seppala in the first fourteen miles.

There was plenty of excitement besides that furnished by these three. Paddy Nolan, for instance, finished fourth. He is only 16 and he belongs to Quebec. He drove last year and he is wearing this year the black velvet parka that his mother made for him a year ago. His father offered him a new one this year, but he wanted to wear the old one. His mother died the day last year's race ended. Paddy today was only twenty-nine minutes behind St. Godard.

Almost all the starts were good this morning. Walter Channing of Boston was fastest; his brake threw up snow in a cloud. Seppala was even and economical as usual. St. Godard stood on one runner. Brydges ran the first few yards behind his team and a good many miles thereafter. Mrs. Edward F. Ricker Jr. of Poland Spring, Me., the only woman driver who ever entered this race, rode out in a white skin parka behind alert Siberian dogs, the pure-bred Siberian that Seppala depends on. Brydges soothed the dogs that had shied from the paint with which the teams are marked for identification.

Clown Finishes Eighth.

François Dupuis of Quebec, who is the annual clown and the permanent potentiality of the race, went out from the start waving his arms and legs from the runners of the sled; he blew salutations; he had on his head a bright red leather cap, and his dogs traveled, as usual, as fast as possible. He finished eighth, however.

At the finish line on Grande Allee the first team came in at shortly after 1 o'clock. It should have been Georges Chevrette if the order of starting had been maintained on the road. Instead it was St. Godard. The boy came running down the broad street even with his sled.

St. Godard had passed Brydges, Pouliot, Channing, Mrs. Ricker, Dupuis, Shorty Russick, Harry Skeene, Victor Lavinge and Chevrette. It takes time to pass teams on the road. The rules provide that the overtaking driver shall call for right of way and that the overtaken driver shall pull out of the road if necessary. St. Godard had gone through this process all the way up the list. On the homestretch they all faced the long hill that leads up to the Plains of Abraham, where Wolfe died long ago and Montcalm rode away on his black horse mortally wounded. That hill slowed them up and the cold northwest wind cut them with snow. They finished on a historic avenue, their dogs, the oldest means of transportation in North America, in a city that is still on the edge of the bush. A little to the north is the wilderness.

The drivers and their time in hours, minutes and seconds follow: St. Godard, 3:37:35; Seppala, 3:47:50; Brydges, 3:51:45; Nolan, 4:06:50; Russick, 4:12:40; Lavigne, 4:18:45; Chevrette, 4:22; Dupuis, 4:22:50; Lapointe, 4:26:35; Carrier, 4:39:10; Mrs. Ricker, 4:39:40; Skeene, 4:41:55; Channing, 4:42:05; Alain, 5:01:45; Pouliot, 5:04:20, and Routhier, 5:32:05.

BRIDGE CLUB SEEKS POLICE INJUNCTION

Asks Court to Restrain Captain and Others From Interference and Raid Threats.

The Alexandra Raymond Club, said to be composed of persons who play bridge, with quarters at 239 West Seventy-second Street, applied in the Supreme Court yesterday for an injunction to restrain the police, and particularly Captain Meade of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, from interfering with the club or its members and from threatening to raid the club. The organization, through its President, Alexandra Raymond, and her sister, Mrs. George Broadhurst, wife of the theatrical man, who is the Vice President, asserted that on two occasions when the officers had been arrested on the ground that gambling is conducted in the club they were freed in the Magistrate's Court and the police directed to cease molesting them. The first arrest took place in 1926, when the club headquarters were in the Hotel Alamac.

An affidavit by Miss Raymond asserted that the club was composed of more than 100 persons who are "eminently respectable ladies and gentlemen who play bridge for relaxation and not as gamblers," and that on Feb. 4 five policemen from the staff of Inspector Boland entered the clubhouse and took the names of twenty-four members present. Miss Raymond and her sister were arrested, it was said, and arraigned before Magistrate Brodsky, who discharged them and directed a police guard posted at the club to leave.

The club officers said that Captain Meade later accused them of conducting a gambling house and said they would have trouble if they stayed anywhere in the district south of Eighty-sixth Street, which is the boundary of his precinct.

Gargle twice a day

These are days when sore throat, colds, "flu" and pneumonia are a constant threat. At the first sign of throat irritation gargle repeatedly with Listerine used full strength.

It may be—and very probably will be—the means of warding off a nasty cold, or worse.

The instant Listerine enters your mouth, it attacks the disease-producing bacteria that develop and multiply there.

For this reason, it has been the first aid of millions in checking cold weather complaints before they became serious.

In view of your constant exposure to disease germs, we urge you to use Listerine, night and morning every day during cold weather. A simple precaution—but well worth taking. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

BARES KLAN TERROR IN INDIANA REIGN

HEAD URGED TARRING PARTY

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 20 (AP).—A sensational tale of alleged political intrigue, involving the Ku Klux Klan, horse thief detective associations, "gun-toting" preachers and the Indiana Anti-Saloon League was unfolded here today by Hugh F. (Pat) Emmons, a former Klan Cyclops, in a deposition given to Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom. The Attorney General will use it in connection with a suit he brought recently to oust the Klan from Indiana.

Emmons, who between 1923 and 1926, inclusive, said he was associated with Valley Klan No. 53 of South Bend and St. Joseph County, declared he had been told by W. Lee Smith of Indianapolis, until recently Grand Dragon, that the secret order was formed for the purpose of getting political control of the United States.

For eight hours Emmons unraveled the story of how, he said, the Klan stuffed ballot boxes, used whisky to win elections, raided men "in bad" with the organization and boycotted Catholics and Jews who were in business.

"It was a kind of double-crossing proposition," he said, after alleging that men were taken into the Klan on one set of principles and given another set to follow when they had taken their oaths.

Heard Ballot Boxes Were Stuffed.

Joe Huffington of Evansville, present Grand Dragon was described to Emmons by W. Lee Smith as "the fastest man with a gun that had ever been brought into Indiana." Emmons said he and Charles J. Orbison, Indianapolis attorney, helped Huffington in the Evansville city election in 1925 and later Huffington told him (Emmons) that "it took a lot of whisky and money and some stuffing of the ballot boxes to put that election over." Herbert Males was elected Mayor.

Orbison, an attorney for the Klan and former Superior Court Judge, represented that organization at the deposition taking, frequently objecting to the questions that Gilliom put to the witness.

Lavish expenditures of money by prominent Klan leaders, orgies at road houses, hate-inspiring speeches, boycott of business establishments and the attempted boycott of at least one newspaper in Indiana were charged by the witness. He said the Valley Klan, No. 53, finally lost its charter when it no longer would give money to the State and national organization.

On one occasion, Emmons said, Hiram Wesley Evans, Imperial Wizard of the Klan, told him that if the situation at Herrin, Ill., did not improve he would send gunmen down there "to clean things up." The conversation with Evans occurred in Chicago just after Emmons had returned from Herrin from the funeral of S. Glenn Young, the witness said.

Emmons, as Exalted Cyclops of St. Joseph County, was advised by a representative of the imperial office that the way to get members was to "beat up somebody" and use some tar and feathers.

He said a man named Sirman declared the South Bend Klan needed a little more Southern spirit, and that "if they took some one out in this Catholic city and gave them a good beating and tarred and feathered somebody, membership would increase by hundreds," Emmons said Sirman told him.

Not one dime, the witness added, of Klan finances so far as he ever heard of was spent for charitable purposes, Emmons continued.

The name of Dr. E. S. Shumaker, Superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League, was linked with the Klan's work by the witnesses. He said Dr. Shumaker, at a South Bend meeting in 1924, had said the Klan, the horse thief detective associations, Indiana Anti-Saloon League and all Protestants must work together. Dr. Shumaker, the witness continued, declared "we should go down the line for Arthur Robinson." (Arthur R. Robinson, Indiana's junior United States Senator.)

Emmons told of having been introduced to Senator Robinson, who, he said, gave him the Klan handclasp.

A "Gun-Toting" Parson.

The witness told of a "pistol-toting" pastor who rested his gun beside the Bible when he did his preaching or speech-making. The man, Emmons said, was the Rev. Mr. Trotter, a State speaker for the Ku Klux Klan.

That W. Lee Smith, when Grand Dragon, told him that if the Klan wanted to put over any sort of a porgram "we had to do it with politics," and that "a lot of money is being spent that we don't dare to show."

That the general program was to get control of first the county, then the State and the country.

That Sunday school publications were used to carry Klan political slates.

That the Klan had a State membership in Indiana in 1923 of 176,000, but that the total now was less than 4,000 paid up.

That Imperial Wizard Evans told him it took a lot of money to pay expenses of Albert Zunnbrunn, Washington attorney for the Klan, a man who "wined and dined United States Senators."

Chopin's Beautiful "Nocturne in G Major"

AudioGraphically presented

DUO-ART PIANO

DO you know the circumstances said to have inspired Chopin's beautiful "Nocturne in G Major"? Following is a story as written for the AudioGraphic music by Mr. A. Forbes Milne, the well-known British writer and musical authority. It is based upon an episode recorded in George Sand's diary in which she tells of a night spent with Chopin on a sailing vessel in the Mediterranean.

The preliminary description, brief and intensely interesting is soon over, and then the music begins. The Duo-Art recording is by Paderewski and is a beautiful reproduction of that great pianist's interpretative Art.

We listen, and as we listen, the spell of the divine harmonies takes possession of us. In fancy we are borne to the scene itself, we become the fellow passenger of Chopin and his companion on the little sailing craft that bears them over the smooth waters of the Mediterranean.

It is night. Calm and peaceful. Around us on all sides stretches the broad expanse of the star-lit sea. The music plays on and we seem to feel the gentle rhythmic swaying of the ship and in the shifting harmonies to hear the caressing waves as they lap the vessel's side and fall away, leaving behind them a pale phosphorescent glow.

The night is warm and the air soft and relaxing. Again, the music changes and there is borne to us on the gentle night wind the voice of the steersman in a song of strange rhythm, a song of weird beauty, which rises and falls with the swaying of the ship and finally dies away. We listen eagerly, longing for more, only to realize that it is finished and that we have had a new and wonderful experience and gained a never-to-be-forgotten understanding of one of music's great masterpieces.

The "Nocturne in G Major" is only one of the many beautiful compositions in which AudioGraphic Music reveals new and unsuspected beauties. Even to the most unmusical, involved and difficult compositions become simple and enjoyable when AudioGraphically rendered.

You are cordially invited to attend a Recital of AudioGraphic Music Tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in the Little Salon at Aeolian Hall.

Mus., L.L.D., D.C.L., Composer and former Principal Royal Academy of Music—for Chopin, Ashton Jonson, Lecturer and Writer and world's Authority on this composer; and in the case of such living composers as Ravel and Stravinsky, the composers themselves have written of their own work and purpose.

Such are the men who have revealed the fruits of their learning, research, and inspiration and made them permanently available to all music-lovers through AudioGraphic Music.

WARDEN IS ACCUSED AT JERSEY INQUIRY

OFFICIAL DEFENDS REGIME

Again Lays Murder of Guard to Negligence of Co-Workers—Hearing Adjourned a Week.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 20.—C. Leroy Eldridge, storekeeper at the State Prison here, who was suspended when he refused to give certain testimony before the Board of Prison Managers, told a Joint Committee of the Legislature today that Warden Timothy J. Murphy has been negligent in his duty.

Outstanding among Eldridge's charges of negligence was the releasing of Harry Baxter, a desperate convict, from solitary confinement when Murphy became the principal keeper. Baxter and Frank Wunkowski shot to death Joseph H. Tinney, a guard, in a recent attempted escape.

Because of Baxter's record, Murphy's predecessor, Joseph S. Hoff, had kept him in solitary confinement for almost a year, and testified today that he would have kept him locked up.

Warden Called Inexperienced.

Eldridge attributed Murphy's stand toward Baxter and other dangerous prisoners released from solitary confinement to his inexperience. He predicted that the warden would become firmer after he had dealt with such inmates for a longer period.

In addition to the releasing of convicts from solitary confinement and permitting them to mingle with other prisoners in the work shops and to come into contact with visitors, Eldridge said the principal keeper had been negligent in the following respects:

Permitting visitors on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays, despite prison rules to the contrary.

Failing to make a thorough search after receiving information that revolvers had been smuggled into the prison.

Failing to require a search of convicts returning to the prison from employment outside the institution.

Permitting as many as twenty-five visitors to tour the prison with only one guard.

Failing to require the prison deputies to continue target practice.

Permitting convicts to drive prison automobiles although he knew they did not have licenses.

Failing to have enough guards in wings when 135 to 200 convicts were turned out of their cells at one time for meals.

Admits No Search of Men.

Warden Murphy admitted at the hearing that he released Baxter from solitary confinement and that some convicts worked outside the prison without guards and were not searched on their return.

The hearing was held by the Legislature's Joint Committee on State Prisons and was the result of a request from prison deputies. Another session will be held next Monday, when the committee will decide whether a formal investigation appears necessary. If it does, the Legislature will be asked to authorize such an inquiry.

After the killing of Tinney, Warden Murphy charged that the deputies were responsible for the conditions that enabled Baxter and Wunkowski to come into possession of weapons. The deputies resented the charge and appealed to the Legislature. Murphy in turn resented their course and the Board of Prison Managers investigated. It was during that inquiry that Eldridge was suspended for refusing to tell what information he had sent to Senator Richards, Chairman of the Legislative committee.

In connection with the hearing, Commissioner William J. Ellis of the State Department of Institutions and Agencies, issued a statement calling for the outlawing of the Deputies' Association headed by Eldridge. The association, Ellis said, was used as a club over Murphy and the Board of Prison Managers for selfish ends.

Warden Murphy, testifying at the hearing, repeated his charge that the recent attempted break at the prison in which Tinney was killed, was chargeable to gross negligence on the part of the guards. He said that he had charged gross negligence after he had found knives and daggers which had been made in the prison shops. Success in bringing pistols used in the attempted break into the prison, as well as in concealing a rope, supported this inference, he asserted.

"Perhaps my language to the guards was a little too forceful," he said. "It may have hurt; but what I said I meant. I wanted to wake them up and put them on their toes. Those knives and daggers were not made to trim nails with; they could not have been made if the keepers had had their eyes open."

Murphy was asked by the Chairman whether a guard was ever assaulted by a temporarily crazed prisoner, or one with murderous intent, and he replied:

"Yes, several times. We must watch them pretty closely. We must take chances, just like policemen on the streets."

"But," said Senator Richards, "policemen deal with citizens, among whom there are small percentage of crooks. You deal with 100 per cent. crooks."

"Well," Murphy responded, "I don't know about that. They're all alike underneath. From my experience as a copper I can say that the respectable element will give you just as much trouble as the men we deal with."

SAYS M'MILLAN WROTE WILL OF MRS. APPLEBY

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20 (AP).—A purported will by Mrs. Amelia Appleby, slain Chicago widow, leaving her fortune to Dr. Charles McMillan, was done in the handwriting of the physician, J. Clark Sellers, a handwriting expert, testified for the prosecution today at Dr. McMillan's trial on a charge of murder.

The witness asserted an apparent attempt to disguise the handwriting had been made by the accused doctor. The State alleges Dr. McMillan planned to gain control of her estate after her death.

Sellers said the doctor when interviewed in the county jail had denied that he had any part in the writing of the will, which was purported to have been written in Duluth, Minn., Aug. 8, 1927. It was signed "Amelia Appleby McMillan, Mollie Burke and Amelia Ellenborough," all names under which Mrs. Appleby was said to have been known.

Since the time the purported will was found in Dr. McMillan's possession after his arrest, deputy sheriffs have declared it to be a forgery.

A stain on the lapel of a coat belonging to Dr. McMillan was declared by R. J. Abernathy, county chemist, to have been caused by blood. From the witness stand today, Abernathy said he had examined the stain and that it had "tested positively to be blood." He said, however, he made no test to determine whether it was human blood.

The coat had been introduced as evidence during the testimony of Deputy Sheriff Croushorn, who told of taking it from the physician after the latter's arrest. Mrs. Appleby's body was found tied in a sack Dec. 26. Dr. McMillan was her business manager.

Dr. McMillan, the officer testified, when asked if the stain had been caused by blood, said: "Maybe so. I cut myself while shaving."

ASKS HOSPITAL NEAR CITY,

Dr. Parsons Favors $1,000,000 Institution for the Insane.

ALBANY, Feb. 20.—The establishment of a new State hospital for the insane within fifty miles of New York City is recommended in his annual report submitted to the Legislature tonight by Dr. Frederick W. Parsons, head of the Department of Mental Hygiene.

An option on the major portion of the site within easy access of the city has already been obtained, but until negotiations are further advanced Dr. Parsons prefers to keep its exact situation a secret.

An appropriation of $1,000,000 for such a hospital has been included in the bill allocating $9,050,000 of the next instalment of public works bonds, which was signed by the Governor last Friday.

DRAFTS BILL TO END GOUGING IN TICKETS

FULL RECORDS REQUIRED

The committee appointed by United States Attorney Tuttle to draft a bill to prevent theatre ticket agents from resuming exorbitant charges for theatre tickets reported yesterday that the bill had been prepared and would be introduced in the Legislature at once by Assemblyman Samuel H. Hofstadter.

The measure provides that ticket agents shall pay a license fee of $200 instead of the present fee of $100, but leaves the fee for branch offices at $50. It also provides that the bond of $1,000 required shall guarantee that the licenses shall not violate the law, and that any violation of the law, or any fraud or misrepresentation, shall be cause for revoking the license. Violation of the law shall be deemed a misdemeanor. These are amendments to the General Business law of the State.

Regulation Is Tightened.

Other provisions are that the offices of the agents shall be used exclusively for the sale of tickets, that a new office shall not be opened without notifying the Secretary of State, and that no tickets shall be sold in any other place than that of the licensee.

To protect the Government in the collection of taxes on tickets it is provided that "the licensee will at all times keep a full and accurate set of records, which shall record the prices at which the licensee has bought and sold the tickets and the name of the person, partnership or corporation from which he bought them." Every purchaser is to receive, upon request, a receipt showing the price printed upon the face of the ticket and the price paid by the purchaser.

For the purpose of preventing high prices of tickets because of payments to officers or employes of places of entertainment or to producers or managers, the bill prohibits the giving to any of these "any commissions, gratuities or bonuses in connection with the sale, delivery or payment of tickets in connection with the business being done by such licensee in tickets of admission to such places."

This plan of protecting theatregoers from being gouged by the agents grew out of an investigation last Summer by Mr. Tuttle and the indictment of twenty-four ticket agents on charges of having failed to pay the taxes on their sales to the Government. A tax of 5 per cent. is due on each ticket sold by agents at an advance of 50 cents over the box-office price, and a tax of 50 per cent. is charged for advances of more than 50 cents.

Convictions Still Pending.

Oscar and Edward Alexander of the Alexander Ticket Office, Inc., were convicted of failing to pay the taxes due. Each was sentenced to six months in prison and fined $5,000 and their agency fined $1,000. An appeal was taken and dismissed by the Circuit Court. Then the defendants announced that they would accept the Circuit Court's decision as final.

All the other defendants then pleaded guilty and bound themselves, under bonds of $40,000, to abide by any rules established by Mr. Tuttle for the conduct of their business. The sentence against the Alexanders has not been enforced, and these defendants are in the position of persons on parole. The fact that this sentence is hanging over them and that twenty-three other brokers have pleaded guilty to similar offenses was described as placing in Mr. Tuttle's hand a very strong moral force for the correction of the abuses.

Mr. McQuillan said that so far about $869,000 in taxes had been assessed against the agents of which a large amount had been paid, and that another large amount had been assessed against the theatres, which had been paid in part.

Mr. Tuttle said that his committee felt that the worst features of the ticket brokerage business were due to the number of sidewalk speculators engaged in it and to the practice of some brokers and speculators of giving commissions and gratuities to box office men and other employes of the theatres. Mr. Tuttle said that the committee did not feel that an additional tax upon the re-sale of tickets by brokers would be helpful and that the collection of such a tax would be difficult and expensive.

SEES CATASTROPHE LOOMING IN EUROPE

Former Austrian Finance Minister Draws Gloomy Picture in Yale Lecture.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 20.—"It is impossible to deny the existence of danger of a new catastrophe in Europe," said Dr. Josef Schumpeter, former Austrian Finance Minister, tonight in giving the second Dodge lecture at Yale on "The Responsibilities of Citizenship."

"If the new catastrophe falls, European culture may or may not emerge from it," he added. The problems of Europe call for statesmanship of large horizon, and the present methods of routine diplomacy and the League of Nations merely amount to solving trifles and trifling with solutions.

"There may be an advantage in this. Time is gained and another mentality may have the chance of growing up—in fact, it is in this that reasonable hope lies. But meantime it is impossible to deny the existence of the catastrophe."

"We have had four League of Nations conferences at Geneva, and the World Economic Conference," Dr. Schumpeter said. "We have had, besides, the conference of disarmament and a special one on limitation of naval establishments.

"It would be a mistake to judge all these endeavors by their immediate results or to fail to recognize the reality and the possibilities of the forces behind them; and nothing is either gained or proved by pointing to the facts that talk on disarmament coincides with increased military or naval expenditure; talk on free trade with increased protection, and mutual congratulation on small difficulties peacefully removed with great unsolved problems asserting themselves more menacingly every day. But although we might realize the narrowness of a view exclusively focused on this state of things, we have yet to accept it as a patent fact.

Turning to problems which he described as touching vital issues he said:

"The first of these is the problem of England and Russia. Not only is it futile to hope for a breakdown of the present regime in Russia, but it is also obvious that any other form of government in Russia would follow exactly the same lines as to foreign policy.

"The struggle between France and Italy is deeply rooted in the social, economic and political structure of both countries and cannot be talked away. And the trouble with all the problems clustering around Germany is that which everybody knows, yet scarcely anybody admits, that a great part of the situation created by the Treaty of Versailles is fundamentally untenable.

"This does not mean that even these questions are absolutely beyond the possibilities of statesmanship, but it does mean that they call for statesmanship of large horizons."

THE PLAY

By J. BROOKS ATKINSON.

Americans Stopping in London.

OUR BETTERS, a comedy in three acts, by W. Somerset Maugham. Staged by Reginald Bach; revived by Messmore Kendall, in association with Gilbert Miller. At Henry Miller's Theatre.

Elizabeth Saunders	Madge Evans
Pole	Harry Lillford
Lady George Grayston	Ina Claire
Fleming Harvey	Edward Crandall
Thornton Clay	Reginald Bach
Duchesse De Surennes	Constance Collier
Gilbert Paxton	Hugh Sinclair
Principessa Della Carcola	Lilian Kemble Cooper
Lord Bleane	Martin Walker
Arthur Verwick	Frederick Truesdell
First Footman	Gordon MacRae
Second Footman	Harry Joyner
Ernest	Louis D'Arclay

Eleven years after the original production, Somerset Maugham's comedy of the American emigrés in London, entitled "Our Betters," is having a more propitious showing in Henry Miller's Theatre, where it went on last evening. Although to the jaded ears of today it says nothing particularly malicious about Americans, the touchiness of international feelings in 1917 made it seem indiscreet for those frantic times. Chrystal Herne and Rose Coghlan played in it then. Now the chief players are Ina Claire and Constance Collier, who do extremely well. And although the comedy is a little prolix, a little frowsy, a little thin and a little spurious about most of its cleverness, Mr. Maugham's skill and facility manage to keep it sufficiently entertaining.

He is discussing the Americans who settle down in London, marry for social position, push into English society and contrive to get themselves accepted. In the last act Lady George Grayston, who has made her house the most amusing in London, confesses that she has had to buy her way, use her wits, bear up against deliberate snubs, manoeuvre cleverly, for the English resent American title-hunters. Moreover, she confides in her butterfly sister, Americans are always a little crude abroad. Perhaps these were the observations that seemed perilous in 1917.

But now that lèse majesté is no longer a venal sin "Our Betters" appears to be less a tract and more a comedy of manners. Mr. Maugham treats us to the unedifying spectacle of a lady who keeps her house brilliant on the bounty of a wealthy bounder. Lady George Grayston, from America, cannot do it on "eight thousand a year." On the other hand, the Duchesse de Surennes (née Chicago) cannot do it even on an ample fortune, and is reduced to the humility of supporting a youthful swine to serve as her lover. Those who are accustomed to Mr. Maugham's dramas know how many intrigues and how many worldly cynicisms to expect. At any rate, the Americans of London, who speak patronizingly of the "Americans of America," are, like the British of China, not beyond Mr. Maugham's reproaches.

Vicious teas, back-biting, scandal, infidelities of the second-class and finally a sudden social explosion over a week-end in the country piece out the three acts competently. And that is how Lady George Grayston's innocent little sister comes to abandon the glittering wickedness of London, turns down Lord Bleane and resigns herself to the social savagries of her own country. Mr. Maugham contrives to bring down his curtains on clever remarks and amusing business. If the play sags a little in the middle and frequently runs bare, it pulls up entertainingly in the end.

It enjoys, and it needs, the artifices of amusing acting. As Lady Grayston, Ina Claire plays with the spirit and the sort of refulgent comic intelligence that make her a positive figure in any play. For she has more than one stop at her command—charm, irony and anger; and she plays them all superbly in this rôle. As the apathetic and aging duchess, Constance Collier lays on the comedy thick in a vastly amusing impersonation. Obviously it needs curtailment in several scenes where the duchess should not dominate the situation. But her drawling, tired voice with its affectations ("I know he lies to meh") and her silly, drooping manners make for ingratiating comedy whatever the liberties she takes may be.

Some of the acting is none too good; some of it is distinctly bad. In general, the pace is lax and desultory. But Mr. Maugham has what used to be known in 1917 as a flair for this kind of modish comedy. He and his actors keep "Our Betters" in motion.

'THIRD FLOOR BACK' MOVES.

Butler Davenport Calmly Effective In Broadway Production.

THE PASSING OF THE THIRD FLOOR BACK, "an idle fancy" in a prologue, three acts and an epilogue, by Jerome K. Jerome. Staged and revived by Butler Davenport. At Wallack's Theatre.

A Satyr	Butler Mandeville
A Coward	William Barbour
A Bully	Edwin Wilson
A Shrew	Katherine Jones
A Hussy	Beatrice Hendricks
A Rogue	Jules Artfield
A Cad	Joseph Denier
A Cat	Laurie McVicker
A Snob	Hilda Helstrom
A Slut	Antoinette Crawford
A Cheat	Josie Hart
A Passer-by	Butler Davenport

Butler Davenport, who for some two or three weeks has been playing "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" in his modest playhouse on East Twenty-seventh Street, moved last night to Wallack's Theatre. It will be recalled by some at least that this "idle fancy," as the author, Jerome K. Jerome, styled his piece, was a favorite vehicle for Forbes-Robertson, who starred in it in season and out earlier in the century. For the present generation "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" flings its moral and its moralities a little too brazenly across the footlights; the allegory of the Christ tarrying for a brief period in a shabby boarding house in Bloomsbury Place would be just as easily read, and be vastly more impressive, if not printed throughout in italics. But there the script lies; and the actor attempting it today must speak the lines the author wrote. With concessions, then, to the fact that the play "dates," and regarding it, as the author intended, as an "idle fancy," as a gentle excursion into ethics, the pretty little fable becomes quietly moving and prettily pleasing.

Mr. Davenport, as the Passer-By, was at all times calmly effective. He might have stressed the irony of the part a little more than he did. Jerome K. Jerome was a humorist, not a preacher; and this Forbes-Robertson fully sensed. Mr. Davenport was a trifle too much the preacher fearful that he may fail in inculcating his lesson. Admittedly it is an especially difficult part to interpret the Christ; and partial failure is more than partial success.

Miss Antoinette Crawford, as the unhappy slavey in Mrs. Sharpe's London pension, and Miss Beatrice Hendricks, as the daughter about to be sacrificed to avarice, shared honors with Jules Artfeld, the suddenly-reformed swindler, as the most finished performers in Mr. Davenport's supporting cast. But if few stood out among the "Davenport Players" it was, perhaps, because there was no indifferent performance to offer contrast. As a repertory group, their level of acting is well above that of the average stock company, and their invasion of Broadway will be watched with interest. Mr. Davenport announced from the stage that after "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" completes its run, his players will appear in a drama by Somerset Maugham not before produced.

'WHISPERING FRIENDS' A TURGID DRAMA

Daly	Walter Edwin
Natalie	Edith Gresham
Al Wheeler	Chester Morris
Doris Crawford	Elsie Lawson
Emily Sanford	Annie Shoemaker
Joe Sanford	William Harrigan

In "The Baby Cyclone" George M. Cohan accomplished what was, in essence, a tour de force—he seized upon a thin and unsubstantial idea and managed, by wily showmanship, to spin it into three acts of generally amusing farce comedy. In "Whispering Friends," Mr. Cohan's latest play, which he brought into the Hudson Theatre last night, he has carried the idea a step or two farther—perhaps a step too far. At all events "Whispering Friends" will hardly stand as his best work, nor even his second best.

It is an extremely turgid play, inflated by its own dialogue and fairly bursting with variations upon its basic situation. That situation is one no more conducive, in itself, to a full evening of drama, comedy or farce than was the initial struggle over the dog in "The Baby Cyclone," and it has been developed far less skillfully. Here the idea chases itself around through a play which is by turns drawing-room comedy, farce and a drama of human relationships.

The first part of "Whispering Friends" is largely a series of duologues, and they persist well into the second and final act. Through them it is told that Joe Sanford, an insurance man in moderate circumstances, has married an extremely wealthy widow. To their home come the best friends of each, and it is when Doris Crawford gets a word alone with Mrs. Sanford and when Al Wheeler has a chance to talk privately to her husband that the fun starts. Sanford is sensitive over the fact that people will say he has married for money; to circumvent this he has made his wife agree to try to live on his income and promise never to call their home her house, which it is. This is brought out in the exchange of confidences between Mrs. Sanford, Miss Crawford and the audience, and the upshot is that the wife consents for her best friend to make an experiment, largely flirtatious, upon her husband. Simultaneously the two men have been talking it over, and by the end of the first scene a similar testing of Mrs. Sanford has been agreed upon by them. This business is further complicated by the fact that Wheeler and Miss Crawford engage in what is usually known as falling in love with one another.

There follow, of course, scenes of confrontation, of quarrels, of recriminations, of making up, of falling out again, of, in sum, all the domestic troubles and discords which such a situation could give rise to. The alignments and realignments of the contending couples become more than a bit confusing by the middle of the second act; but by that time they seem no more than a pack of silly meddlers and you don't care much anyway.

In point of dialogue the play is certainly not typical of its author. The talk has little of Cohan's usual crispness or flavor, and in its pretensions toward elegance it presents its characters as so many Babbitts of the drawing room.

William Harrigan, as the husband, plays with bewildered sincerity, as if he believed every moment of it—and that has the virtue of making the onlooker believe some of it, too. Anne Shoemaker depicts the wife as if she were a symbol of something or other. Elsie Lawson contributes a decorative quality to the proceedings, while Chester Morris does his best with the part of the husband's friend. Your old acquaintances, the snooping butler and maid, are illustrated for what they are worth as comedy by Walter Edwin and Edith Gresham.

It might be added, in performance of a reportorial duty, that the first-night audience went into salvos of laughter at most of the complications, particularly those of the earlier scenes.

'SHERLOCK HOLMES' IN 'MODERN DRESS'

An Enjoyable Revival, With Warwick in the Title Role and Keenan an Admirable Moriarty.

Forman	Philip Heege
Jim Larrabee	Fred L. Tiden
Terese	Fritzi Scheff

Professor Moriarty	Frank Keenan

Count von Stalburg	J. H. Brewer

Sherlock Holmes, who first thrilled a Broadway audience with his expert needlework in the last year of the last century—the last year of the decade called Mauve because of its surface respectability—stabbed himself neatly in the arm again last night and winced—so they said—with just the right wince for that sort of thing. William Gillette was missing, but Gillette's trick stage piece made out of Conan Doyle's trick story was there very much as it used to be when it was the pioneer detective play, in the happy days when writers of detective fiction did not think it necessary to know anything about criminals first hand or to reproduce their language. Induction served instead of reproduction. We have changed all that.

And yet it was obvious that the well-filled house at the Cosmopolitan Theatre was having a very good time with the old piece as played by Chamberlain Brown's company. Especially the elders, who were numerous, enjoyed it in spite of the fact that Robert Warwick, though an old-timer, was not quite William Gillette, and notwithstanding that Julia Hoyt, as the very wicked lady yegg, was dressed in the very latest and most fascinating manner of up-to-date bobbed-haired queens of the underworld. It is explained that the play is "in modern dress"—like Shakespeare at the Garrick. But there was no modern dress about the get-up of Frank Keenan as Moriarty, the Dickensian head villain, who sat in his underground office and ran the criminal classes in a London still innocent of psychopaths. Mr. Keenan was admirable. He played with a real sense of what such a villain must be—bitter and rasping and febrile. He was heartily applauded and he deserved it.

Between the acts—there are five of them, you remember—the orchestra played all the old waltzes and one-steps that used to be danced in the first decade if this century and that had a mellowing effect, even though nobody semed to be able to remember what the old tunes were called. You heard people who obviously should have known asking each other "what was that?"—and the answer "I can't think of it for the life of me."

Everything went extremely well except in the act in the Stepney gas-chamber—once so famous for Sherlock Holmes's trick with the lighted cigar that was not in his mouth when he broke the lamp and plunged the criminal death trap in darkness. Something happened last night to the cigar and marred the perfection of the effect. But, no doubt, that will be put right in future performances. The principal trouble on the opening night was that the five acts and the waits for setting up the very elaborate scenery kept the last curtain till nearly midnight. But even so, the audience—which included a number of very well-known persons not quite so young as they used to be, as well as a large number of younger persons who were more curious than interested when they sat down—seemed to be standing by extraordinarily well. Indeed, people kept on smiling and seemed not nearly as restless as New York audiences usually are in such circumstances.

Fritzi Scheff, as the French maid, was dressed almost as she used to be when she beat the drum and looked extraordinarily like the Fritzi who did beat the drum. There was precisely the old impudent swing to her short skirts—skirts only exactly as short as everybody's on our city's streets now are.

GATTI ANNOUNCES 4 OPERA NOVELTIES

'FRA GERARDO' ALSO CHOSEN

While this year's new "Madonna Imperia" and revived "Coq d'Or" were exhibited to the Monday opera subscribers last evening, General Manager Gatti-Casazza made known his prospects of novelties for the next Metropolitan season on Broadway. He named four new European works, with at least three revivals of old favorites yet to be determined upon. As for singers of the new operas, the selection of casts was "on the knees of the gods," as are certain important political events in America, and likely to be finally settled about the same time next Fall.

Mme. Jeritza, for whom Richard Strauss wrote the name rôle in "Die Aegyptische Helena," will create that part in New York as she is also to do in Vienna on June 11 next, the composer's birthday. Another opera also awaiting its European as well as American premiere is Pizzetti's three-act "Fra Gerardo." Two already successful overseas and promised here are Respighi's "La Campana Sommersa" from Hauptmann's "The Sunken Bell," lately sung in Hamburg, and Krenek's "Johnny Spielt Auf," the talk of the Continental theatres just now.

"Jonny Spielt Auf" has been given in many German and Central European opera houses with what might be described as "a sensational success," Mr. Gatti said. The title rôle will be impersonated as a "blackface jazz comedian." The title of the opera is idiomatic German, which Secretary Guard translated as "Johnny begins to play" or "Johnny strikes up."

Frederick Jagel, the American tenor of many rôles in a first Metropolitan season, pleased his first Monday audience as the ardent youth out of Balzac's droll tale of "Fair Imperia" last evening. Miss Mueller, Messrs. Bada, Pinza, Wolfe and d'Angelo sang again and Mr. Serafin conducted. The Misses Talley and Galli headed the dual singing and dancing ensemble of "Coq d'Or" with Mr. Bamboschek at the beton.

HOLLAND TRIO'S RECITAL.

Program of Madrigals, Chants and Folksongs Gives Pleasure.

The Holland Trio, a vocal ensemble composed of Josephine Kirpal, Else Lettinga and Mary Bennett, gave in the Town Hall last night a recital of English, German, Dutch and Italian madrigals, chants and folksongs. Most of the airs were sung a capella, though two Cherubini trios, originally written for voices and flute, were given with piano and violin obbligato. These melodious and interesting seventeenth century pieces, called "Tandus que tu sommeilles" and "Dans se paisible asile," were set down on the program as "first performances in America."

The final group of songs comprised Deems Taylor's arrangements of Old English and Czechoslovakian carols and folksongs. The assisting artists were Helene Tardival, pianist, and Edwin Ideler, violinist. The fine singing of the ensemble gave pleasure to a friendly audience, which was generous in its applause.

MUSIC
By OLIN DOWNES.

Vladimir Horowitz's Recital.

Vladimir Horowitz, whose début with Sir Thomas Beecham and the New York Philharmonic earlier in the season was one of its sensational events, made his first New York appearance in recital last night in Carnegie Hall. There was much curiosity and anticipation of this concert, for Mr. Horowitz, appearing here with other orchestras as well as the Philharmonic, had repeatedly proved his phenomenal technical equipment and his virtuoso spirit. But it is one thing to play with an orchestra, and quite another thing to impress the discriminating audience which usually attends a piano recital, when seated alone with a bare ebony instrument on the stage of Carnegie Hall. What would Mr. Horowitz prove to be in recital?

Mr. Horowitz's program showed him as anything but the man to purvey a few virtuoso pieces and sugar-plums of the encore variety for the sake of momentary applause. He began with the Bach-Busoni toccata in C major, proceeding with a sonata in C major and the familiar Capriccio of Scarlatti. From Liszt he chose not an etude or a rhapsody, but the B minor sonata, a sovereign test of the powers of any pianist. The Chopin group was more conventional, consisting of the G flat study from the first book, which might well be consigned to the repertory of young ladies' seminaries, and kept there; the lyrical study in C-sharp minor, and the study in F major Etude, which is still more commonplace than the one in G flat. The group was completed by the two C-sharp minor mazurkas, and the Chopin A flat Polonaise.

Mr. Horowitz gave impressive performances, performances significant for the present and, we believe, more significant for the future. He is far more than a consummate technician. As a matter of fact, he missed a few notes last night. Who does not?

His technical equipment remains phenomenal. He has not only phenomenal strength and speed but a very fine control of dynamics. But if these were his principal distinctions he would not be the striking figure among the rising generation of pianists that he is, and he would not promise, as he does, to become as he ripens one of the great figures among the pianists of the day.

But prophecy in music is a perilous thing. Let us see what Mr. Horowitz has to offer, or had to offer, last night in Carnegie Hall. He played the Bach toccata rather dryly—so strictly and with such precise, nonlegato finger stroke that the performance, always high-minded, musicianly, and modest on the part of the interpreter, was hard-surfaced and inclined to the didactic. At the same time its was obviously the act of a musician of intellect and conscience who had a thorough grasp of Bach's form.

There was astonishing contrast to this when Mr. Horowitz played Scarlatti. It has been a long time since we heard Scarlatti played with such fluency, sparkle and charm. Here was more than legato playing. The music, purling from the pianist's fingers was enriched by pedaling which was not pedantic or too conscientious, and which did not hesitate to merge certain tones, with the result of a lovely vernal coloring that was appropriate. This may or may not have been strictly faithful in the historic sense to the Scarlatti tradition—if any one alive knows what that really was. But it was beautiful playing, logically consequent upon reading of the score, characterized by exquisite taste and freshness of feeling. Neither a mere virtuoso nor a merely intellectual musician could have done that.

The playing of the small pieces of Scarlatti, and later of the two Chopin mazurkas, were among the distinctive accomplishments in miniature of the evening. The reading that towered above everything else, and that stamped Mr. Horowitz with most if not all of the qualities of a great interpreter, was that of the Liszt sonata.

This was a noble and powerful conception, from first to last. The performance had the varied and subtle tone-tints that the music requires. At the same time the sonata developed on very broad and dramatic lines. Perhaps the spirit of certain pages could have been more extravagant and rhapsodic. On the other hand, the Liszt of the B minor sonata is not the young lion who burst upon Paris of the '30s. He is a composer, a prophet who builds carefully for the future. The B minor sonata is more closely woven than perhaps any other of Liszt's compositions in the big forms. A treatment which is somewhat classic becomes it. By "classic" we do not mean formal or cold. Mr. Horowitz's climaxes blazed at a white heat, but his interpretation, for all its fire, was superbly controlled, so that a final climax was the greater for its gradual and inevitable development, when at last it came. Naturally, in playing this sonata, the pianist's technic and strength served him well, yet he relied far more upon suggestion and accentuation than upon sheer sonority for his interpretive ends.

The Chopin group, with the exception of the Mazurkas, and in spite of some very deserving performances, was not so important, and failed in a measure in some items to impress the audience. Its best moments were the Mazurkas and the A flat Polonaise. But this was not the Chopin whom we would fain have known, and perhaps Mr. Horowitz, in some details of his last group, would have preferred to play other things for his public.

When all is considered, he is now an artist of exceptional intellect, taste and virtuoso quality, with a love and understanding of his art far deeper than many of his fellows, and a pianist to be reckoned with. We have said that playing of the Liszt sonata showed most if not all the traits of a great interpreter.

Some, present last night, might claim a lack of the romantic and glamorous element in his playing. From the standpoint of external fact they might make a case, but we believe they would fall short of Mr. Horowitz's quality. He probably abhors sentimentality. His brain, very possibly, still leads his heart—a refreshing change, if so, from the stupidities and sentimentalities in which so many artists are willing to indulge for the sake of the box office. It is evident that Mr. Horowitz is not one of these. His obvious sincerity and intensity of conviction could not be if he had not warmth and impulse within. He is at the outset of his career. His art will mellow and ripen. Others who play lusciously at his age dry up or repeat platitudes later. Better to start with distrust and scorn of the easy and superficial and broaden and gain in knowledge and emotional impulse with the years. This and much more can be confidently anticipated of Mr. Horowitz.

The audience applauded him warmly. Among the encores played was his own very brilliant and witty "Virtuoso Variations on Two Themes From Carmen."

FANNIE WARD AGAIN GREETED AT PALACE

Sings a New Song, 'My Marine'—Pennsylvanians Repeat Capers —Hippodrome's Vaudeville.

The two headline acts at the Palace this week are provided by Fannie Ward and Waring's Pennsylvanians—entertainers assuredly not new to that house. Indeed, the several repeaters on the program seem to indicate that the Palace booking overlords, like George C. Tyler and Chamberlain Brown, have been affected by the prevalent urge for revivals.

There is, however, something to be said in favor of these resuscitations: they each introduce at least one or two new numbers and fit squarely into an entertainment that plays agreeably, if not excitingly. Miss Ward does, in large part, her former act, although yesterday, after the orchestra had obliged with a few bars of the "Marseillaise," she switched into a dialectic song called "My Marine," which seemed new. The Pennsylvanians orchestra goes completely undergraduate, and justifies, in part, its adolescent caperings by playing a series of college anthems, ranging from the gentle "Fair Harvard" to the rowdy war hymn of Georgia Tech.

This was all quite impressive to the Times Square sophomores.

Irene Ricardo, another performer who is no stranger to the Palace, displays a fresh routine of songs which are better than acceptable. A solid hit was registered at the opening performance by Peggy Chamberlain and Ross Himes, knockabout dancers seen in the "Follies" recently abandoned by Mr. Cantor. They specialize in rough-house Apache work in which the woman is the aggressor. Others held in favor yesterday were two lady cut-ups, Josephine Harmon and Georgia Sands by name, and Teck Murdock and Company, who stage a tabloid musical turn.

CHARLES RAY IN STAGE ROLE

Charles Ray, widely known as a motion picture actor, will make his first appearance on the New York stage in Chamberlin Brown's forthcoming revival of "Within the Law," at the Cosmopolitan Theatre. May Robson, who has not been seen here for a number of years, is also joining the Brown company for one or more productions.

Mr. Ray recently undertook a try-out tour in a play of his own authorship, entitled "Yen," which closed last Saturday night in Cleveland. He will play the leading male rôle in "Within the Law," which is scheduled for production two weeks hence, and will then launch another play out of town with the hope of bringing it to New York for a run.

Miss Robson will play the title rôle in a revival of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," which is scheduled to follow "Within the Law."

William T. Tilden 2d, former tennis champion, will again essay the rôle of an actor in "The Buzzard," a play by Courtenay Savage. Within the last two years Mr. Tilden has appeared here in "Don Q Jr.," by Bernard S. Schubert, and "They All Want Something," also the work of Mr. Savage. Billy Quinn, who played with Mr. Tilden in the last two productions, will have one of the principal rôles in "The Buzzard."

Other members of the cast will include Leona Hogarth, Clyde Fillmore, Leonard Doyle and Ruth Hunter. The attraction is scheduled to open in Mamaroneck on March 7 and is due in New York the following week. George Leffler is the producer.

"Carmen" Sung Again at the Gallo.

"Carmen," in English, on an intimate stage, was sung to a well-filled house at the Gallo Theatre last evening, opening the American Opera Company's seventh week and the final round of the subscription. It was announced in the program, however, that an additional eighth week would be played here, repeating the popular "modern" version of "Faust," together with an extra hearing of tonight's revival of "Martha" and perhaps also "Carmen" once more.

Frank St. Leger led Bizet's opera last night, with Miss Hall, Messrs. Hedley and Houston, heard at last week's première, while a new Micaela, who had sung in Italian with the Gallo San Carlo company, was Miss Santa Biondo, a young soprano of New York.

"The Spider" to Return to Century.

"The Spider," which had a long run here at the Forty-sixth Street Theatre and the Music Box, is announced to return to town next Monday night for a limited engagement at the Century. The original company, headed by John Halliday, will be seen.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Actor-Managers will produce "Maya" at the Comedy Theatre tonight, and a mystery play entitled "Shi The Octopus" will open tonight at the Royale.

"The Madcap" was transferred last night from the Royale Theatre to the Casino.

Florenz Ziegfeld's production of "The Three Musketeers" will open tonight in Washington.

"Marriage on Approval" closed a tryout tour in Paterson last week. It is announced by the management that it will soon be seen on Broadway.

"Doubling in Brass," a circus comedy by Warren F. Lawrence, author of "Quicksand," has been accepted for production by Anna Held Jr.

"Salvation" will be withdrawn from the Empire Theatre on Saturday night.

An extra matinee of "A Connecticut Yankee" will be given at the Vanderbilt Theatre this afternoon.

MUSIC NOTES.

Miss Marrah B. Reuder, soprano, heard in the Century concert ensemble of "Die Walkuere" last Sunday, has a song recital at the Studio Club tonight.

Titta Ruffo and others will appear tomorrow evening in the first scenic presentation of a French "concert-spectacle" at Carnegie Hall.

Virginia La Bett, violinist, will give a recital in the Carnegie chamber music hall on Friday evening, assisted by Christiaan Kriens.

THE SCREEN
By MORDAUNT HALL.

In "Streets of Shanghai," the current effusion now decorating the Hippodrome screen, the lighter vein is supplied by a woman of such proportions that she could always serve as the fat lady of a circus sideshow, and the heavier note is sounded by still-visaged, bony Chinese. It is a yellow melodrama, with yellow flames, yellow villains and even yellow gunfire. It is the sort of picture that is a torment to the organist, for it may happen that just as he is sounding pistol shots on his versatile instrument two men are merely punching each other, and when the guns are mopping up the lawn and plowing through beaded portieres the music may be something that could be played at a garden party. This organist, however, did very well when it came to sounding the bugle calls that always interrupt Sergeant Lee's conversation with Mary Sanger.

In one of the sequences the gay girl of this film throws her full weight upon the shoulders of the hero, bearing him down so that a knife misses his head by fully three inches. T'is but a little thing; at least so it seems, for Sadie and Lee soon forget all about it, and the would-be murderer does not molest them any further. Nor is he punished.

Just when this picture seems to be going along almost rationally something pops up that makes one wonder when it is going to finish. It may be the fat woman's experiences in a rickshaw or it may be Mary's stupidity. In the final episode, when the marines are hurrying to the rescue, one operator was heard to applaud yesterday afternoon. To the rest, it may be assumed, it was a foregone conclusion that the men in khaki would turn up at the psychological moment—when the house was burning and Sergeant Lee and Mary were in each other's arms. The plump creature escapes from the blazing building, after using her weight as a weapon against a soft-footed Chinaman.

Pauline Starke is fairly good as Mary. Kenneth Harlan makes the most of the busy marine. Edward Gribbon vies with Mathilde Comont in trying to squeeze a laugh out of the audience and sometimes he is on the verge of being successful. You can imagine from the captions the thought devoted to this picture by the title writer. There are a few inspired words when murder is in the air, when a child has been kidnapped, when Mary and Sergeant Lee are trying to set that part of the world right. What does Sergeant Lee say? Nothing that will worry Mary. He vochsafes:

Owen Davis Jr., son of the playwright, who recently appeared here for a brief run in "Carry On," has been engaged for the leading male rôle in a comedy by S. N. Behrman and Kenyon Nicholson, tentatively called "Babes in the Wood." The play, which Charles L. Wagner is sponsoring, will be placed in rehearsal in ten days and is scheduled to begin a Chicago engagement at the Adelphi Theatre on April 22.

"Babes in the Wood" is the second play predicted on which Mr. Behrman and Mr. Nicholson have collaborated. The first was "Love Is Like That." Both authors were represented on the New York stage last season. Mr. Behrman's "The Second Man" was staged by the Theatre Guild and is now successfully playing in London, while Mr. Nicholson was represented by "The Barker," now on tour.

Quinn of Holy Cross Leads Field of Sprint Stars in N.Y.A.C. Meet in Garden

SPRINT STARS BOW TO QUINN IN GARDEN

LOCKE AMONG VANQUISHED

Scholz, Wildermuth, Hussey and Miller Also Beaten—Carr First in the Pole Vault.

HAHN VICTOR IN THE MILE

Edwards Takes Brefney Half and Also Helps N. Y. U. to Lead Fordham in Relay Race.

By BRYAN FIELD.

Among those who bowed to Quinn were Roland Locke of Nebraska, making his Eastern début; Jackson Scholz of the New York A. C., Olympic 200-metre champion; Karl Wildermuth of Georgetown, national 60-yard champion; Frank Hussey of the New York A. C., metropolitan 60-yard champion; Al Miller of the Boston A. A. and Hank Russell of the Penn A. A. C., former intercollegiate champions.

Carr Just Misses Record.

Sabin Carr of Yale, making his first New York appearance of the season, vaulted 13 feet 6 inches and failed by the weight of a finger from setting a new indoor world's record; Lloyd Hahn of the Boston A. A. jumped off a railroad train and ran a mile in 4:21 4-5 to win that event from a first-class field; Phil Edwards, New York University captured the first running of the Brefney half mile in 1:57 and Joe Tirney of the New York A. C., holder of the world's 500-yard record, won the Buermeyer 500.

Edwards came back an hour after his half-mile victory to run the anchor leg for the New York University one-mile relay team, which defeated Fordham, Rutgers and others in 3:28 4-5. Edwards was clocked in 0:49 3-5 for his quarter.

Among other outstanding performances was the second victory of the season for the Holy Cross mile relay team over the Georgetown team in 3:25 3-5, with Tut Hoctor running the anchor leg for Georgetown in 0:49, and the smashing victory of W. O. Baskin Jr. in the hurdle race.

Quinn left no doubt of his superiority. He won his preliminary heat against Hussey and R. H. Bartholomew of Penn State, his semi-final heat against Scull, Locke and Hussey and the final against Wildermuth, Miller and Scull. The men finished in the order named in each event. Quinn equaled the world's record of 0:06 1-5 in his preliminary heat.

Only three other men have run sixty yards in 0:06 1-5. They are Loren Murchison, Albert Francisco and Chet Bowman. Quinn now joins these men as joint holders of the record.

In his semi-final heat Quinn finished in 0:06 2-5 and won the final in 0:06 3-5. So fast were the heats that all were won in 0:06 2-5 with the exception of Quinn's time which equaled the world's record. The final time was the slowest of the night.

In it Quin got away last but pulled up on Wildermuth and Miller and won with a final lunge at the tape. He had about a yard on Wildermuth. Hardly that distance separated Wildermuth, Miller and Scull, who finished in that order.

Locke's Showing Creditable.

Locke's first showing in the East was creditable. Primarily fitted for the longer sprints—he has run 220 yards faster than the world's accepted record—he finished second in his preliminary heat. He might have won but when leading at the 50-yard mark he looked around at Scull, who flashed past him to win the heat. Locke was shut out with Frank Hussey in the semi-final heat, which Quinn won and in which Scull was second.

Carr won the pole vault with a mark of 13 feet 6 inches. This height has been done only once before this season and Carr did it at Yale in a dual meet against Holy Cross. Tied for second place at 13 feet last night were Frederic Sturdy, also of Yale, and F. Wiesner of Georgetown.

After winning the event, Carr tried for a new world's indoor record of 13 feet 10 inches. He at present holds all indoor and outdoor world's pole vaulting records. He set the indoor mark of 13 feet 9¼ inches at the New York A. C. games last year.

On his first try for the record, Carr got his body over in a perfect arch. Head and arms followed and one hand, but as the crowd cheered at the prospect of a new world's record Carr tipped the bar with his other hand. It was as near as he got to the new record, for his other two tries were poorer.

Hahn had to make his own pace in the mile. Sid Robinson, star college miler from the South, was second and G. Elliott, another college miler from the South, was third. Hahn took the lead at the gun and quickly opened ten yards on his rivals. He increased his lead as the race went on to win by twenty-five yards eased up to a trot.

The crowd was amused during the running of the race to see Hahn hold up his fingers to correct the officials who were indicating how many laps he had yet to go. A few weeks ago in Newark Hahn was forced to run an extra lap due to an official's mistake. Last night Hahn put on each lap held up his hand in passing the officials to check with them on the distance he had to go.

In winning the first leg on the Brefney Cup, Edwards ran a courageous race. He defeated Edward Swinburne of the New York A. C. by a yard in the last five yards. Clarence DeSaulte of Georgetown was third. Edwards's time of 1:57 was second fastest half mile of the season.

To win last night Edwards had to overcome a rough final lap with Swinburne, who was booed by the crowd when his name was announced as getting second place. Swinburne took the lead at the start of the race, but Edwards was in front before half a lap had been run. Then on the fourth lap of the five and a half lap journey, Swinburne again moved in the lead.

He was in front for about a lap and then half a lap from home Edwards challenged. Swinburne elbowed him aside and ran wide to the right, blocking the negro's passage. Edwards fought on to the tape, being carried so wide by Swinburne that the men finished near the right hand side of the track.

Edwards Again Stars.

An hour later Edwards ran a bang-up anchor run for New York University's team. He defeated the Fordham anchor man by more than ten yards.

Tierney's victory in the Buernmeyer 500 was a typical Tierney triumph. He bided his time and came from far back to get his man at the tape. The man was Gerald Swope of Dartmouth, who had led throughout the race. Tierney's time was 1:00 2-5. Third place went to Frank Burns of the Boston A. A.

At thte start Swope led, Burns was second and Tierney third. Then Tierney went into last position when Oliver Proudlock of the Newark A. C. moved up behind Burns when the latter made his bid. Tierney made his challenge in the last fifty yards and won. He was roundly cheered.

The Holy Cross relay team turned in the fastest mile of the season to beat Georgetown in 3:25 3-5. The best previous mile was 3:25 4-5, also made when Holy Cross defeated Georgetown a few weeks ago. Last night's race was won by a couple of inches as was the previous one. The Holy Cross team was composed of Klumbach, Maher, Chenis and Durkin. Georgetown's team was O'Shea, Gorman, Shotter and Hoctor.

Baskin Close to Record.

Baskin ran within a fifth of a second of the world's sixty-yard hurdles record to win the final of that event from John H. Collier of Brown University and E. McDonald of Holy Cross, who finished second and third respectively. Baskin finished in 0:07 4-5 in the final. Baskin made the same time in one of his preliminary heats. E. M. Wells of Dartmouth, favorite for the event, fell over a hurdle in the first heat and was eliminated. Wells is the indoor and outdoor intercollegiate hurdles champion.

Eddie Roll, clubmate of Johnny Gibson at the Bloomfield Catholic Lyceum and now attending Colgate, ran a fine anchor leg for his college to defeat Yale and Maryland. Roll is the metropolitan quarter-mile champion and on his leg out-footed Launcelot Coes of Yale, who is the national 300-yard champion. Colgate's time was 3:30.

Yale again suffered defeat when Princeton won the two-mile college relay in 7:58.

Six Shutouts in Row Is Mark Set by Connell, Ottawa Goalie

Alex Connell, goalkeeper of the world's champion Ottawa Senators, has justified his unofficial title of "shutout king" of the National Hockey League by holding the opposing sharpshooters scoreless in six consecutive games. For six full playing periods of sixty minutes and three overtime sessions of ten minutes each Connell has guarded the Ottawa cage and thwarted the efforts of the league's best marksmen. Canadian sports writers who know their hockey claim his performance set a new professional record, according to The Associated Press.

REVERSALS MARK BOSTON DOG SHOW

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 20.—With a large attendance of enthusiasts viewing the exhibits, and judging taking place in both the afternoon and evening, the sixteenth annual dog show of the Eastern Dog Club was opened here today to continue through Wednesday evening, when the title of best in the show will be bestowed after the judging of the variety classes. Nearly 1,200 dogs were benched and the quality ran high in the popular breeds.

The exhibition suffered in numbers because many of the local fanciers and breeders were acting as judges this year. The less popular breeds were weak as a rule, but a large number of the champions and winners of last week in Madison Square Garden were on hand. Good weather favored the opening day and it is predicted that a record attendance will turn out on the holiday.

There were a number of reversals, as is usually the case when two big shows come close together. Dogs fall off somewhat in show form, different judges having individual ideas and some are held out for certain exhibitions.

Cairn Terrier Award Different.

There was a difference in the Cairn terrier awards in which Gillard of Cairmore, owned by Richard Stix of the Cairmore Kennels of Cincinnati, winner of best of breed in New York, was placed reserve winner to the Tapscot Kennels' Knipton Dean of Tapscot. This exactly reversed the decision of Theodore Offerman in the Garden. The winner appeared better in coat and condition, the reserve seemingly being deficient in whiskers and outer coat.

The Tapscot Kennels also scored in bitches with Bhen Troona of Tapscot, which was placed over the Pinegrade Kennels' Beechacre Berry of Pinegrade. This followed the Garden placings, although not a few of the ringsiders thought the verdict might have been reversed. Knipton Dean of Tapscot went on to take best of breed, as was expected.

There was a good turnout of bulldogs and Tyler Morse of New York City had a task to separate them as the quality was not above the average and a lot of them were very close together. He found the winners dogs in the Dial Kennels' Spanker Dial and winners bitch in E. F. Bender's Silent White Joy. The latter took the best of winners, but stood no show in the ring against R. M. Lewis's crack champion Boltonia Barrier for best of breed, which was best of winners at New York.

Buccaneer in Fine Shape.

H. H. Stewart of Ardmore, Pa., sent in his great home-bred bull terrier Buccaneer, winner at New York, Newark and New Haven, and he never showed in better form. He sailed right through open and winners dogs to best of winners and best of breed.

There was also an upset in Great Danes, in which Mr. and Mrs. James E. Whitin's Great Pal Hector II, best at New York, was decisively beaten in the open class by Eric Chancellor, owned by Lewis Castle, local exhibitor, which went through to best of breed.

Among the Sealyham dogs there was a reversal when Mr. Warren put the Shelterfield Kennels' Brash Beau as winners dogs. He had been no better than fourth in open in New York.

Best of the bitches was the same owner's Delf Dryad, which was reserve last week to Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Brown's Rawnsley White Lady of Pinegrade. This was an exact reversal and Delf Dryard went to best of winners, but had to bow with the others to Pinegrade Perfection—her name aptly describing her, she being just about perfection of Sealyham type and in wonderful show form today.

Heavy Chesapeake Bay Entry.

There were twice as many Chesapeake Bay dogs benched as in New York, the sturdy breed having a considerable number of enthusiasts hereabouts. Anthony A. Bliss of New York, who won best of breed in the Garden with Busy E., was beaten by a ten-months-old puppy, bred on Cape Cod by W. Hall Quinn, named Water Devil. This is a youngster of great bone and substance, which would be almost perfect if a little bit shorter in the fore face.

The Quinn candidate, Cheequa Topsy, was the best of the bitches, beating her kennel mate, Buffs Girl, best of breed at Baltimore. The latter is only fourteen months old and should show great improvement in another year. Cheequa Topsy is a heavy bitch with a fine front and showed finely. She is the dam of the winning puppy, Water Devil.

West Makes Début as Judge.

George S. West of Chestnut Hill made his début in the ring today as a judge in his specialties, greyhounds and Airedale terriers. He has always shown before, but was prevailed upon to give his services and did a most satisfactory piece of work with both breeds. Mr. West's own lovely home-bred greyhound bitch, Gamecock Daisy White, which was best of breed in the Garden, of course was not shown, and he found the best of the breed here in Lansdowne Scotch Laddie, which Warrior easily beat in New York.

Mrs. B. F. Lewis of Lansdowne, Pa., is the owner of this old timer, which was in good form and showed a nice shoulder and fine feet. He showed to better advantage than the Longue Vue Kennels' Venton Fairy of Longue Vue, winner's bitch, a very nice specimen, although a bit light, the dog taking best of breed.

Airedales were nearly as numerous as in New York and they were a fine lot. Among the puppies the judge found a very nice one in Atokad Splendid Sinner, owned by D. H. Preston of Castlewood, S. D., which went through to reserve winners. He has a good body and nice ears and was put down in fine coat. He was reserve to the New Jersey crack, Willinet Warrior Bold, best of breed at New York, and should improve greatly with age.

Jennie's Pride Is Best.

As in the Garden, James F. Manning of Philadelphia showed the winning bitch in Jennie's Pride. She showed very well and it was a fairly close battle with the dog for best of breed. The judge found the bitch a little light through the middle piece but better in ears than her rival. The dog was in better coat and scored in feet and in all-around Airedale quality.

Bayard Warren of Pride's Crossing had a splendid lot of Sealyham terrier, including most of the stars of last week, and he made a fine impression on the fanciers, finding his dogs quickly. Pinegrade Perfection, the popular winner of best in show in New York last year, came into her own again here, winning best of breed, as she did in the Garden last week. This beautiful Sealy was put down in wonderful show form and did not have a great deal of difficulty in triumphing over her opposition.

The 1,000-yard mark of 2:11, which was set by Ray Conger in Kansas City last Saturday night when he administered the first defeat in two years to Lloyd Hahn of the Boston A. A. will not stand as a new world's record, according to the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union. The rules provide that "there must be a border of boards, rope, cement or other material around the track." Lloyd Hahn arrived in town yesterday and disclosed that there was no border of any kind.

Hahn reiterated that Conger fouled him and said that pushing him off the track was not the offense which made him call Conger a bad sportsman. This occured about fifty yards from home and knocked him off his stride, Hahn asserted. He climbed back on the track and set out for Conger, who had taken the pole. Hahn said he caught up with Conger and attempted to pass him on the outside. Conger then swung to the outside, according to Hahn, and blocked his way, again throwing him off stride. This was within twenty yards of the finish, and Hahn said he would have made another attempt to pass were it not for his fear that the same thing would occur.

Hahn said the track was a temporary one such as was installed in the 102d Engineers' Armory for the I. C. A. A. A. A. games, but he felt confident that Conger had traveled the 1,000 yards and that the time of 2:11 was correct. Hahn, who for most of the race led until the pushing incident occurred, said he was traveling at an exceptionally fast rate. He believed the time would have been better than 2:10 if staged on the Madison Square Garden track.

Hahn said that he probably would start in the K. of C. games against Conger and Peltzer at a mile. He stated, however, that he would not run in the national championships on Saturday.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 20 (AP).—Three of five stop watches used in the Kansas City A. C. C. meet here Saturday night caught the flat time of 2:11 on Ray Conger, Illinois A. C. flash, when he defeated Lloyd Hahn, Boston A. A. star, in a special 1,000-yard race and lifted one of Hahn's 2:12 4-5 world's records, Reedy Campbell, head timer, announced today. A fourth watch recorded 2:11 1-10. A fifth watch was a second slower, but this one was inaccurate, said Mr. Campbell.

CASEY WINS ON ICE WHEN POTTS FALLS

Bill Casey won the two-mile race, the feature event at the Brooklyn Ice Palace last night, in the seventh annual carnival and races of the Brooklyn Ice Palace Speed Club. Allen Potts, national champion, led for the greater part of the race, but on next to the last lap he slipped and fell, Casey going on to win by two feet from Fred Druman. Steve Hula was a close third.

The feature woman's race, a half-mile event, was won by Miss Elsie Muller, who won pretty much as she pleased from Miss Olga Fischer, who was second, and Miss Lee Bertsche, who was third.

Interest was keen in all the races, and so numerous were the entries that every event had to be run in heats.

Mack Says Offer to Play With Athletics Is Final.

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP).—Connie Mack, who arrived here last night to prepare for his club's Spring training, announced today that he has made Ty Cobb a final offer to play with the Athletics during the coming season and is waiting for the famous outfielder to accept or reject it. All of the Athletics have returned their signed contracts with the exception of Sam Hale, third baseman, Mack said. The first squad of pitchers and catchers, under Kid Gleason and Ira Thomas, is due here Wednesday.

M'GRAW SEES GIANTS TOIL IN THE RAIN

JACKSON TO BE CAPTAIN

Calls at Hot Springs and Accepts Post—Harper Also Comes to Terms.

By RICHARDS VIDMER.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 20.—John McGraw took his first look at the potential pitching staff of the New York Giants this afternoon and found it all wet. That doesn't necessarily mean that he was dissatisfied. It was purely an atmospheric condition. In other words, it rained.

A little wind, a little snow and a lot of cold weather have not been able to stop the Giants, though, and rain was no more successful today. Between showers the quad worked out at McKee Field, but it was a short and slippery session.

After half an hour of pepper games, warming up exercises and a little batting practice McGraw called a halt to the activities. Incidentally, there was a real hitter on the field. Little Mel Ott, who came along with McGraw yesterday, had his first workout with bat and ball, and calamities are expected almost any day. He caught hold of one of Lee Meagum's fast balls today and made it faster, driving it right back at the pitcher.

Jackson and Harper Arrive.

The baseball germ is evidently reaching out to far places. Ott couldn't wait until time to report to the Giants at Augusta, but had to come along to join the batterymen here.

This morning Travis Jackson and George Harper blew into camp, unable to sit home and read about their teammates throwing a ball around.

Harper, who came to talk over the terms in his contract, brought Jackson with him. Jackson brought a young outfielder named Fincher.

After a long session with McGraw it was announced that Harper had agreed to terms. There is the approval of Charles Stoneham still holding up the actual signing of the outfielder, though.

Jackson was informed that he could have the captaincy of the Giants if he wanted it. He said he did. Stoney got married during the Winter and thinks that he can use $500 extra in one way or other.

Harper and Jackson returned to their homes tonight, but said they would return for a week-end visit next Saturday, bringing Mr. and Mrs. Bill Terry with them. The next time we look up we may find the whole Giant squad here and that it is unnecessary to go to Augusta at all.

Fincher Highly Touted.

Fincher, the young outfielder Jackson recommended, is only 19 years old, but, according to his sponsor, has the making of a great player. Fincher was in Hendrix College when Jackson picked him up and started talking professional baseball to the youngster. Now Fincher's ambition is to be a big leaguer. McGraw is going to look him over when the team assembles in Georgia.

With Harper and McGraw in accord on terms, the only contract problems with which the Giants are faced are those connected with Vic Aldridge, Jess Doyle and Pat Crawford. Aldridge is expected to bring his signed document with him when he reports. Doyle is a rookie pitcher who probably can be convinced. Crawford's signing denends on what he shows after reporting.

Crawford is a coach at Guilford College, in North Carolina, and, though highly recommended, cannot make up his mind whether to become a big leaguer or to stick to coaching. McGraw is going to look him over in Augusta and advise him about his future.

PIRATES IN CAMP; TWO CLUBS ON WAY

YANKS SIGN KOENIG FOR 2 YEARS MORE

IS PAYING OWN EXPENSES

Barrow Books Twelve Exhibition Games During Playing Season to Keep Athletes Busy.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Mark Koenig, the sprightly young shortstop of the Yankees, has signed a two-year contract. Waite C. Hoyt, pitcher of the Yanks, hasn't signed any contract—one-year, two-year or any year. He is still a holdout, but an extraordinary type of the species, for he is boiling out earnestly at Hot Springs and paying his own way. Such was the news from the Yankee headquarters yesterday.

Hoyt is so intent on getting into the proverbial pink that he is defraying the not inconsiderable expenses of his Arkansas excursion. If there were a players' union, Waite probably would be suspended for conduct unbecoming a member. It simply isn't being done, this business of a ball player paying his own training expenses. It may set a bad example for younger athletes.

Yanks Not Worried.

Nobody seems to be worrying greatly over the Hoyt rebellion from the Ruppert yoke. In the due course of time he will sign a contract, the Yanks will reimburse him for his Hot Springs expenditures and everything will be rosy, with Hoyt ready to pitch when the bell rings. The Brooklyn lad is showing a lot more sense than some of his fellow-holdouts.

The signing of Master Koenig did not come from Edward G. Barrow, but it was admitted by him under pressure. The two-year contract, we are informed, was suggested by the Yankees, who think rather highly of their young shortstop.

It is a queer thing, but Master Koenig did not find himself until one day in Baltimore two years ago when he attempted to sock George Herman Ruth on the chin. Ruth had been ragging the kid during an exhibition game, and when Mark finally flared up and rushed at the Babe strong men were needed to hold Koenig back.

Made Overnight.

Strangely enough, from that day on Koenig improved steadily. Thitherto he had been a nervous, gloomy, easily discouraged lad who took every one of his mistakes to heart and brooded over them. He became morbid and lacked self-confidence, and seemed headed straight for the minors—and then he swung at the chin of Mr. Ruth. Presto, change! Koenig was made overnight.

And now Mark is one of the best young prospects in the majors. It is our guess that Lyn Lary or Jimmy Reese or both will have a tidy time trying to displace their fellow-citizen from the Coast.

Fearful that the Yanks might get soft and indolent from lack of work, Professor Barrow has kindly arranged twelve exhibition games during the next playing season. If the race is hot, the September games will be omitted, otherwise the Yanks will exhibit their three-ring circus in the following villages:

April 15, Baltimore; May 3, West Point, N. Y.; May 16, New Haven; June 1, Toronto; June 18, Toledo; June 25, Johnstown, Pa.; June 26, Harrisburg, Pa.; Aug. 8, Albany; Aug. 28, Providence; Aug. 29, Hartford, Conn.; Sept. 13, Columbus, Ohio; Sept. 14, Indianapolis.

WINS 3 OF FIRST 4 SETS

Soutar, 2-to-1 Favorite, Beaten 6-5, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, at Philadelphia Racquet Club.

LARGE SUMS CHANGE HANDS

Invader Now Being Heavily Backed to Clinch Match, Which Will Be Resumed Tomorrow.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—The rivalry of the tennis courts between France and the United States was renewed here today on the scene of the Tricolor's first triumph in the Davis Cup last year and with ominous signs of the passing of another championship across the sea. This time, however, it was not on the lawn tennis courts of the Germantown Cricket Club that the action took place, but in the concrete area of that ancient of kingly games—court tennis.

With a large gallery of notables looking on from the dedans, the upper recesses and the side galleries, Pierre Etchebaster, holder of the French professional court tennis championship, captured three of the first four sets of his challenge match with Jack Soutar for the American professional title at the Philadelphia Racquet Club to the confusion of the form experts, some of whom were quoting odds of 2 to 1 against the invader. The scores were 6—5, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4, and the match lasted two hours and a quarter.

The match is to be decided by the best seven out of thirteen sets, and as a result of his magnificent showing today Etchebaster is a pronounced favorite to capture four out of the nine more sets, if that many are needed for a decision.

Sentiment Changes Completely.

There were not a few here who expressed the belief after the opening session that the match will come to an end on Wednesday, when four more sets will be contested, and that it will be unnecessary to continue the play on Saturday. The switch to Etchebaster reflects a remarkable change of sentiment that has taken place in the past month.

Before his arrival here it was the general belief that Etchebaster stood no chance with the blond little Scotsman, who wrested the title from Walter Kinsella in 1925, and no one could be found to back him. Once he began his practice sessions, however, and the grace and perfection of his classical strokes had made an impression, Etchebaster's stock began to rise. It did not rise high enough, though, to make him an even-money choice, and so implicit was the faith of Soutar's many admirers in the invincibility of their favorite that they readily offered odds, which in some cases were as high as 2 to 1.

Thousands of dollars were wagered on the outcome of the match, both by the backers of the two players and in private, in addition to the side bet of $1,000 each between the principals, one of the few made at even money. This afternoon, following the play at midday, one prominent local club man offered $2,000 to $1,000 that Etchebaster would win.

Until he retired in 1926 and gave up the national amateur championship that he had held for twenty years Jay Gould of this city was looked upon as the greatest player in the world, and he had proved his right to that title by defeating George F. Covey of England, the present world's champion. The strength of Gould's game lay in his floor shots, aside from the remarkable effectiveness of his railroad service.

After today's play the opinion was expressed that Etchebaster is as great a floor player as Gould ever was, and Kinsella, who has been training the swarthy little Frenchman, goes even further. He declares that Etchebaster has a better floor game than any man he has met, and he has met all the masters, including Gould, Covey, Soutar, Tom Pettit and Punch Fairs.

Gould Congratulates Frenchman.

Gould was among the spectators in the dedans today, ruling on service, while John W. Appel of New York acted as referee, and after the match he warmly congratulated Etchebaster, declaring that he had played magnificently. That was praise indeed, and the wiry little Frenchman, who wears the chanticleer on his sweater and a Basque beret in the manner of Jean Borotra, deserved it.

Soutar, a terrific hitter who plays for the openings, acted as a perfect foil for Etchebaster. Here were the exponents of two entirely different styles facing each other across the net, one exemplifying the classical European school and the other standing for the American.

Soutar, boasting the ball to the side wall and hitting with fearful wallops straight for the dedans, the grill and the winning gallery, threatened at the outset to sweep his opponent off his feet with the sheer power and speed of his attack. But Etchebaster, ridding himself of his nervousness after falling behind at 2-4 in the first set, equaled the storm with the magic of his soft, elusively placed floor shots, and by the end of the second set Soutar was fairly winded from his exertions in covering court.

Etchebaster, while he seldom "laid" on the ball as did Soutar, not only placed his shots with baffling strategy but laid so much twist on the ball that his opponent found it treacherous to stroke. The ease and apparent lack of effort with which the challenger played were in decided contrast to the energetic efforts of Soutar, who was continually scrambling pell-mell from one side of the court to the other, and as Soutar is the older man of the two (he is 42 and Etchebaster 38), the strain told on him more than it did on the invader. Etchebaster stated after the match that he did not feel in the least fatigued.

In respect to service the challenger was decidedly the superior, scoring aces frequently and forcing Soutar to make defensive returns. He was also the steadier of the two, largely because the titleholder had to hurry many of his strokes or dig them out of the corners. Soutar was the more accurate in finding the dedans and grill and scored far more times into the openings, though Etchebaster was content for the most part to play the floor and set the most difficult chases for his opponent.

Had not Soutar been so magnificent a retriever those floor shots would have brought about his demise much sooner than they did. Some of the champion's sets were almost miraculous, but he paid dearly for them in his expenditure of energy.

In the first set Soutar led at 4—2. Etchebaster took the next two games after they had both gone to deuce several times, volleying the champion's blazing strokes stanchly, and after losing the seventh game at love carried the next two for the set. In the second set Soutar again took the lead at 3—2 and was twice within a stroke of 4—2 at 40—15 and 40—30. The loss of that game witnessed a slowing up in his play, and Etchebaster, cutting down his strokes with heart-breaking accuracy, took the next three games for the set.

Soutar Fights Grimly.

Undismayed and fighting on his nerve, Soutar struggled ahead at 4—2 again in the third chapter as Etchebaster failed to press his advantage. The Frenchman won the seventh game in spite of Soutar's placements to the tambour and tied the score at 4—all. Soutar's two rifle shots into the dedans decided the ninth and he took the set as Etchebaster lost chase worse than the second gallery.

In the final set Soutar rallied to pull up from 0—2 to 4—2, finding the dedans three times in succession in one game and earning most of his points on placements. But by this time he was badly spent, and Etchebaster, setting himself to his task, frustrated the hopes of the champion's adherents by taking four games in a row to end the play.

TILDEN IS THE BEST IN U. S., COLLOM SAYS

ALSO SUPREME IN DOUBLES

As Partner of Hunter He Is 'the Dynamo of Greatest Doubles Combination in World.'

By The Associated Press.

Samuel H. Collom of Philadelphia, President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, is anxious to have the nation present a unified front in the coming tennis campaign and in employing practical measures calculated to promote harmony in the tennis family, particularly so far as the Davis Cup campaign is concerned, Mr. Collom is in the happy position of having the confidence of the "old guard" of the U. S. L. T. A., as well as the close friendship of the tall gentleman of the courts, W. T. Tilden 2d.

As he has outlined his Davis Cup program for The Associated Press for the benefit of those who may be concerned about his policy, Mr. Collom makes these two salient starting points:

1. The recognition of the fact that Tilden is the main reliance of the playing forces; that he is far and away the greatest American singles performer, with no younger talent ripe enough to replace him and as a partner of Francis T. Hunter is the dynamo of the greatest doubles combination in the world at the present time.

2. The formation of a Davis Cup Committee that will work harmoniously with Tilden, remove any sources of friction and push a campaign designed to put America's best foot forward this year, as well as to build up playing strength for the future.

This policy already has been put into effect by Mr. Collom's appointment of Joseph W. Wear of Philadelphia as Chairman of the Davis Cup Committee. Wear is a close friend of Tilden's and an "outsider," so far as the executive councils of the game have been concerned previously, although he also has been in intimate touch with the game. It is reasonable to suppose that Tilden was consulted in the selection of Wear.

In the past "Big Bill" frequently has been at loggerheads with the old Davis Cup Committee, and the ex-champion's decided views on tactics, training and team selection have provoked many a merry argument.

If some concessions may be made to Tilden's stand in the organization of the campaign this year it is also probable that "Big Bill" may bow to the association's wishes on the schedule of team play.

It is likely that Tilden, as well as Hunter will play through the entire American zone competition before going abroad for the finals. Mr. Collom hopes to convince Tilden that although the American zone finals will not be completed until early in June, he still will have sufficient time to go overseas and get into shape for the rest of the campaign.

YACHT RACE AGAIN HALTED.

HAVANA, Feb. 20.—For the third successive day the International Star Class races had to be declared off today because of heavy weather in the Gulf of Mexico. The northwest gale began on Saturday and was still going strong today, raising a heavy sea in which the yachts could not have lived. Today's scheduled race was the second contest of the series for the Mid-Winter Challenge Cup.

All of the postponed races will be sailed, if possible, following the conclusion of the regular program, which ends with a team race between American and Cuban boats on Thursday.

KID KAPLAN IN DRAW.

Crowd Disagrees With Verdict in Bobby Mays Bout.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 20 (AP).—Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, former featherweight champion of the world, fought a ten-round draw with Bobby Mays, New London lightweight champion of Connecticut. The decision was an unpopular one with the crowd of 6,000 that attended the bout and ringside observers gave Kaplan the edge in practically every round of the fight. Kaplan weighed 134, Mays 133½.

Mays, a lefthander, led cautiously with his port first and then fell into a clinch throughout the fight, tying up Kaplan, who pounded Mays heavily under the heart in the infighting.

Marseillaise Too Much for St. Moritz Band, Leader Blames Sparsity of French Victories

By The Associated Press.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 20.—Olympic winners in the Winter sports carnival just closed were crowned champions and received medals at an impressive ceremony in the St. Moritz Stadium last night.

Members of a brass band became breathless playing the Norwegian national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the national tunes of Sweden and Finland twice.

When the graceful Andrée Joly and the stalwart Pierre Brunet of France were called to the Presidential stand, the band struck up "The Marseillaise." An earbreaking, heartrending cacophony resulted. The spectators gasped, then smiled and finally guffawed.

"It has been so long since you won an Olympic event we had forgotten it," replied the Swiss-German bandmaster blandly.

2 NEW YORK STARS WIN AT RACQUETS

Pell Extended to Eliminate Pearson, 18-15, 15-8, 15-10, in National Singles.

MORTIMER DEFEATS COREY

Scores Easily in Quarter Final by 15-2, 15-5, 15-7—Bruce and Simpson Triumph.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 20.—Clarence C. Pell and Stanley Mortimer, New York stars, advanced in the national amateur singles championships when they won their quarter-final matches at the Tennis and Racquet Club here today. The other victories were by the two surviving English stars, each of whom will play one of the Americans in the semi-finals tomorrow.

Pell, present American champion, will oppose J. C. F. Simpson, the present British champion, and Stanley G. Mortimer, former American champion, will meet the Hon. C. N. Bruce, former British champion.

Three of the four players today triumphed in straight games. The only extra game matches developed when Simpson opposed Hewitt Morgan of New York and won 15—7, 8—15, 15—8, 15—10.

Bruce Wins Easily.

Bruce defeated A. S. Cassills of Montreal, 15—7, 15—2, 15—1, and the fact that the Englishman led 13—2 in the opening game showed how decisively Canada's best exponent of racquets was crushed by the player who is generally looked upon as an even favorite with Pell to win the American title.

Stanley Mortimer eliminated A. L. Corey, former Yale quarterback, who accounted for the only upset of the tournament by defeating Kemp-Welch, the young Englishman. Corey went down to defeat 15—2, 15—5, 15—7, Mortimer showing the same superb form that enabled him to defeat all three of the English visitors in the Gold Racquet tournament last week.

The defending champion, Pell, won from Stanley W. Pearson of Philadelphia, but the scores of 18—15, 15—8, 15—10, do not accurately convey the fight which Pearson put up.

Pell Extended to Win.

In the opening game Pearson led 10—4, and in the second game Pell saw a lead of 12—1 melt away when his opponent had a hand of 7. In the third game, Pell led 6 to 0, yet Pearson forged ahead to 7—6, and it was well for Pell that he was not far from the top of the game which has made him supreme except on two or three occasions in the past dozen championships in America.

The quality of the play in to-morrow's matches promises to attract more persons than have ever seen a racquets match in Boston. It marks the first time that these four men ever have met in our national championships and Pell will be striving to maintain the supremacy which he showed when he beat Simpson in the 1925 British championships and in the recent international series in New York.

Bruce and Mortimer met a week ago today in New York and Mortimer won in four games, but Bruce may turn the tables tomorrow.

Quarter-Finals—J. C. F. Simpson, England, defeated Hewitt Morgan, New York, 15—7, 8—15, 15—8, 15—10; Stanley Mortimer, New York, defeated A. L. Corey, New York, 15—2, 15—5, 15—7; the Hon. C. N. Bruce, England, defeated A. S. Cassills, Montreal, 15—7, 15—2, 15—1; C. C. Pell, New York, defeated Stanley Pearson, Philadelphia, 18—15, 15—8, 15—10.

FAVORITES ADVANCE IN CLASS C SQUASH

SUTPHIN DEFEATS CLIFFORD

Princeton Club Star Victor, 15-7, 15-2—Schermerhorn Beats Green by 15-2, 15-11.

The favorites continued to advance in the national Class C squash tournament at the City Athletic Club, as eight contestants, three of them seeded stars, reached the quarter-final round yesterday as a result of fourth-round victories.

Only two of the eight experienced any difficulty in progressing. The two were J. Wooley of the Yale Club and H. A. Mayer of the City A. C., who were extended to three games before winning.

The seeded players, L. S. Strasser of the Shelton, H. R. Sutphin Jr. of the Princeton Club and L. Green of the City A. C. had only one close game in the six they played.

Strasser was given a hard battle by A. Lanier, a clubmate, in their first game, which Strasser won, 18 to 17. This proved to be too much for Lanier, who dropped the next game, 15 to 2.

The other two breezed through in easy fashion. Sutphin triumphed over D. K. Clifford of the Harvard Club, 15—7, 15—2, while Green repulsed J. M. Schermerhorn of the Crescent A. C., 15—2, 15—11.

J. N. Hopkinson of the Princeton Club, who now is ranked with the seeded players since he eliminated one of them, B. L. Lawrence of Yale, in an early round match, advanced by disposing of G. W. Cobb of the Harvard Club, 15—9, 12—14.

The other four who are in the quarter-finals are Otis G. Stanton of Englewood, J. Wooley of the Yale Club, H. A. Mayer of the City A. C. and E. W. Bourne of the Yale Club.

The summaries:

Fourth Round—L. S. Strasser, Shelton, defeated A. Lanier, Shelton, 18—17, 15—2; E. W. Bourne, Yale Club, defeated J. P. Carey, N. Y. A. C., 15—6, 15—11; Otis G. Stanton, Englewood, defeated N. C. New Orleans Kindergarten Stakes Won by Maria Nash From Irish Holiday

MARIA NASH WINS THE KINDERGARTEN

IRISH HOLIDAY IS SECOND

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 20.—Maria Nash, a chestnut filly, captured the second running of the New Orleans Kindergarten Stakes at the Fair Grounds this afternoon, leading home the smartest field of juveniles that has gone to the post here this season. Showing fine speed and gameness under a hard drive at the end, the daughter of Sir John Johnson beat the Greentree Stable's Irish Holiday by a head, thereby earning $2,740 for the Palmdale Stable, in which colors she ran. The victory was a blow to those who backed Phil Reuter's Roy Gibson and, after considerable heavy wagering, installed him favorite at $2.93 to $1.

Starter Bill Hamilton had some trying moments with the field of fifteen that faced him but finally got the baby racers away in good order, Maria Nash breaking second to Caleta. Dubois, who had the mount on Maria Nash, put the filly down quickly, however, and she stepped to the front, gaining a good advantage in the first furlong of the four-furlong sprint, and then hanging on gamely to the pacemaking position to the end. Turning into the stretch Maria Nash had a comfortable margin and passing the furlong pole was half a length in front.

Filly Runs Gamely.

Georgie Ellis, who had the leg up on Irish Holiday, which ran coupled with Knickers as the Greentree entry, brought his mount up in the last sixteenth with a rush that for a moment threatened the filly. Maria Nash still had speed left and courage and, despite her impost of 121 pounds, withstood the challenge. Irish Holiday, which raced very greenly, hung badly in the last twenty yards. It was the first trip to the races for Irish Holiday. He finished a length and a half in front of E. F. McLean's The Okah, which saved the short end by a length from Woolorac.

Maria Nash ran the half mile in 0:48 3-5 and those who took a chance on this miss received $9.71 to $1. Irish Holiday paid $8.68 for $2 for the place and The Okah was quoted at $4 24 for $2 for show.

Huntsman Rewards Talent.

The day proved another hard one for the form players. Only one real first choice got home all afternoon, this being Huntsman in the sixth race. This number was the Floral Trophy, at a mile and a sixteenth. Huntsman beat Dimple Dunkie by a head, paying $2.68 to $1, while Dimple Dunkie was held at $2.97 to $1. The best-priced winner came across in the final race when Botch, a five-year-old mare, paying $27.53 to $1, beat Highland Chief, the favorite, by a length in the one mile and three-sixteenths' journey.

Color Sergeant, H. P. Whitney's five-year-old son of Pennant, and the favorite in the third race, the Yellow Cab Trophy, finished third, while the winner turned up in Break-O'-Morn, which finished a head in front of Doctor Streett. Color Sergeant closed with a rush after breaking in a tangle, but could never overcome this handicap.

The Celotex Trophy was another bad spot for a public choice. This one to go down to defeat was Fire On, which finished fourth in the one-mile-and-seventy-yard jaunt, the winner being Doctor Cardenas, quoted at $5.55 to $1. He took the measure of Wellet by a length.

The Fair Grounds stewards announced today that they still were investigating the running of Aregal here on Saturday and pending the outcome of this investigation would continue the suspension of W. S. Heaton, owner of the horse. The stewards also announced that all of the fees paid by the stable for stake engagements and nominations had been returned to the Heaton establishment.

M'CARTHY IS BEATEN BY GAINS AT TORONTO

TORONTO, Ontario, Feb. 20 (AP).—Larry Gains, Toronto, received the decision over Pat McCarthy, Boston heavyweight, in a ten-round bout here tonight. The verdict was not popular.

Gains's lead, taken in the early rounds, overcame McCarthy's showing toward the end, according to the judges, but the crowd failed to see it that way. Pat received one of the greatest ovations ever given to a losing boxer in Toronto as he left the ring.

The bout was a slashing affair, crowded with action, with the issue in doubt until the last moment. The fight will go down as one of the best heavyweight encounters ever seen in this city.

Gains was forced to open up and show his best wares to finish in front. McCarthy, outreached, outweighed, and considerably shorter than Gains, fought a gallant battle, and was always dangerous.

Octogenarian Trails Hoppe.

Willie Hoppe won the first block of his handicap match at the Strand Academy yesterday afternoon with the 80-year-old veteran, Byron Gillette, 60 to 38. They are playing in blocks of 60 to 45, Hoppe for 180 points and Gillette for 135. Yesterday's match required fifty-three innings. Hoppe had a high run of six and Gillette of five and four.

Weigand Wins Buffalo Bout.

HORVATH SCORES TRIPLE

The Trap Rock colt beat Marshall Field's Man o' War colt Field Marshal, a winner in his last start, getting the verdict by five lengths. Pellegrino, running in the silks of K. S. Cleveland, was third. The winner paid 4 to 1.

Horvath, who had the mount on The Dago, rode three winners, the others being Borcaratone in the third event and Hanky Rice in the fifth. NIMZOWITSCH WINS BERLIN CHESS PLAY

BOGOLJUBOW IS SECOND

BERLIN, Feb. 20.—Playing steady chess to the very end, and defeating his opponent in the thirteenth and final round, Aron Nimzowitsch of Copenhagen, third prize winner in the great New York tournament of 1927, finished first and captured the chief prize in the international masters' tournament concluded at the rooms of the Berlin Chess Society in Charlottenburg tonight.

The Danish representative wound up with a total score of 10-3, half a point better than that of E. D. Bogoljubow of Triberg, winner of the second prize. Nimzowitsch won, all told, eight games, lost only one and drew four. Bogoljubow, on the other hand, won seven, lost one and drew five, the extra draw costing him highest honors.

The third prize was won by Dr. S. Tartakower of Paris, who finished with totals of 8-5. As with the two leaders, he lost only once, but of the other twelve games he won only four and drew eight.

Three Leaders Win.

All three chief prize winners scored victories in the final round today, the play being unusually decisive, with only one draw recorded in the regular schedule and another in an adjourned game.

Curiously enough, Nimzowitsch, Bogoljubow and Dr. Tartakower suffered their only defeats at the hands of the same opponent—L. Steiner of Budapest. Notwithstanding this enviable performance, Steiner had to be content with a place just below the prize winners. Fourth prize went to Paul Johner of Switzerland with 7½-5½, and fifth to K. Helling of Berlin, 7-6.

At the first table, Bogoljubow defeated B. Koch of Berlin in a queen's gambit declined by means of a timely sacrifice in 32 moves. P. S. Leonhardt of Königsberg won from G. Stoltz of Stockholm in 52 moves, the latter adopting Alekhine's defense and losing a pawn.

Nimzowitsch Beats Ahues.

After winning the exchange in an English opening, Nimzowitsch scored against K. Ahues of Berlin in 31 moves. A. Brinckmann of Kiel drew an evenly contested Ruy Lopez with F. Saemisch of Berlin in 39 moves.

W. Schlage of Berlin won an irregular opening from Helling, who lost a piece in the middle game, after 30 moves. Richard Reti of Czechoslovakia missed a chance of being placed among the prize-winners by losing his last game to Steiner in a Ruy Lopez. Steiner captured a pawn and won in 32 moves.

Dr. Tartakower, adopting the Sicilian defense, scored brilliantly against Johner in 15 moves. The adjourned game from the twelfth round between Ahues and Leonhardt, a queen's pawn opening, was drawn in 58 moves.

LOMSKI KNOCKS OUT FRANCIS IN THE THIRD

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20 (AP).—Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen Assassin, lived up to his name tonight, his fight with Jimmy Francis of Jersey City being stopped in the middle of the third round by the referee to save Francis from further punishment.

Lomski tore into his man from the beginning and punched him all over the ring. Francis was soon groggy and went down for a count of nine in the third. He was in bad shape when the referee awarded the fight to Lomski. The Aberdeen battler weighed 170 pounds, Francis 164.

Benny Schwartz, Baltimore, 118 pounds, won the verdict from Pinkey May, Savannah, 120, in the 10-round semi-final. The Baltimore boy outclassed his rival and dropped him for a short count in the third with a right to the jaw. May was wobbly in the fourth and fifth, but Schwartz was unable to knock him out.

In the preliminaries, all six rounders, Arthur Flynn, 181 pounds, Boston, won from Charley Miller, 162, Philadelphia; François Sybille, 137 pounds, Belgium, won from Mickey Diamond, 135, Philadelphia, Jess Stringham, 163 pounds, Salt Lake City, stopped Stanley Farren, 160, Philadelphia, in the first round.

MISS ORCUTT IN TIE FOR FLORIDA MEDAL

She and Miss Van Wie Have 77s as Women's Golf Play Opens at Palm Beach.

MRS. HILL NEXT WITH 78

Was Ahead of Leaders at 17th Tee, but Fell a Stroke Behind on Last Two Holes.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20.—A par 4 on the eighteenth hole enabled Miss Maureen Orcutt, metropolitan titleholder, to tie Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago for the qualifying medal in the Florida golf tournament for women, which started today on the course of the Palm Beach Country Club.

Each returned a card of 77, one stroke better than the score made by Mrs. O. S. Hill, former Missouri State champion. They were the only ones in a field of sixty-eight starters to do better than 80.

Miss Orcutt, representing the White Beeches Country Club of Haworth, N. J., played consistent golf, while Miss Van Wie was erratic, being brilliant and mediocre in turn. The Chicago girl, who won the title two years ago, had three deuces on her card, but a 5 on the final hole cost her the medal. A play-off will be staged later in the week.

Miss Van Wie Has a 36.

The consistency of Miss Orcutt's game is best illustrated by the 38—39 she took. Miss Van Wie went out in 41, but braced on the incoming nine holes and clicked these off in even 4s for a 36, only two over the men's par for the route. The 6,100-yard course is very tricky, but despite this the two leaders showed an excellent selection of shots.

Mrs. Hill was in front of the field going to the seventeenth tee. At that stage she was a stroke ahead of both Miss Orcutt and Miss Van Wie; but on the last two holes she needed nine strokes, while Miss Orcutt and Miss Van Wie were taking seven each.

Besides Miss Orcutt, five other players from the metropolitan district qualified for match play in the first sixteen. This list included Miss Beatrice Gottlieb of the New York Golf Club, who won three tournaments in Florida last Winter. She had 47—44—91, against the 92 of the sixteenth player to qualify.

PURDUE QUINTET SETS BIG TEN SCORING MARK

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 20 (AP).—Purdue University's basketball quintet set a new high scoring record for the Big Ten this season here tonight when a 55-33 count was run up on the University of Michigan five. Purdue was off to an early lead and was in front at half time, 31 to 16. The winner swept down the floor to cage numerous under-the-basket shots.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Feb. 20 (AP).—Wisconsin scored another Big Ten victory tonight, defeating the University of Iowa quintet, 31 to 21. Wisconsin's guarding and floor work was superior to that of the losers. Wisconsin led at half time, 16 to 6.

Thomas New Haverford Coach.

HAVERFORD, Pa., Feb. 20.—Roy Thomas, former University of Pennsylvania baseball star and coach, was today appointed head coach at Haverford College, succeeding Bill Haeffner, who has left to join the Pirates at Paso Robles, Cal. Haeffner was reinstated to organized baseball last week after being out since 1921.

Sports of the Times

SPEAKING of fights, the opportunity of a lifetime is slipping away. A great fight is about to go to waste through lack of spectators. Some enterprising promoter should get a huge glass tank, fill it with comparatively warm water, insert in the water one white shark, and then recall Mr. Van Campen Heilner from the Bahamas and invite him to dive in and begin operations.

As matters stand now, Mr. Heilner is on his way to fight one or more of the white shark (Carcharodon carcharius) species in Bahama waters, which is just the same as invading the Dempsey Hollywood bungalow and attacking the Manassa Mauler in his own den. There will be comparatively few spectators at the shark fight because the ringside seats will be ten feet under water, and there is no guarantee that the shark won't slip through the imaginary ropes and foul some innocent bystander.

But it's a shame that such a rousing battle should be wasted. With no possibility of getting good gate receipts under water in the Bahamas, there is little money in it for Mr. Heilner and practically none at all for the sharks, win, lose or draw. But think of the crowd at $22 tops that such a fight would draw at the Garden, the Polo Grounds, the Yankee Stadium or at Signor Humberto Fugazy's proposed new arena.

A Logical Contender.

In case the Sharkey-Risko and Delaney-Heeney battles are disappointing affairs and produce no outstanding challenger for Tunney's title, perhaps Mr. Van Campen Heilner, weight not specified, will return and enter the heavyweight elimination contest as a logical contender.

There's money in it for him if he does. And certainly the man who picks the dusky shark (Carcharodon obscurus) as a sparring partner and the white shark (Carcharodon carcharius) as an opponent could have little to fear in a combat with Jack Delaney (Ovila Chapdelaine) or Jack Sharkey (Josef Paul Cuckoshay). Incidentally, it appears that sharks have as many names as prizefighters.

Of course, Mr. Heilner is to debate with the sharks under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History and principally for scientific purposes. But his interest in science need not keep him from the prize ring. Many of our very best fighters are deeply interested in the arts and sciences.

There's James Joseph Tunney, for instance, who is to appear at Yale University in the guise of a lecturer on Shakespeare. There's Fidel LaBarba, who left the ring to pursue higher education through the halls of Stanford University. There's Paul Berlenbach, who plays the saxophone, and another boxer—name forgotten for the moment—who wants to draw down at least one good purse so that he may go abroad and study painting.

And there are several ex-fighters who would be delighted to become affiliated with the American Museum of Natural History in any capacity, even in the comparatively unscientific capacity of night watchman.

But in the meanwhile a good fight is going to waste. If the white shark refused to come North for a battle in the Garden or the Yankee Stadium, Mr. Heilner, who seems to fear no kind of shark, might be induced to battle a pool shark (Tenball sidepocketus) or even a loan shark (Homo horribilis). Something should be done about it.

The Bruising Bruins.

The Rangers were bumped off the top of the American sector of the hockey league by a team that specializes in bumping. This is said without any intention of discrediting the Boston Bruins, who did the bumping, for bumping is an integral and exciting part of that riot on ice known as hockey.

The crowded house for the Boston-Ranger collision is an indication of the serious way in which New York has taken to this speedy sport. Three years ago most of these fans didn't know a left wing from a shin pad. Now they become involved in bitter arguments over the relative merits of John Ross Roach and Roy Worters as goalies, or the poke-checking abilities of Frank Boucher and Nels Stewart. They razz the referee with enthusiasm. They are learning fast.

A month ago it seemed that the Canadiens, far out in front and easily the fastest team on the ice, would romp off with the Stanley Cup and the Prince of Wales Trophy in the post-season play-offs. Now sentiment is divided, and the Boston Bruins have had something to do with this division.

The point about the Bruins is that they have a team that will give and take a terrific battering and still keep going. The Canadiens are faster than the Bostonians, but also more fragile. The Rangers might be placed somewhere between these two teams, not quite as fast as the Canadiens and not quite as sturdy as the Bruins.

Rough Going.

Perhaps the Rangers, combining the best qualities of these other contenders, will come out on top, but there is a premium on durability in the play-offs, and the Bruins are the "durable Danes" of the ice.

It will be remembered that the Back Bay Bumpers didn't appear so formidable through the early part of last year's campaign, but they walked through the play-offs in their own sector and gave the Ottawa Senators a rousing argument in the final round for the Stanley Cup. They can stand the shock of battle about as well as any team in the league, and the shocks in the post-season scramble are high powered.

It's the old question of speed versus strength. Not that the Bruins haven't a fair measure of speed or that the Rangers, Canadiens, Senators and Maroons lack considerable strength, but that the outstanding quality of the Bruins is strength and the principal ingredient in the Canadiens' attack is speed.

Listening to the booing the Boston players get at the Garden when they spill one of Lester Patrick's fast forwards or one of Shorty Green's weak backs, one might think they were a horde of criminal malefactors specialising in beating up honest citizens, but, of course, that's a mere matter of uniform. The home player who spreads an enemy skater all over the ice is a hero. And the enemy skater who dumps a home player on his ear is a blinking roughneck. This is the only rule that holds good in all sports.

SCHOLARSHIP CUT BEATEN

By The Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 20.—Paid season football coaches will be permitted to hold membership in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference, representatives of the colleges decided today at a special meeting here. Dickinson, Franklin and Marshall, Gettysburg, Muhlenberg and Ursinus are members of the conference. Previously these coaches were barred.

Scouting of conference teams was prohibited under a special ruling passed today, but scouting of non-conference teams will be permitted if a non-scouting agreement has been offered to and refused by a non-conference college.

"Professionalism" among conference colleges was construed to refer only to the sport in which professional participation occurred and to render an athlete ineligible for competition in that sport only.

A resolution offered at a previous meeting by Dean Howard R. Omwake of Franklin and Marshall College, to reduce the number of eligible football players receiving scholastic aid in excess of $100 from twenty-two to sixteen was defeated.

The conference recommended membership in the Eastern Association of Football Officials and the appointment of officials by Walter R. Okeson of Lehigh.

Present at the meeting were Dr. John W. Clawson, President, and W. W. Bancroft, Ursinus; Wallace L. Robinson, Secretary, and Howard R. Omwake, Franklin and Marshall; C. E. Billheimer, Gettysburg; Dr. C. W. Prettyman and W. R. Hitchler, Dickinson; Guerney H. Afflerbach and A. C. H. Fasig, Muhlenberg.

The annual conference cross-country race will be held at Dickinson on Oct. 27, 1928.

PENN COACHES TO STAY.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—Chairman Sydney E. Hutchinson of the University of Pennsylvania football committee announced today that the same coaching staff headed by Lou Young, which has served five years, would tutor the Red and Blue 1928 eleven. Dedenneville Bell, backfield coach, and J. R. Ludlow Wray, line coach, will again be Young's assistants.

Prior to the Penn-Brown game last Fall, Lou Young signed a two-year contract for 1928 and 1929, but his assistants had been in doubt until today. The coaching staff of Young, Bell and Wray has been at Pennsylvania since 1923 and during that time the Red and Blue teams have won 34 games, lost 10, and tied two.

Northwestern Football Men Report.

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (AP).—More than two score candidates answered Coach Dick Hanley's call today for Spring football practice at Northwestern University. Track sessions have been scheduled and calisthenics are also on the program until the squad goes out of doors in March.

MANHATTAN DEFEATS ST. FRANCIS, 31 TO 27

After Manhattan had led, 31 to 14, in the second half of its game with St. Francis College of Brooklyn at the Manhattan gymnasium, St. Francis rallied to bring the score to 31 to 27, before the closing whistle cut short whatever hopes they had of winning last night's game. This was Manhattan's thirteenth victory in sixteen games.

This being the last game in preparation for Saturday's encounter with Fordham, Coach Muller used practically every man available. Captain Dan Horan was kept idle on account of a bad cold, although he was ready to be used if necessary. It was announced last night that there would be no possibility of Neil Cohalan playing against Fordham, since it has been found that he has a fracture of his right leg.

Manhattan seemed to look upon the game in the light of an experiment and frequent substitutions were made, there even being shifts of entire teams at a time. The Jaspers got off to an early lead and were ahead, 20 to 11, at half time. With Maloney showing the way to the scorers Manhattan increased its total to 31, while holding St. Francis to three points.

Then the Brooklyn team went on a scoring streak. Garvey registered a foul, Greene a basket and Unsino another basket. Dugan counted with a foul and Unsino netted one from the field. Greene made a foul and as he scored from the court he was fouled again. The basket counted and Greene immediately caged a pair from the foul line. The Green quintet then braced and managed to hold the visitors scoreless for the remaining seconds of the game.

YALE AND HARVARD IN BASEBALL DRILLS

Twenty Report to Coach Wood for First Workout—Hoben May Be Unable to Play.

THIRTY ON CRIMSON SQUAD

Ten Veterans Listed Among Battery Men—Barbee Heads Veteran Pitching Staff.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 20.—Coach Joe Wood started twenty Yale varsity baseball candidates at work in the Cox Field gymnasium this afternoon. Clyde Engle, freshman coach, reached here this morning and said that he would call out the 1931 candidates March 3.

Johnny Hoben, varsity catcher last year, may be unable to play this year, inasmuch as his shoulder, injured in football, still troubles him.

Absentees who have been asked to report were Bragonia, reserve infielder; Phillips, substitute outfielder; Pallapan and Morton, freshman outfielders last year; Vaughan, third baseman, and Karl Billhardt, infielder. Bill Pardt will join the baseball squad when the basketball season closes.

Today's squad included Pitchers Sawyer, Smith, Flaherty, Loud, Rudd and Garvey; Catchers Foote, Mallory, Brockelman; first base, Caldwell, Schmidt, Drummond and Cheney; second base, Brown and Quimby; shortstop, Grove and Aldrich; outfield, McClellan, Hammersley and Schwartzberg.

Thirty Report to Mitchell.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 20 (AP).—Harvard baseball got under way today when thirty battery candidates reported to Coach Fred Mitchell in the new Briggs cage on Soldiers Field. The new cage will permit regular infield practice when the rest of the squad is called out in two weeks.

With a nucleus of ten veterans Coach Mitchell's immediate task will be to develop a catcher to replace Henry Chauncey, last year's veteran backstop. The leading candidate, Jim Dudley, last year's freshman captain, may be unable to play. In that event Johnny Prior, a first baseman, may be converted to a catcher. Jake Turner, football centre; Bobby Glidden, a hockey player, and Steptoe, last year's second-string receiver, are other possibilities.

Jack Barbee, beginning his third year as a varsity hurler, heads the pitching staff. Dick Ketchum, Frank Cutts and Willie Howard also are available as veteran material, while Babe Larue and Walter Hardis are up from last year's freshman squad.

Bill Lord at first base, Everett Donaghy at third and Ralph Sullivan at shortstop are veteran infielders, while the outfield will be built around Captain Howie Burns.

HARVARD CUBS SET DATES.

The schedule:

Oct. 6, Andover at Andover; 13, Exeter at Exeter; 20, Worcester Academy; 28, Dartmouth Freshmen.

PLANS TO DRILL MONDAY

Eric Lambart, whose absence from school and rowing practice had been causing considerable worry among Columbia rowing supporters for the past two weeks, registered at the Morningside Heights institution yesterday, but will not report for rowing drills until late this week at the earliest.

Lambart arrived in this city early yesterday morning and lost no time completing his registration. When the varsity crew reported to Coach Richard J. Glendon in the afternoon for work on the rowing machines Lambart was an onlooker.

Physicians who attended Lambart when he underwent an operation for the removal of his tonsils while in Chicago, a week ago yesterday, have advised the captain and stroke of last season's championship eight to postpone his reporting for practice for a few days. Lambart has lost considerable weight and is not in the best of condition. Coach Glendon, however, expects that Lambart will be ready to take part in his first workout by next Monday.

One change was made in the first varsity crew yesterday. Bill Blesse, stroke of the 1927 freshman eight, was shifted from No. 3 to No. 5 and Bill Lightbowne was sent back to No. 3. Blesse has been showing up well in the indoor drills. He is one of the heaviest men on the squad and Glendon wants him in the waist of the shell.

Lightbowne has rowed at No. 5 for the past two seasons. He was on the championship freshman crew in 1926 and with the varsity last year.

PENN CREWS WORK OUT ON SCHUYLKILL RIVER

Callow Sends 3 Boats Through Earliest Red and Blue Outdoor Drill in Years.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—With a frigid gale from the west sweeping down the Schuylkill, Coach Russell (Rusty) Callow boated his University of Pennsylvania oarsmen for the first time late this afternoon.

This was the earliest outdoor workout for the Red and Blue crews in many years, the customary start being made on Washington's Birthday. Callow followed in his coaching launch and did not wear an overcoat.

The first eight was stroked by Armstrong, who made a favorable impression in the Fall rowing. Captain Fred Gentsch was at No. 7; Henry Lange, No. 6; Brill, a newcomer, No. 5; John J. Weis, from last year's freshman eight, No. 4; Roth, another newcomer, No. 3; Sinnamon, from last year's freshman second crew, No. 2, and John C. Minihan, bow of the 1927 freshman eight, at bow. J. W. Hamilton was coxswain.

HARVARD IS FAVORED TO WIN TRACK MEET

Dartmouth and Cornell Also Have Stars for Triangular Games at Boston.

BOSTON, Feb. 20 (AP).—Harvard, Dartmouth and Cornell meet in their tenth annual indoor triangular games here Saturday night. Each college has taken the title three times. Harvard is favored to win.

Harvard's mainstays include Art French, who has conquered Al Miller, in the sprints; Al O'Neil in the 600 or 1,000 yard runs, and Reid, Wildes, Flaksman and Luttmer in the distance runs.

The Dartmouth team has stars in Captain Monty Wells and Al Marsters in the hurdles, Jeff Glendenning in the sprints and Swope in the 600.

The events will include a 40-yard dash, 45-yard high hurdles, 300, 600, 1,000 yard runs, one mile and two-mile runs, running high jump, running broad jump, pole vault, shot put, 35-pound hammer-throw and a one-mile relay race. There also will be a 40-yard dash and team race for freshmen, which will not count in the point score.

For the first time in the history of the meet the games will be held at the Boston Arena, rather than on the small Mechanics Building track. Keen competition is expected on the new twelve-lap oval.

Amateurs at Friars Club Tonight.

Tommy Lown, national welterweight champion, and George Hoffman, national light-heavyweight champion, are among the leading amateurs who will compete in the amateur boxing bouts tonight at the Friars Club. Entries have been received from many of the other amateur leaders in the Metropolitan District and a lively set of bouts is promised.

"THE PRESIDENT'S POLICIES."

Secretary HOOVER, in announcing his Presidential candidacy, committed himself positively to carrying out the policies of President COOLIDGE. Just at present a Republican Congress seems bent on carrying out those policies only in order to bury them. A comparison of the measures recommended by Mr. COOLIDGE with the action upon them thus far taken by Congress shows a wide divergence between the Capitol and the White House. The President's plans for tax reduction have been thrown overboard. His recommendations regarding Mississippi flood relief have been trampled upon. The farm bill which he vetoed, and must veto again if it is presented to him, has been favorably reported to the Senate. As respects the naval bill, it has to be admitted that the President's trumpet has given an uncertain sound, so that no one appears to know exactly what he favors today; but it is evident that his mind does not travel with the Congressional on this subject. With the session of Congress half over, we have the astonishing spectacle of a Republican President intimating that he will be compelled to veto the chief legislative acts of a Republican Congress.

The Washington correspondents naturally comment on this surprising rift in the Republican lute. One of them records the immense disappointment, as well as surprise, of Republicans who chance to visit Washington and confront the evidence that Congress seems prepared to go against every one of the President's major policies. These are reported to be highly popular throughout the country. Hence the wonder and resentment of the ordinary member of the Republican Party who finds that Congress appears disposed to take the bit in its teeth and ride roughshod over Mr. COOLIDGE. This necessarily strikes the "rank and file" of the party as almost incredible and disastrous. Especially, as is pointed out by the Washington correspondent of The Sun, does it seem to the party "workers" in various States to be big with calamity. They, to be sure, think in terms of votes, not policies. But they see votes in the Coolidge policies. These they would like to annex, not necessarily for the election of a successor to President COOLIDGE, but for the sake of their own minor candidates in cities and counties. Presidents are all very well, but they do not to the small party boss begin to compare in importance with Mayors, District Attorneys, Judges, Sheriffs. To elect these officials often requires a big push from national politics, but what is feared today, with Congress and the President at odds, is that this national impetus will be lacking for the local party tickets.

Another Republican worry relates to the election of the new House of Representatives and the new Senate. The present House has a nominal Republican majority of nearly forty, which would be comfortable enough if it would hold together. But it does not. Rebellious members of it have frequently coalesced with the Democrats in order to defeat regular Republican bills—even the official Administration measures. In the Senate the lack of party discipline has been even more notable. Eighteen Republican Senators broke away for the purpose of voting for the anti-third-term resolution, which was distinctly understood to carry an implication hostile to Mr. COOLIDGE. These repeated demonstrations of the want of loyalty, or at least of solidarity, on the Republican side of the Senate cannot improve the chances, which otherwise might seem good, of making Republican gains in the election of the next Senate. It will not be possible to use the slogan of standing by the President's policies for the sake of retaining, or enlarging, Republican control of a Senate that has done everything it could to discredit and defeat them.

President COOLIDGE himself has not changed. His popularity has not visibly declined. Congress has not heightened its own prestige by refusing to follow him. But for the present his policies, which Mr. HOOVER declared have contributed so greatly to the country's well-being, appear to be hung up at Washington between heaven and earth. Perhaps party pressure may yet lead a Republican Congress to see the need of taking them down and trying to live up to them.

THE FIFTEENTH AMENDMENT.

If the movement in the first Illinois District to send a negro Congressman to Washington in place of Representative MADDEN is successful, he will, it develops, be a man with a mission more serious than a mere emphasis of the presence in Congress of a member of his race. It is the observance, as the American negroes see it, of the Fifteenth Amendment which is to be his cause. The manager of one of the candidates has stated it forcefully as follows:

> The issue of paramount importance is not whether the Eighteenth Amendment should be enforced, but whether or not the necessary legislation shall be enacted to make the Fifteenth Amendment effective in spirit and letter. It is my firm conviction that lynching, peonage, jim-crow cars and disfranchising would shortly disappear if every citizen was protected in the exercise of his franchise. This right would not be denied if deprivation of representation in Congress would be the unfailing penalty of such denial.

This manifesto has aroused Mr. MADDEN'S negro constituents to such an extent that many candidates of that race are in the field—so many, think the Chicago political reporters, that they will split their own vote, and make it possible for Mr. MADDEN to go back. But if they were to apply to their enterprise the same solidarity with which they support the white bosses of Chicago, the next Congress might find in its ranks a citizen whose political opinions will be even more distasteful to the South than his color.

RACING MOTOR CAR SPEED.

"There is no limit to speed," said Captain MALCOLM CAMPBELL, after driving his Blue Bird motor car over the Daytona Beach course 206.95 miles an hour. What he had in mind was that no one could predict how long his new record would stand. When crossing the line on the first part of his run, with a strong wind behind, his speed was 220 miles an hour, according to the tachometer. Just about a year ago Captain CAMPBELL established a record of 173.32 miles an hour on Pendine Beach, Wales. A month later Major SEGRAVE, another English driver, broke it with a speed of 203.792 miles an hour. Any day an American, an Englishman, a Frenchman or an Italian may eclipse Captain CAMPBELL'S record. The kind of car in which it may be done is indicated by his remark that a compromise of the American streamline type with a small, high-power motor and his own "mystery" design would be full of promise.

What we may be sure of is that the airplane, with no ground resistance, will always set the pace. There must be a limit to speed in both cases, in the strain-resisting metal machine and the endurance of the human machine. It is well known that the aviator banking at turns in high speed competition suffers from dizziness. The driver of the motor car feels that he is made of flesh and blood when the least thing goes wrong during a race. He is in mortal terror of skidding. Striking a "bump" in the sand at Daytona, "for a moment I thought I was gone," says Captain CAMPBELL. He dreaded jumping from the course with spectators densely packed along it. The aviator is not so likely to have attacks of "nerves." His risks in racing are less.

If we go back twenty-one years, 106 miles an hour was considered a "miracle" of speed for the automobile, but the courses were not so smooth and hard in those days. By comparison the cars were huge and the engines bulky. There were no lines of beauty. Wind resistance was not so intensively studied. The motor used in Captain CAMPBELL'S car at Daytona Beach is similar to that with which the British Schneider Cup plane was fitted. As little resistance to the air as possible is offered by a whale-like nose, and at the tail is an anti-skid fin. As LOCKHART, the American driver, says, "big power plants are not necessary for speed." The racing car motor is compact. LOCKHART may have a surprise in his engine. Tires are built to withstand disintegration of the rubber by heat friction. Water is pumped through the jacket of the engine to prevent dangerous combustion. Even the wheels have streamlines. In experimenting with designs to lessen resistance the wind tunnel is used. In brief, the racing car of today borrows from the airplane.

When it comes to long-distance racing, the automobile can almost hold its own with the airplane. At Paris on Sept. 27, 1927, a car was driven 3,000 miles in 26 hours and 31 minutes, at an average speed of 113.067 miles an hour. Three drivers were used. As a sport, motor-car racing draws enormous crowds. Last Memorial Day 145,000 persons saw the annual 500-mile race on the Indianapolis Speedway. Airplane races cannot be made so attractive.

THE HAVANA CONFERENCE.

The meeting of the Pan-American States has adjourned in an atmosphere of general though not universal good-will. It is no paradox to say that the lack of complete unanimity is one of its achievements. It testifies to the frankness with which the intervention issue was debated. Before the conference met it was widely predicted that the influence of the United States would be exerted to stifle all discussion of Nicaragua and the Caribbean. The predictions were belied. The steamroller was not called into action. Mr. HUGHES was the very first to mention Nicaragua, and our Latin-American critics availed themselves of what was almost an invitation. International conferences have one of their greatest uses as a public forum. If "some bitterness" survived Saturday's dramatic debate, as THE TIMES correspondent observes, it would be the temporary sting of defeat and not the rancor that would have followed upon a denial of free speech.

As a result of open debate Latin America and the United States are both on record with regard to intervention. It is shown in the first place that Latin America is not a unit. Three-fourths of the southern republics either expressed no interest in the intervention problem or sided with the American delegation. Among the greater number of Caribbean republics, on the other hand, our policies have evoked a strong feeling of fear and resentment. These are the concrete facts which it is reasonable to assume Washington in the future will take into account. Our own position, in turn, has been clearly defined. We have refused to subscribe to unconditional non-intervention as a proposal which has no basis in international law and which would inevitably be nullified in an emergency. At the same time we have formally disclaimed, in general terms and for Nicaragua specifically, any aims at aggrandizement. We have made it clear that the surest guarantee against our intrusion upon the Caribbean States is for these States to manage their affairs without imperiling American lives or legitimate American interests.

The factual results at Havana are three: reorganization of the Pan American Union, a beginning in codification of international law and the first step toward the establishment of compulsory arbitration, which is to be further considered in conference at Washington next year. In this last enterprise lies the opportunity for a sober and fruitful approach to the intervention problem such as the Argentina-Salvador formula at Havana did not supply. Mr. HUGHES, in his speech on arbitration, laid stress on claims commissions and permanent joint commissions as agencies for the maintenance of good relations. Claims commissions may be expected to dispose of many issues which, if neglected, lead on to complications and interventions. A permanent joint commission suggests, in the very word "permanent," the principal difficulty in the Caribbean. If the troubled republics could develop a national agency immune from the vicissitudes of domestic politics and strong enough to pursue a consistent foreign policy, there would be fewer emergencies leading to intervention.

MINE WORKERS' EDUCATION.

Compulsory education for the youth of the land is being supplemented by voluntary education for adults. Many thousands of young men and women who left school at the earliest age permitted by law are seriously considering further studies. They are part of the new movement for adult education. Once they were told that after 21, or at best 25, they could not hope to learn much more. Now they have the assurance of psychologists that people well past middle age may go on successfully with the study of new languages, new ideas and new manual training. The last issue of The New Republic has a section devoted to the general subject of adult education, which contains an article by TOM TIPPETT, who tells of his experience in organizing an educational program for the coal miners of Illinois.

It is rather more surprising to hear of the avidity with which his pupils took to books than is the case with workers in other lines. Often the students who take correspondence courses or seek the well-planned help of certain libraries are training themselves in order to advance through improved technique. They have definite courses to pursue, paths which have been beaten out for them by students and teachers in schools. The Illinois coal miners merely knew that they wanted to study, without much idea of what or why. Their new director, who had a few pamphlets dealing with workers' education, both here and abroad, was almost as much at a loss. He found that the terminology of the class room confused and alienated his charges. Economics, sociology, social problems were meaningless words.

Determined to harness the curiosity and energy he found waiting, he began a course called a "Story of the Workers of the World." That was in the Summer of 1923. Uninterruptedly, without change of name or subject, the study went on until the strike of 1927, which disorganized all union activities. Egyptian slaves under the Pharaohs were the first workers studied. Then came Greece, Rome, medieval Europe, and finally the American Colonial period. From that point the classes stuck to America, pausing long enough to consider the conquest of Mexico. The wage system, the growth of trade unions and modern industrial methods were studied until all felt ready to grapple with problems of the present. Then came the strike, breaking up the educational program, which was resumed last month without outside leadership.

Social activities, plays, games and debates have been a natural outgrowth of the work. It was with a party that it began again. An eager student, the wife of a coal digger and the mother of six children, wrote to the former director that he was greatly missed, but that "we mean to do our best." Such an experience as this in Illinois is sufficient answer to the question whether workers want education.

CONGRESSIONAL ETHICS.

Influence at the national capital is a subject of perennial interest and controversy at Washington. It has many ramifications, running the gamut from the corruption of a public official, wholly sinister, to the innocent pleadings of reformers who have at least the best intentions in the world. The oil scandals served to draw public attention to the subject again. Lately a number of Senators have seized upon the activities of the "power lobby" Senator JOHNSON likes to inveigh against to urge restrictive legislation. A bill introduced by Senator CARAWAY, requiring lobbyists to register and account for all their expenditures, has now received the approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee. If it becomes a law, amateurs and reformers will find themselves listed side by side with members of the "Monday Lunch Club," frequented by many of the professional lobbyists.

Vice President DAWES brought out another aspect of this matter during the recent debate on the proposed power inquiry. He asked to be relieved from the duty of appointing the members of the committee, on the ground that he was himself financially interested in a number of utility companies. To prevent the illicit use of this kind of influence Senator FRAZIER of North Dakota has introduced a bill requiring Government officials to file with the Federal Trade Commission a complete list of their investment holdings. This will probably prove a bit too inquisitorial for his conservative colleagues in the Senate and the House, particularly as they and their wives are included in the scope of the measure. But it calls attention again to a problem that faced Congress and Congressmen long before the days of Teapot Dome. During a tariff debate in the early days of the Wilson Administration, when the cotton schedule was up for consideration, Senator LIPPITT of Rhode Island, himself a cotton miller on a very large scale, made his usual plea for a high rate. Senator WILLIAMS of Mississippi retorted that Senator LIPPITT was advocating a measure which would put money into his own pocket, and read into the record this excerpt from JEFFERSON'S venerable Manual of Parliamentary Procedure:

> Where the private interests of a member are concerned in a bill or question, he is to withdraw. And where such an interest has appeared, his voice has been disallowed even after a division. In a case so contrary, not only to the laws of decency but to the fundamental principle of the social compact, which denies to any man to be a judge in his own cause, it is for the honor of the House that this rule of immemorial observance should be strictly adhered to.

Senator LIPPITT, however, insisted that he was speaking in the interest of the industries of New England generally. In 1911 the late Senator LA FOLLETTE made the same sort of charge against Senator SMOOT of Utah, who was arguing in favor of the notorious "Schedule K," containing the rates on wool. "It is an outrage against common decency," Senator LA FOLLETTE declared, "that any member of the United States Senate should vote to represent his own interests, personal or pecuniary." The Old Guard Senator replied that his entire interests in wool were represented by his ownership of $2,475 worth of stock in a woolen mill, which never paid over 3 or 4 per cent., and that he did not own a "single head of sheep." Congress is usually disposed to trust the honor and judgment of the individual member in such cases. Obviously the rule cannot be interpreted too strictly. If all the farmers and near-farmers in the Senate and House were to be prohibited from voting on legislation affecting farms, for instance, there would be nobody left to support the "farm bloc's" program.

Naturally the Supreme Court must be especially careful to avoid the slightest implication of private bias in deciding the cases that come before it. Some of the Justices have a simple device for handling the matter automatically. They make a list of all their security holdings and file it with the clerk of the court—Peerless Bath Tub Company, 10 shares; Smith Machinery Company, 20 shares; Johnsville Railroad Company, 100 shares, and so on. Then when some case is called which concerns any of these companies, even remotely, the clerk simply hands up to the Justice a little slip, saying, "You own 19 shares in the Triplex Milling Company," or whatever it may be, and the Judge steps out.

THE PHANTOM PLUNGER.

> I'll drink no more. Macbooze shall drink no more.—"The Bootlegger's Tragedy."

Dull people prattle about dull Sundays. To the seeing sociologist eye marvel unfolds itself perpetually. Ponder for a moment what was happening a little after 7 P. M. last Sunday. A young garage workman stands outside the shop smoking a cigarette and dreaming of things to come. He can never have dreamed what he heard and saw coming. On Ninety-fourth Street police whistles are blowing with the sound of many winds. Yells of wonder and alarm fill their pauses. The deep murmur of a motor grows ever deeper and nearer. What is this portent rushing along Ninety-fourth Street? A car eating up at least sixty miles an hour, titubating symbolically. The doors, all open and flapping, attest the spiritual freedom of the driver.

And who is he? To the eye, no reckless youth, but much like CHARLEMAGNE or BARBAROSSA waiting till his beard grows through the table. Long and white is his beard, a bottle of Scotch ale shooting downward. He is bent like some old tree, the secular sport of tempests. His hands are gnarly like an old tree's branches. His eyes dim the headlights and burn holes in the road rods ahead. His hat is the color of brown October ale. In spite of the symbolic swaying of his chariot and the frequency of thank-you-ma'ams, he keeps his steering wheel true. He knows where he is going. He is going on the drink again. The garage sociologist, other eager observers and Policeman ZIPP mark and follow his descent over the coal dock and into the barge.

They see "a small red light burning." Does that indicate the position of the car's rear or of CHARLEMAGNE'S nose? A skipper whom nothing surprises goes down into the hold, whence he leads back the charioteer with the long flowers of foam pendant from chin and cheek. The stupendous ancient seats himself on a lumber pile, so recalling, if our theory be correct, his arboreal origin. Instead of keeping watch on this wonder, this evident god, the silly spectators go to look for the "other" passengers, as if this were an ordinary machine, guided by a no more than human chauffeur. When the geese come back, the bearded divinity is gone.

As pupils of Sir JAMES FRAZER, we are bound to hold that this bent, gnarly and full-foliaged appearance is a Tree Spirit; and, specifically, the Varnish Tree, whence the bootleggers and the speakeasiers get their rum. It seems rather arbitrary to assume, as some scholars do, that he is Rip Van Winkle waking up to take a survey of prohibition. That he is Time, trying to beat his record, is rather a romantic than a scientific explanation. Somewhere in the Hercynian Forest he is writing an apology to the owner of the Long Island vehicle which he borrowed for this outing. He can't come again too early and too often; and we beg the prohibition agents to do their utmost to search and seize him.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Peccavis and Peccaries.

Legend became science, while science relapsed into legend, in yesterday's newspaper. The Hesperopithecus haroldcookii was conceded to be only the tooth of an extinct Nebraska wild peccary, but a West Texas horned toad was found alive, though sealed in a court-house cornerstone for thirty-one years.

West Texas does not believe in evolution and has always been doubtful that the tooth found in the ancient river-bed of Nebraska—Mr. BRYAN'S own State—was actually part of the feeding equipment of a "missing link." During the six or seven years that the American Museum of Natural History has been slowly receding from its belief in the tooth, West Texas has clung to its view about the indestructibility of horned toads. The present one, with "its mouth grown together," but already winking and breathing in the window where it is "on exhibition," survived without food, air, water or light only 31 of the 100 years which West Texas knows is its real endurance test. But West Texas is entirely willing to put the horned toad back in the cornerstone for another sixty-nine years, confident that he will blink, breathe and be "on exhibition" again at the end of that time.

On the whole, it was a bad day for science, if you think in terms of victories and defeats, and a good day for legend. On the other hand, Professor HENRY FAIRFIELD OSBORN and his colleagues can snatch consolation from the extinct jaws of the toothsome wild peccary. For science, as this incident shows, demands proofs even from its most exalted. Nothing ever went through so many tests as this peccary molar from Nebraska. It survived them all, but then science went digging in the ancient river-bed again. And there it found teeth exactly like this one attached to the skull of an obsolete peccary. After which the whole business was "on the hog."

Hunting the Hunters.

Add bootleg venison to the crimes charged against the automobile. An inspector from the State Conservation Department had no luck tracking hunters in the north woods. They all said deer were as far as possible from their thoughts; they were after rabbits. To be sure, they were mostly carrying high-powered rifles, but then rabbits are so thick-skinned these days!

So the inspector took a new tack. He had his men stop the cars coming down the State road and look them over to see if they were illegally transporting venison. The first night he nabbed nine lawbreakers. He thinks his activities set a wholesome example.

In reporting this incident the Conservation Department notes the inspector's observation that the kill of deer in Franklin, Clinton and Essex Counties was very light this year. He is afraid that the herd was depleted by the severe Winter of 1926. That is bad news, for nature lovers as for hunters. With an even break in weather and law enforcement there should be no difficulty in maintaining the herd.

Questions of Privilege.

Those restless moments in the House of Representatives which follow the chaplain's prayer are given over to statements "on the ground of personal privilege." When a member gets the attention of the Chair on that demand, every one settles back languidly, shortly to discover whether it is a reporter, an editor or another politician whom the indignant Congressman is about to rebuke. Once in the House Mr. MACON of Arkansas referred to a very surprised reporter as a "wart," and challenged him to personal combat, with fists, fingernails and teeth.

A couple of days ago Representative EATON of New Jersey had an unusual grievance, and the manner in which he stated it won him those most-prized brackets, "Laughter and applause." He related how he had, the night before, addressed an electrical league; and how in The Washington Post of that morning he found his remarks headed as follows: "Congress Power Critics Brutes, EATON Says."

Mr. EATON assured his colleagues that he never thought of Senator WALSH of Montana and other critics of the power industry as brutes. He is opposed to "political investigation of any industry," but he would not call a Senator a brute. The House listened with its usual interest thus far, but Mr. EATON drew the appreciative laughter when he referred to the "moronic interpretation" of the headline.

The House always laughs at phrases like this: it is perhaps the most easily amused body in the world; the risibles of children at a movie are much harder to deal with. "Moron" to the House has seemed a very funny word since the membership was reassured that it had no evil connotation. Particularly do the members like to apply it—and also "polecat"—to newspaper men. For other politicians they reserve such words as "my honored adversary," and prefer to say, not "he lies," but "he has resorted to disingenuous argument."

What Price Wild Animals?

If any child who has made a thrilling trip to the Zoo were asked how much he thought all those animals were worth, he would probably hazard a million dollars. Judged by the pleasure and the wonder he has felt, the Zoo is worth to him an unthinkably large sum. Even a grown-up visitor would be inclined to place its value at a high figure. But in fact, the total value of the animals in the London Zoological Gardens is estimated at a modest $175,000, according to a recent inventory.

As for the financial rating of the various beasts, neither popularity nor prestige determines this. The animal worth the most is not the lion, that king of the jungle, but the Indian rhinoceros, which is valued at $5,000. A lion is worth no more than a good radio set, $250, while a tiger comes twice as high. A fearsome python is simply so much yard goods, to a practical stock-taker, for he is valued according to his length.

If prices were based on the audiences attracted, the highest figures would be set on the solemn comedians of Monkey Hill, or on the big bears who hold their admirers spellbound as they frolic and fight and splash about the pool in their quarters.

A Lindbergh Memorial.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The map showing the route of Lindbergh's Pan-American flight suggests that a fitting memorial of his great accomplishment be erected at the point of contact of the outward and return routes, to the north of Birmingham, Ala.

Would not this suggestion appeal to our Latin-American friends whom Lindbergh has brought closer to us in understanding and good-will? T. E. WARD.

MOUNTAINS AND VALLEYS.

When from the inner paradise
A boundless rapture burns my eyes,
When all the melody of Earth
Shall predicate my soul's new birth,
Then comes the time I must rehearse
My joy to God's vast universe.
But when my soul's dull murky sky
Sees ghouls and demons flitting by,
When all the sorrows men can feel
Twist round my heart a band of steel
And turn my very flesh to stone,

ANTON ROMATKA.

SCIENCE AND SOCIETY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with great interest in THE TIMES of Feb. 19 the editorial "Science and Study," which has reference to my John Fritz Medal address. Evidently this editorial is based upon the incomplete reports of my remarks which appeared in the daily papers, for it attributes to me opinions and conclusions which are quite the reverse of those which I expressed. My true position is made clear by a few quotations from what I said.

After asserting the indispensable character of all communications, electrical and otherwise, in the evolution of a future inconceivably powerful social organism, I said: "Whether these communications shall be employed in peaceful, constructive cooperation, or whether they shall be used to engender conflict and confusion, depends upon man himself.

"Already the applications of science to human affairs have far outrun the ability of man to use them wisely. The engineer has provided agencies of incalculable value in time of peace, but they are also endowed with prodigious powers of destruction which can be loosed in time of war. Unless we solve the problem encountered in man himself the outlook is dark indeed, and it may even be questioned whether our civilization will endure.

"Human behavior presents the most important and the most formidable problem of all the ages. Its solution can be achieved only by profound and prolonged researches, which shall bring to bear upon every phase of the subject all of the resources of science.

"While, in such a consideration as this, it would be folly to ignore the claims of religion and philosophy, it would be a grave error to conclude that, in order to avoid disaster, we must restrict progress in the application of science to material things. On the contrary, we must accelerate progress in all the sciences, for the knowledge thus gained will be required in preparing the individual man to function as a sane and peaceful unit in the ultimate social organism.

"Scientific research in our universities and elsewhere, conducted solely for the increase of knowledge, should receive more adequate financial support, so that it may be prosecuted with ever-increasing vigor. If this is done I believe that in the fullness of time, by further scientific discoveries, the physical development of man will be improved, that many diseases will be entirely eliminated, and that immunity to the others will be achieved, and that feeble-bodiedness and feeble-mindedness will disappear. Thus will be removed some of the greatest barriers to social progress."

My address foreshadows the coming of a social organism "with its million-minded knowledge and power, to which no barrier will be insurmountable, no gulf impassable and no task too great." Indeed, my argument supports your own conclusion, which is also mine, that "Science carries within it not only the seeds of its own destruction, but the seeds of its own salvation." JOHN J. CARTY.

DEPLORE HOSPITAL CLOSING

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The intention to close the New York Infirmary for Women and Children, located at Second Avenue and Fifteenth Street, has just come to my notice.

I would like to raise a voice in protest against any such action. A newcomer in your city, I was taken to this hospital for treatment. I was there five weeks and the excellent care and attention I had there was comparable to any hospital in the city, I am sure.

It was my first experience with women as physicians. I had a great deal of curiosity about them and perhaps observed them more closely for this reason. I was much impressed. I came away with a deep and abiding respect for them: first, for their ability in their profession and, next, for their ability as a staff to maintain such a well regulated institution as this hospital.

MARY LOUISE WIEDER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With surprise and concern I hear the New York Infirmary for Women and Children must close next July unless sufficient funds are raised to support it.

For many years this hospital on East Fifteenth Street has maintained its reputation for giving the finest care and treatment at a minimum cost to those who could ill afford hospital fees.

More than that, it has been the one place where women physicians might have an opportunity to study and practice the higher forms of medicine and surgery.

Does it not seem more than a pity that the people of the City of New York should let such an institution pass? Just what is going to take its place? JACQUELINE OVERTON.

The "Engineers for Hoover" Boom.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Chairman of the newly organized New York Engineers' Hoover Committee is quoted in THE TIMES as saying that virtually all the members of the engineering profession in the country would support Herbert Hoover for President.

Without slighting Mr. Hoover in the least, it should be made clear that this claim is somewhat exaggerated. Engineers perhaps fully realise that a man of their calling should make as good a President as a lawyer or a doctor or a college professor. We have had in that exalted seat farmers and tailors and soldiers; so why not an engineer?

But nobody—hardly anybody—voted for any of these past Presidents because they happened to be of the same vocation as themselves. So why should anybody imagine that engineers would be prejudiced in favor of Mr. Hoover? In my humble opinion Secretary Hoover would have to make the same sort of appeal to engineers as to the rest of the citizenry—an appeal based on his well-known personality and his unique record.

MAPS PLAN TO CURB AMBULANCE CHASER

HEARINGS START MARCH 19

Aid of the Public and the Bar Is Requested as Justice Formally Opens the Inquiry.

Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel formally opened yesterday the investigation ordered by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the First Department of the "ambulance-chasing" evil. The Court heard the purposes of the inquiry recited by Isidor J. Kresel, who has donated his services as chief counsel at the request of the three bar associations of New York and Bronx Counties, and adjourned the hearing.

Mr. Kresel, accompanied by Assistant United States Attorney Robert E. Manley, who has been loaned by United States Attorney Tuttle to aid in the inquiry, and members of the three bar associations appeared before Justice Wasservogel in the court room of Special Term, Part 6, of the Supreme Court. Mr. Kresel announced that he accepted the appointment as chief counsel to act without compensation during the many months that the inquiry is expected to consume because he regarded it as a public duty, and asked that the investigation be considered a "necessary inquiry into a real evil."

Warns of Danger in the System.

The attorney enumerated the charges made against ambulance-chasing lawyers in the petition to the Appellate Division which brought about the inquiry, and said that "the whole system carries in its train perjury and subornation of perjury, is fraught with danger to the community and has tended to undermine the confidence of the public in the administration of justice." Mr. Kresel said that the Appellate Division order naming Justice Wasservogel authorized the Court to go into every phase of the situation, to develop the facts and then report to the Appellate Division, after which that Court will "mete out such punishment as the circumstances may require and adopt such rules as may be calculated to make impossible a continuance of this disreputable condition."

In asking for general public support of the inquiry, Mr. Kresel said: "We want to hear from plaintiffs who claim to have been imposed upon. We want to hear from casualty and transportation companies who claim to have been mulcted, and we want to hear from attorneys who have been engaged in the prosecution of personal injury cases who claim that the charges against them are unfounded. We welcome any assistance that may be rendered by the newspapers.

Pledges Wide Investigation.

"We anticipate no obstructing tactics from any quarters. If any should develop, we believe your Honor's powers are ample to overcome such attempts at obstruction. The whole power of the judicial system will be used in getting the facts which the Appellate Division has directed us to develop. The Court understands that before any public hearings can be had much preparatory work must be done, and that will take considerable time. If in the course of that preparatory work we should meet with any obstruction from any quarter, or if any witnesses should prove to be recalcitrant, we shall ask the Court's assistance."

Mr. Kresel suggested that pending the completion of the preparatory work the Court fix March 19 as the day for the first public hearing, with the understanding that an earlier date may be selected if the progress of the investigation warrants it. Mr. Kresel appealed to the bar for volunteers to aid in the investigation.

Walter Damrosch was reported "much better" last night at his home, 146 East Sixty-first Street, where he rested in bed by advice of his physician and neighbor, Dr. Henry S. Patterson, of 130 East Sixty-second Street. Mr. Damrosch had conducted a part only of the New York Symphony Orchestra's programs last Saturday in Brooklyn and Sunday in Mecca Hall, yielding the baton to René Pollain when he felt too ill to continue. Eugene Goossens, English composer and conductor of the Rochester Symphony Orchestra, was invited yesterday to assume Mr. Damrosch's post for the New York Symphony's programs this week, including a concert performance of "Tristan" on Thursday afternoon at Carnegie Hall and on Sunday at Mecca Hall, as well as the Young People's Symphony Concert on Saturday.

Each student must sign a pledge before voting, or competing for office, the Principal said. The pledges were divided into three parts, as follows:

"1. I am familiar with the Board of Education by-laws in regard to secret societies in schools.

"2. I am not a member of a secret society nor pledged to one, nor do I intend to join one while a member of this high school.

"3. I know that to revoke this pledge means the loss of a graduation diploma from this high school."

The election of officers will be held Friday, Dr. Snyder said, and between 400 and 500 students are to be placed in some official capacity by election or appointment for athletic, social and scholastic activities.

DOUBTS GIRL IS ANASTASIA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—An Englishwoman has asserted that she could easily recognize the Grand Duchess Anastasia by means of a birthmark. She is a Somersetshire woman, Miss H. Eagar, who told The Daily Sketch today that she served before the war for six years in the nursery of the Russian royal household. Judging from published photographs and descriptions of the woman, who is now in America, Miss Eagar said she felt convinced that this was not the Princess Anastasia.

"Princess Anastasia," she said, "had gray-blue eyes, but this girl has black eyes. This girl has black hair while Princess Anastasia had light brown hair like that of Queen Alexandra. From the cradle, Princess Anastasia spoke three languages, English, Russian and French. This girl spoke only Polish or Lithuanian, and while Anastasia was brought up in the Greek Church this girl blessed herself in the Roman fashion."

EDWARD BURGESS BUTLER.

Wealthy Dry Goods Man and Artist Dies in California.

Known as an art connoisseur, Mr. Butler announced in 1914 that he was retiring from business to devote himself to that field. He had presented previously to the Chicago Art Institute a collection of Inness landscapes valued at more than $150,000. He was known as a painter, and a year ago a prize-winning canvas entitled "And Then It Rained" was claimed by him after he had identified himself as "Mr. Ruble," the name signed to the work. The $400 prize was promptly turned over to the Butler scholarship fund for young artists.

Mr. Butler made his home here. Shortly after leaving Chicago on Feb. 1 a mild cold turned into pneumonia, which caused his death. Funeral services will be held at Pasadena, it is reported, owing to the ill-health of his widow.

EARL OF ERROLL DIES SUDDENLY

SCOTLAND'S HIGHEST PEER

Descendant of William II and Godson of Victoria—Noted for His Charm and Tact.

COBLENZ, Germany, Feb. 20 (AP). The Earl of Erroll, British High Commissioner on the Interallied Rhineland Commission since 1921, died suddenly last night of heart disease, aged 51.

The Earl of Eerroll, formerly Lord Kilmarnock, who succeeded to the title on the death of his father last year, was the twenty-fourth Hereditary Lord High Constable of Scotland, and by virtue of this office, conferred by Robert Bruce in 1315 on his companion in arms, Sir Robert Hay, the Earl took precedence over every peer and dignitary of the Kingdom of Scotland. He was of royal blood, for his great-grandmother, wife of the seventeenth Earl, was Lady Elizabeth Fitzclarence, natural daughter of William IV and the actress, Mrs. Jordan, known on the stage as "Dolly Bland."

The Earl was a godson of Queen Victoria and a favorite of King George and Queen Mary, who often invited him to Balmoral. He had been in the diplomatic service since 1900 and was noted for his tact and charm. On the resumption of relations with Germany after the World War, he was appointed Chargé d'Affaires at Berlin, remaining there as chief British representative until the arrival of the Ambassador. Thereafter, until 1921, he was Counselor to the Embassy.

During the greater part of the World War the Earl, then Lord Kilmarnock, was stationed in Stockholm and his able performance of his task there has been credited with helping prevent the court and military party drawing Sweden into the war on the side of Germany.

The Earl wrote several plays, among them "The Dream Kiss" and "The Anonymous Letter," both produced in London, and a novel, "Ferelith."

'BEAVERBROOK' GETS TEN-YEAR SENTENCE

Swindler of Women Also Faces Five Years More for Once Violating Parole.

CALLED A SHALLOW POSER

Court Hears That He Made Only One Truthful Statement in the Weeks He Was Questioned.

Robert Whitman, who has many police aliases, including "Lord Cornelius Beaverbrook," was sentenced to ten years in Sing Sing yesterday by Judge Allen in General Sessions for swindling Mrs. Rose Burken of Freeport, L. I., out of about $75,000 in furs and jewelry.

When Whitman arrives at Sing Sing, probably next week, he will find awaiting him an order that he must serve an additional five years for having violated his parole in 1922, when he was serving a term of from two to nine years for having robbed two women in 1917.

Whitman was convicted of the Burken theft several weeks ago, after a trial in which Mrs. Virginia Martin, formerly of the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D. C., told how he had swindled her out of about $35,000. That was a few weeks after the theft from Mrs. Burken, a grandmother, whom he met in a flirtation at Broadway and 110th Street in 1925.

Used Thefts as Gifts.

He presented $10,000 of Mrs. Burken's jewelry as engagement gifts to Mrs. Martin, whom he met at an exhibition of paintings at the Shoreham and married soon thereafter.

He had told Mrs. Martin that he was a representative of the British Government on a secret mission and that he used a fictitious name to conceal the fact that he was "Lord Beaverbrook." Since his arrest in the Burken case, the real Lord Beaverbrook came across the man on a visit to the Tombs.

When he ran off with Mrs. Martin's money on the day of their marriage, she learned that the jewels he had given her belonged to Mrs. Burken, and she returned them to her. Whitman had gone to Chicago, where he induced a Mrs. Hoffman to desert her husband and go with him to St. Louis. Here he was arrested on the husband's complaint.

He put up $25,000 of Mrs. Martin's money as bail, but disappeared on his release, pending a hearing. This money is impounded, and "Beaverbrook" is vying with Mrs. Martin to recover it. He bobbed up in Philadelphia months after the St. Louis arrest and robbed a Mrs. Florence Kemp of $6,000. For this he was sent to the penitentiary for a year, and on his release last April was brought back to the city and lodged in the Tombs, pending his trial on the Burken charge.

In vainly urging Judge Allen to set aside the jury's conviction, John P. Booth, "Beaverbrook's" lawyer, yesterday intimated he would appeal the case. While the lawyer was talking, "Beaverbrook" kept flicking imaginary dust specks from his form-fitting overcoat and stroking back stray strands of his light brown hair to cover a bald spot. His nonchalance faded, however, when Judge Allen read excerpts from the report of Edwin J. Cooley, Chief Probation Officer.

Report Denounces Him.

"For a dozen years the defendant has led the life of a swindler and charlatan," the report read. "He has become involved in an entangling tissue of falsehoods. The attitudes he assumes are palpable poses, affected and shallow. A confessed admirer of his mythical prototype, Baron Munchausen, discussions of himself and his past are replete with falsehoods, which become apparent through his own contradictions. Toward his present position his attitude is one of mixed resentment and resignation."

The report goes on to explain that while "Lord Beaverbrook" professes to be a university graduate, "his speech, replete with grammatical errors and marked by slovenly diction, might easily be mistaken for that of a poorly educated native of New York."

The probation officer declares that "Beaverbrook" made only one truthful statement in the weeks in which he was trying to obtain from him the story of his past, and that was that he has a wife and three grown daughters, whom he abandoned in Chicago before he began his swindling operations.

TWO DIE IN JERSEY FIRES.

One Man and a Crippled Woman Are Suffocated.

A man and woman were suffocated to death in two fires in North Hudson early yesterday morning. Mrs. Helen Carrudi, 44 years old, crippled by rheumatism, was trapped in her home at 480 Bergenline Avenue, West New York. Her husband, James, was awakened by her cries and found the house filled with smoke. He tried to move her from the bed, but was forced twice to retreat from the room. He was partly overcome when he tried to re-enter the room. The woman was unconscious when firemen rescued her and a pulmotor failed to revive her. Mrs. Carrudi and her husband were the only occupants of the house when the fire broke out.

Robert Marshall, 55 years old, an employe of the Weehawken Street-Cleaning Department, was the victim in the second fire which was discovered in the West Point House, a hotel-boarding house, at Park and Willow Avenues, Weehawken. Thirteen other roomers were in the building when the fire broke out.

The other persons in the house escaped or were rescued, but Marshall, who had a room on the second floor, was found by firemen lying on the floor before an open window. He was taken down a ladder and failed to respond to treatment at North Hudson Hospital.

The building was in ruins within half an hour. George Somers, the lessee of the hotel, thinks the blaze was of incendiary origin.

F. J. Fuller Pleads Not Guilty.

Percy Jay Fuller, promoter, pleaded not guilty before Federal Judge John C. Knox yesterday to an indictment charging him with having used the mails to defraud. His bail of $25,000, fixed some months ago when he was arrested, was reduced to $20,000. It is charged that he extracted about $1,000,000 from investors with a plan for making gasoline from garbage and other schemes.

FROM THE FOUNDER'S WRITINGS

is the salutation and query of one fi ing boat to another, hailing each other as they pass. There is a lot of good nature in the world, as well as information, that can be brought out by a smile and cheery word as we pass along.

Just try it and see for yourselves. Some men, who can make fine public speeches from a forum desk, a pulpit or platform, are so offish after a public performance that in private they lose the benefit of the charm they wore in the large assemblage by a brilliant address.

If men were to get nearer to each other and practice good fellowship even moderately, this would be a happier world to live in. It would not cost much to try it.

SCUDDER TO RESUME SECRET HEARINGS

COURT DENIES STEUER PLEA

CONNOLLY GIFT REPORTED

Lawyer Says Phillips Boasted He Gave $100,000 to Borough Head's Campaign for Bench.

Justice Scudder probably will resume his secret hearings in the Connolly case on Thursday. The Appellate Division in Brooklyn yesterday denied Max D. Steuer's application for a stay pending final decision by the Court of Appeals. Arguments as to whether Justice Scudder's appointment to investigate the Queens sewer charges is constitutional will be heard by the Court of Appeals at Albany on Thursday. It is expected to announce its decision before the end of the week.

Another development yesterday was a statement by Joseph A. Shay of 1,476 Broadway, formerly attorney for John M. Phillips, alleged head of the Queens sewer ring, that Phillips had boasted to him that he had contributed $100,000 to Borough President Connolly's unsuccessful campaign for Supreme Court Justice in 1918. Shay is now suing Phillips for $15,000 for alleged unpaid fees in a divorce action several years ago.

The action of the Appellate Division was unanimous. Its decision consisted of just four words: "Motion for stay denied." No reasons were stated. Emory R. Buckner, special counsel to Justice Scudder, said he was "delighted" with the decision. Mr. Steuer, obviously disappointed, said he did not intend to use his right to ask a Judge of the Court of Appeals for a stay, because of the imminence of final action by that body.

To Return After Holiday.

Under the latest court decision, Justice Scudder could resume his private hearings today if he wished. In accordance with his custom, however, he has left the city for the Washington's Birthday holiday. He will return on Thursday, when Mr. Buckner's staff will have several witnesses ready to produce before him in his chambers at the Queens County Court House, Long Island City.

Before opening the public inquiry, Justice Scudder will examine all these witnesses, probably a matter of several weeks, at private hearings, unless the Court of Appeals reverses the Appellate Division decision, which denied Mr. Steuer's application for a writ of prohibition. Such a writ would stop the Scudder inquiry entirely and force the Governor or the State Legislature to devise some other means of conducting the investigation.

Mr. Shay's revelations of the affairs of his former client came after Shay's partner, Samuel Hoffman, acting as his attorney, had filed summons and complaint in the Nassau County Supreme Court at Mineola, L. I., in his suit against Phillips. Hoffman also filed an affidavit by Deputy Sheriff Raynor of Nassau County, telling of his fruitless efforts to serve Phillips with the summons. The affidavit contains a copy of an order signed by Supreme Court Justice Byrne, on the authority of which Raynor left a copy of the summons at Phillips's home in Freeport, L. I., and mailed another copy to the missing man's home. Phillips, who has been evading service of a subpoena in the Scudder inquiry, has been in Atlantic City for several weeks.

Shay told reporters that he represented Phillips in a divorce action brought by Phillips's second wife, Mrs. Anna Phillips, in 1922.

Tells of Phillips's Profits.

In the proceedings here she applied for $200,000 in alimony and counsel fees, but got only $2,500. With this application she included an affidavit in which she said that from 1917 to 1918 Phillips made $282,000 profit on sewer pipe contracts totaling a little over $1,000,000. She also said that Phillips had told her that he had made $500,000 in five years. This was when he was merely agent for the Lock Joint Pipe Company. Later he got the monopoly and charged his own price for the pipe.

Shay said that Mrs. Phillips's affidavit also alleged that Phillips had told her that the specifications in the Queens sewer contracts required the use of his lock joint pipe, and that he had an arrangement with sewer contractors whereby they paid him from 6¼ to 6¾ per cent. of the total amount of their contracts "for aid in the preparation of bids."

"Everybody knows," Shay continued, "that Phillips charged what he wanted to for his pipe in Queens. He told me he had a monopoly under the specifications. You couldn't build a sewer over there without buying Phillips's pipe."

Shay's statement about the $100,000 campaign contribution came when he was ridiculing Phillips's recent assertion that he and Connolly were not friends.

Insists They Are Friends.

"Phillips and Connolly are friends and always have been," said Shay. "When Connolly was running for Supreme Court Justice, Phillips told me he contributed $100,000 to Connolly's campaign.

Connolly was not reached to reply to Shay's statement. At the Borough President's office in Long Island City it was said his whereabouts was not known, but that he was expected back "in a day or so." Mr. Buckner declined to say whether he would subpoena Mr. Shay or Mr. Phillips for the Scudder hearings.

It was said in Queens by persons who had followed the campaign for Supreme Court Justice in 1918 rather closely that in addition to the money Connolly himself put into the campaign much money was spent in Connolly's behalf that did not go through his hands or those of the Queens County Democratic Committee.

Henry H. Klein of counsel for Alderman George U. Harvey of Jamaica said yesterday that Thomas Cassidy and Andrew Capils, State Tax Appraiser for Queens, both friends of Phillips, had gone to Washington for a conference with the Federal income tax authorities. He said they hoped to settle difficulties dealing with income tax returns of Phillips, Cassidy, Andrew Zorn and Peter B. Campbell. Zorn and Campbell also are close to Phillips.

FAIL TO PICK CONNOLLY.

Queens Democrats Omit Him From List of National Delegates.

Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens, who has been charged with fraud and waste of public funds in connection with the construction of sewers and other public works, will not go as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention, it developed yesterday, when John Kissling, Secretary of the Queens County Democratic Committee, announced the selection of organization candidates for delegates from the Second Congressional District, which includes most of Queens County.

The delegates selected were Mason O. Smedley, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the County Committee, and Bernard M. Patten, Commissioner of Markets. Frederick S. Marsell of Rockaway and Albert C. Benninger were named as alternates. The Executive Committee also instructed the delegates selected to vote for the nomination of Governor Smith for the Presidency.

Although it was denied that the Executive Committee's failure to name Mr. Connolly for delegate indicated that there had been any break between him and Mr. Smedley, titular head of the Democratic Queens organization, it was generally believed that the action taken indicated the beginning of the end of Mr. Connolly's political power.

Mr. Connolly, who has been the real leader of the Democratic Party in Queens for fifteen years, was a delegate to the 1924 convention with Mr. Smedley. The latter has been the political lieutenant and personal friend of Mr. Connolly during this period and it was said that he would have insisted on the selection of the Borough President as a delegate had Mr. Connolly desired it. Mr. Patten also is regarded as a friend of Mr. Connolly.

The omission of Mr. Connolly from the list of delegates will relieve Governor Smith of some embarrassment. Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder, before whom the charges against Mr. Connolly will be heard, was appointed by Governor Smith, and the question of whether or not these charges receive sufficient substantiation to warrant Mr. Connolly's removal must be decided eventually by the Governor.

With the possibility of the Governor having to make a decision in the matter before the date of the Democratic National Convention, the failure of the Queens organization to name Mr. Connolly as a delegate was said to have been pleasing to the Governor's friends and to have avoided the possibility of any primary fight against him by the anti-Connolly faction.

VERMONT'S RECOVERY DISCUSSED AT DINNER

Colonel Harvey Takes Issue With Governor Weeks on Rehabilitation of Flooded Areas.

Governor John E. Weeks of Vermont and Colonel George Harvey were the principal speakers last night at the annual dinner of the Vermont Society of New York at the Hotel Plaza.

Governor Weeks outlined briefly the history of the flood that swept through the State last November, in which 18,880 citizens of the State suffered personally or sustained severe losses. Governor Weeks said that with roads repaired, railroads running, and business and industry again functioning, the State was fast on its way toward a prosperity that it had never before attained.

Colonel Harvey told the members of the society that the Governor had been a little too optimistic concerning recovery.

"You have a long pull ahead," he said. "The financial situation is not a matter of five or ten but twenty-five years."

Suggesting that a national Vermont Society be formed for the purpose of aiding the State, Colonel Harvey proposed that Governor Weeks and Walter Carroll Low, President of the society, select a committee to do the preliminary work of forming a national organization.

BACKS SMITH IN SUFFOLK.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., Feb. 20.—Governor Smith was unanimously endorsed for the Democratic nomination for President at a meeting of the Suffolk County Democratic Committee today.

After an animated debate the committee decided not to endorse any candidate for delegate to the Houston convention. There are three avowed candidates from Suffolk for delegates. They are James A. Early of Sag Harbor, a State transfer tax appraiser; John Vank of Patchogue, a former County Judge of Suffolk, and William G. Carroll of Bayport, a former Assemblyman from Suffolk's Second Assembly District. All are supporters of Governor Smith.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—What is claimed as the first television sales department in the world was opened at Selfridge's, London's huge American-owned department store, today by J. L. Baird, inventor of the apparatus by which the faces of two men and a woman were flashed across the Atlantic a fortnight ago.

At a luncheon preceding the opening Mr. Baird said the new department would sell parts which would enable an amateur to build his own television set. It would, however, allow only very crude silhouettes to be transmitted. Later machines of higher technical capacity would be built for receiving transmissions sent out on a forty-five-meter wave length.

HOOVER PRAISES COMMUNITY CHEST

Louis Marshall Says That Many Bequests Are Unfruitful or for Unnecessary Ends.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Community Chest represents the finest achievement of modern times in the field of organized charity, Secretary Hoover said at tonight's banquet of the Association of Community Chests and Councils, which opened a two days' conference on community responsibility for human welfare here today.

Secretary Hoover gave it as his opinion that the problem to be solved in the future development of this work lies in the relation of the national, State and local governments to charity.

Referring to the gradually increasing burden which the development of public school education has laid on the American taxpayer, Secretary Hoover declared that a similar development is occuring in the field of public health, and that the time will come when it will be considered the primary duty of the State and municipality to assume responsibility for public health.

Defining charity as the practice of a spiritual impulse, Mr. Hoover declared that no civilization could endure without spiritual development through public service.

American business men are finding their greatest satisfaction not in the accumulation of wealth, but in a wide distribution of it aimed at the removal of the handicaps and impediments of humanity, Dr. W. H. Faunce, President of Brown University, declared today at the opening session of the conference.

The sessions are being held at the Mayflower Hotel under the auspices of the National Citizens' Committee of the Association of Community Chests and Councils. The delegates, about three hundred in number, were received by President Coolidge following the afternoon session.

Colonel William Cooper Proctor of Cincinnati, Chairman of the National Citizens' Committee, presided at the luncheon. He gave it as his opinion that the community chests have been successful in training leaders in community development and that they have accomplished more for the community as a whole than for the actual charities they aid, even though they are raising more than $60,000,000 a year for social welfare work in America.

Louis Marshall of New York said that even this $60,000,000 is not adequate to the needs.

"In future years we will be surprised as we look back at the small amounts which are being given today," he said. "Giving is coming to be founded more and more on justice and a sense of responsibility on the part of the wealthy to the less fortunate."

He added that in giving one needs a sense of proportion and that "there are hundreds of rich men in the United States who do not know how to give wisely when they have gifts and bequests to make."

"Some large bequests are merely happy accidents but many others are made for unfruitful and unnecessary objects," said Mr. Marshall. "If rich men would, as many of them do, give to existing agencies, much more good would be accomplished than by leaving large sums to found a new institution which will serve no useful purpose, except to perpetuate the founder's name, and which is left for future generations to support."

The community chest has taught thousands of people to contribute to social welfare purposes who never contributed before, C. M. Bookman of Cincinnati, President of the Association of Community Chest and Councils, said at the banquet.

He declared that only five large American cities remain without community chests, and that the movement has influenced about one in five of the citizens in chest cities to contribute to its fund. He emphasized the importance of a proper adjustment between private benevolence and public taxation, so that each should bear its fair share of the burden of caring for the sick, poor and unfortunate.

SEEKS SON LOST 45 YEARS.

Aged Mother Says That Benjamin Schwartz Thinks Her Dead.

Mrs. Miriam Feller Henig, who is 74 years old and lives with her husband and son at 24 Attorney Street, is looking for her eldest son, whom she has not seen for forty-five years. His name is Benjamin Schwartz and he is supposed to be living somewhere in or about New York City.

It was forty-five years ago that Mrs. Henig, then Mrs. Morris Schwartz, was divorced from her first husband at Drohobicz, Galicia, where they lived. The husband took the son from school and brought him to America. Mrs. Henig married again and about twenty years ago heard that her first born had made inquiry about her. Four years ago her second son, Samuel Henig, of 276 Seventh Avenue, came to New York to enter business and a year later brought over his mother and father.

Since then the aged woman has done everything in her power to locate her missing son. He should be about 50 years old now, but his mother has heard no more of him than the inquiry many years ago. At that time the Town Clerk, through a misunderstanding, had said that she was dead.

SKIN TO BECOME AN ARM.

Smith's life was despaired of but slowly the infection subsided. Having saved his life without amputating the arm, Drs. Boehmer and Bavuso resolved to restore to Smith, if possible, the use of the injured arm by bone grafting.

S-4 Court Is Recalled for Further Study; To Get Naval and Treasury Men's Opinions

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 20.—The naval court of inquiry which conducted an investigation of the submarine S-4 disaster was ordered reconvened today by Secretary Wilbur, to consider recommendations and opinions made by officers of the Navy and Treasury Departments who have reviewed the original report. The action was taken after a conference between Mr. Wilbur, Under-Secretary Mills of the Treasury and Rear Admiral Bullard, commandant of the Coast Guard.

The original report, however, is to be made public on Wednesday morning.

"The evidence, findings of fact, opinions and recommendation of the court of inquiry convened to consider the S-4 disaster," Secretary Wilbur said, "have been reviewed by the Judge Advocate General of the Navy, by the chief of the Bureau of Navigation and the chief of naval operations, and have been considered by the Treasury Department in connection with the operation of the Coast Guard vessel Paulding.

"These recommendations and opinions will be referred to the court of inquiry for further consideration, but before this court reaches its final conclusion upon these recommendations it has been decided that the original report and recommendations and opinions, with the comments thereon by the officials of the Navy and Treasury Departments, will be released to the public. They will be furnished to the press for publication on the morning of Wednesday, Feb. 22."

The court, headed by Rear Admiral R. H. Jackson of the Navy General Board, probably will hold its sessions here. The nature of the opinions and recommendations as a result of which the court was ordered to reconvene was not made known. When the Paulding and the S-4 were in collision off Provincetown, Mass., Dec. 17, officers of the Coast Guard said they were prepared to abide by the findings of the naval court.

EX-CONVICT GIVES WORK TO OTHERS

LEARNED TRADE IN PRISON

Made $50,000 by Inventions and Labor—Chief Employes Men With Records.

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 20.—Joseph Pensendorfer, 53 years old, once a convict at West Berlin, near Camden, sat in the office of his busy wood working factory today and told of the realization of his dream, cherished during his two years in Eastern Penitentiary, for furnishing employment to men who had served prison sentences.

More than a quarter of a century ago Pensendorfer stood in a court room in Philadelphia and heard himself sentenced to be hanged for the murder of his father-in-law. Two days before he was to die the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

When in prison Pensendorfer, who was pardoned nine months ago, became a woodworker, mastering the arts of carving and inlay. While there he also patented devices for woodworking processes. When freed he had $50,000 to his credit in a bank in Philadelphia from royalties on his inventions and the sale of his work.

"During my time in prison I saw that the released convict had no chance in the world," he said today. "I saw them come in, serve their term and go out with the determination to go straight. Then I saw them come back again, licked. They had tried, but their prison records and the cops were too much for them. They would go back to crime again because there was no other road open to them.

"I dreamed of the time when I might have a business organization where I might give these fellows a chance. This factory has been in operation more than eight months. I feel that my dream is beginning to come true."

Pensendorfer said that his superintendent had served ten years for murder and had been pardoned; that his chief draftsman had been bank cashier and had served a similar term for embezzling. He declined to give their names, saying: "They don't have names now."

Pensendorfer's factory is a two-story concrete and stucco structure. He says business has grown to such a volume that he intended soon to double the capacity of his plant. Fifteen men were at work turning out radio cabinets, ship models and all manner of wood objects.

Employment is now the principal problem, Pensendorfer said. "I could use 100 more men today if they were available," he added. "I know where there are some very skilled woodworkers"—here he smiled—"but unfortunately the authorities are detaining them."

Convicts from all prisons will have a chance in his factory, Pensendorfer said. They must obey only two rules: Work hard to follow the straight and narrow path, and quit booze entirely.

TORLONIA ACTS ON APPEAL.

Duke Asks Time to Contest the Former Elsie Moore's Divorce.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 20 (AP).—Counsel for Duke Marino Torlonia of Italy today filed in Superior Court a request for a ten-day extension of time in which to enter a plea for a draft finding in the divorce action of Duchess Elsie Moore Torlonia of Greenwich. The Duchess on Feb. 9 received a divorce on the grounds of infidelity.

The Duke's counsel is at the present time preparing an appeal to the State Supreme Court on questions of residence and jurisdiction.

POLICEMEN SAVE 12 IN BROOKLYN FIRE

3 TRIPS INTO BUILDING

Through the heroism of two policemen twelve persons were rescued from a burning three-story brick building at 588 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, early yesterday. The policemen made three trips through the flames to the first floor, where two families were trapped.

The policemen, Sergeant John Lyons turned in an alarm Moger had just completed a motor tour of the Gates Avenue Precinct when across the street from the police station they saw smoke coming from the windows of Louis Rubin's candy and cigar store. While Sergeant Lyons turned in an alarm, Moger ran across to the station house and returned with two water-soaked blankets. With the aid of the blankets they groped their way to the first floor, which is partly occupied by Benjamin Stace and his 8-year-old son, Morris. Lyons led the parent to the street and Moger carried the boy out.

A second trip back into the building and the two policemen appeared with Herman Steinweiss, 40 years old; his wife, Rose, 34, and their children, Phillip, 14; Sylvia, 8, and Leah, 4. The third and last trip into the house they came out with Mrs. Elizabeth Akins, 52 years old; her daughter, Lillian, 24; Samuel Arbenwicz, 26; his wife, Elsie, 24, and their 10-month-old baby boy, Arthur.

The fire had burned through the store from front to rear and upward into the apartments of Stace and Steinweiss. Although most of the tenants and Sergeant Lyons and Patrolman Moger suffered from smoke, they refused medical aid.

INTEREST HELD VALID IN TAX REFUND CASES

Supreme Court Lays Down Principle That Government Must Pay—Millions Involved.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP).—Deciding a question which has arisen in tax refund cases involving millions of dollars, the Supreme Court laid down the principles today that the Government must pay interest on refunded taxes under the law in force when the refund was allowed.

The Government contended that interest should be figured under the law in effect when the refund was allowed. The decision was in the case of the Magnolia Petroleum Company of Dallas, Tex., which was overruled in its claim that the Treasury owed it $365,799 as interest on refunds on its taxes for 1916 and 1917. The Court of Claims decided in favor of the company, holding that interest must be paid under the law in effect when the interest is paid.

Government counsel declared a victory for the claimant would have meant a reversal of present Government policy involving an enormous cost.

Queens Democrats to Open Club.

The North Side Democratic Club, founded more than twenty years ago by Borough President Connolly of Queens, will open its new headquarters this evening at Polk Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, Corona. It is expected that prominent Democratic politicians will attend. The building cost about $75,000. It has a meeting room to accommodate about 2,000 persons.

THE NEW YORK TIMES total advertising volume in January, 2,600,688 agate lines, was greater than that of any other newspaper in the world. The Times led in December, 1927, too. The Times excess in January over the next newspaper (in Chicago) was 167,598 lines. The Times gain in advertising in that month was 120,214 lines, the greatest made by any New York newspaper.

BOOKKEEPERS' UNION EXPELS 23 IN ROW

Accusations of "high-handed and unjust dealings" by the Bookkeepers, Stenographers and Accountants Union, Local 12446, A. F. of L., were made last night by twenty-three members of the union who were expelled from its meeting at 3 West Sixteenth Street on charges of being "Communist sympathizers and trouble makers." The majority of those expelled were girls and the entire group declared it had been barred at the door by a Sergeant-at-Arms and had no opportunity to defend itself against the charges at the meeting.

So perturbed were the expelled members last night that patrolmen from the West Twentieth Street Station were summoned to calm them. The insurgents, led by Miss Sally Green, said they planned to meet soon and appeal to the American Federation of Labor. All of them denied they were Communist sympathizers or radicals. Some said they did not know what Communism was and felt they had been expelled because they were the most active members of the union.

The meeting was thrown into confusion by the presence at the door of the twenty-three expelled members. Ernest Bohm, Chairman, asserted that the action had been taken on the recommendation of the Executive Board.

The trouble, according to Harry Rubin, one of the ejected group, began when he was discharged on Jan. 1 from the Amalgamated Bank of New York at 11 Union Square. Mr. Rubin said he had been a member of the Executive Board of the Bookkeepers' Union and had been Chairman of the group of union workers employed at the bank.

By the union rules, he said, the bank was obliged to inform the union of his discharge but failed to do so. The twenty-three members had been active at former meetings in urging a strike in the bank, it was said. A strike vote was taken, Mr. Rubin declared, and passed, 2 to 1. A committee of the union then decided that there should be no strike. Mr. Rubin said he believed the expulsion of his friends was because they had insisted on a "square deal" for him.

Mr. Bohm declared that to call a strike in the Amalgamated Bank for the causes Mr. Rubin set forth, would have been illegal.

"I was expelled," said Miss Jean Wolfson of 527 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, "because I was such an ardent unionist. I don't know anything about Communism. I have sacrificed much for the sake of the union."

She related how, when an employe of B. Altman & Co. she had tried to organize the workers of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and said she had been discharged last October because of that activity. She has been black-listed since, she says, and has been unable to get work as a comptometer operator for which she is qualified.

COURT UPHOLDS BRADY IN BUILDING DISPUTE

Building Superintendent Charles Brady won yesterday his legal battle with the Board of Standards and Appeals of the Department of Buildings when Supreme Court Justice Valente upheld him in his approval of plans for a loft building to be constructed by the Harley Realty Company at 207 to 209 West Twenty-ninth Street. The Court upheld his action in appearing in court with the realty company to oppose the reversal of his decision by his superior authority.

The Court decided not only that Mr. Brady had a right to appear but that his ruling that a section of the Zoning law providing for a rear yard is not involved in this case because the proposed building is not back to back with another structure.

Justice Valente pointed out that the plans of the building were opposed by the Clemons Realty Company, owner of adjacent property, and that when the Clemons company first filed its own plans the Building Superintendent ruled against it, but changed his decision when it was shown that the Clemons building was not back to back with another building.

CHRISTIANS AND JEWS AT GOOD-WILL DINNER

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—Five hundred leading clergymen, rabbis an laymen participated tonight at Scottish Rite Temple in the first city-wide good-will dinner of Christians and Jews ever held in Philadelphia. It was under the auspices of the Philadelphia Federation of Churches and Dr. E. A. E. Palmquist, the secretary, epitomized its spirit as "the recognition of a brother regardless of the shibboleths he bears."

Rabbi Jacob Cohen of New York, one of the principal speakers, declared that no religion was indigenous to America's soil and that "Judaism, like Christianity, may be perfectly at home in this country."

Watchman Hurt in Freak Accident.

CLEMENTON, N. J., Feb. 20 (AP).—Sabinna Troy, grade-crossing watchman, is in a critical condition at a hospital here with a fractured skull sustained in a peculiar accident. A train struck a large police dog and the dog's body struck Troy and knocked him unconscious. The watchman returned to duty, but later was found senseless on the floor of his shanty.

Will Rogers Again in the Air, Praises Planes and Pilots

To the Editor of The New York Times:

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 20.—Left Chicago last night at 10 o'clock in a snowstorm and flew to Omaha. These mail babies go through. They can get through weather that most people couldn't find their way from the house to the garage with a well-lighted course. Good planes and good pilots!

It's safer and more gratifying than running for a Presidential nomination, which seems to be the other popular fad now days.

The farmers out here threaten to keep Norris as Senator in Washington till they get relief. If I was you, Mr. Coolidge, I would take care of the farmers at once.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

PRINCE OF SWEDEN PHONES TO KELLOGG

Gustaf Adolf Opens the New Wireless Service With an Exchange of Greetings.

MINISTERS ALSO CONVERSE

A Call Put Through From Stockholm to Cuba—Fifth Nation Now Linked With America.

Wireless telephone service with Sweden, the fifth European country to be linked up with America by this means, was opened yesterday morning when Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden from his residence in Stockholm called up Secretary of State Kellogg in Washington. Great Britain, Belgium, Holland and Germany are the other countries that have wireless telephone connection with the United States.

The first call between this country and Sweden was completed at 11:20 A. M., and the Crown Prince and Mr. Kellogg conversed for three minutes. Wire connection on this side was made from Washington to Rocky Point, L. I., over the lines of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. From Rocky Point the voices were carried by wireless telephone to Cupar, Scotland, over 3,200 miles of Atlantic Ocean. British and European telephone wires then relayed the connection by way of London, Amsterdam and Hamburg to Stockholm. The total distance was nearly 5,000 miles.

After the Crown Prince and Mr. Kellogg finished their conversation the Crown Prince talked with Wollmar P. Bostrom, Swedish Minister to this country, and Mr. Kellogg spoke with Leland Harrison, American Minister to Sweden.

Congratulations on the completion of the service were exchanged by Count Hamilton, Director General of the Swedish Department of Telephone and Telegraph, and Walter S. Gifford, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The first commercial call from this side was made by George Booth, editor of The Worcester (Mass.) Gazette, who spoke to the Archbishop of Sweden.

Early in the afternoon a call was received from Stockholm for a man in Havana, Cuba. The connection was made with Cuba, but the man required was absent from Havana.

The commercial rate between this country and Sweden is $81.75 for three minutes and $27.25 for each additional minute.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, in opening the new telephone service between Sweden and the United States today, said he easily heard the voice of Secretary Kellogg, who was his host in St. Paul during a recent American visit.

The Crown Princess Louise and Princess Ingrid, only daughter of the Crown Prince, were present in the library during the exchange of conversations with the United States, but neither of them used the service.

VUKITCHIVITCH GIVES UP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Feb. 20.—A sick man was summoned tonight to become Premier of Yugoslavia. Through M. Peritch, President of the Skupshtine, former Foreign Minister Marinkovitch, in bed, received the information that King Alexander considered him the man who was most likely to save the nation from the political morass in which it has been involved for sixteen days.

This action was decided upon by the King when M. Vukitchivitch surrendered the mandate under which for a week he had unsuccessfully attempted to build up a Government. Whether M. Marinkovitch will succeed is doubted in many quarters, although it is known that M. Raditch's and M. Pribitchivitch's opposition to a "concentration" Government is primarily due to their hatred and distrust of Vukitchivitch personally.

Following a conference with the King yesterday M. Raditch informed the newspaper men that he had recommended to the King a non-party man, preferably an army General, as the only person able to unite all parties. Tonight there is an appreciable current in favor of the King accepting this advice, which yesterday he refused flatly to do.

$3,500,000 DEAL BY PHONE.

Authorization of the sale of about $3,500,000 worth of Turkish tobacco by the Standard Commercial Tobacco Company to German wholesale tobacco firms was made yesterday in a three-minute transatlantic telephone conversation between Eby Kehaya, President of the Standard, in his offices at 1 Pershing Square, and his European agent, N. R. Coleman, in Hamburg. The call, Mr. Kehaya said, was placed at 12:15 P. M. and at 12:25 connection was made. The charge was $82.50.

According to Mr. Kehaya, his swiftly transacted business deal involved a record amount of money changing hands by means of cross-oceanic telephone conversation.

"I had less trouble getting Coleman in Hamburg than I had in getting my wife in Palm Beach last week," Mr. Kehaya remarked.

3,000 DYE SHOPS HIT AS 10,000 WALK OUT

First Day of Stoppage, Called to Eliminate Chain Group, Marked by Minor Clashes.

PICKETS TOUR THE CITY

State Labor Mediator Offers Services in Dispute Over Alleged Breach of Compact.

WORK STOPS IN NEW JERSEY

Other Suburban Sections Obey Call Also—Speedy End of Walkout Expected on Staten Island.

More than 10,000 workers in 3,000 small cleaning and dyeing establishments and 110 wholesale plants joined yesterday morning in a general stoppage of all cleaning and dyeing activities in an effort to force out of business the cut rate "dollar cleaners" backed by large plant owners. The call was ratified Sunday afternoon at mass meetings in two halls and all day yesterday parties of pickets sped from shop to shop in automobiles quietly seeing that all work was suspended and the public discouraged from sending work to the chain shops which remained open.

While there were minor clashes calling for the attention of policemen at one or two points during the day, there was no serious fighting. Several meetings were held at widely scattered halls during the day, and last night leaders of the workmen toured meetings in every section of the city as well as in Westchester and New Jersey to hearten the men in their effort to reorganize the industry.

Yesterday morning the picketing squads met at Clinton Hall, 151 Clinton Street, to receive instructions from leaders of the various unions participating in the workers' end of the stoppage. They were told to concentrate particularly on an effort to see that drivers of delivery and collection trucks for the large cleaning plants ceased work. More than twenty-five automobile loads of pickets engaged in this activity. Private automobiles were reported delivering for a few chain stores and Joseph D. Cannon, business representative of the Allied Council of Cleaners and Dyers, said an attempt would be made to have the police stop this by legal action because the cars were operating without an express license.

Rough handling of members of the council was charged by Mr. Quinlan yesterday afternoon. He said that policemen mistreated two members who were attending the meeting at Clinton Hall. The men were arrested, he said, but were afterward released when no charges were made against them.

The myriad of small stores of the city remained open yesterday to explain to customers the existing situation in the hope that the business would not be lost permanently. Some pressing was done in the stores but the workers and store proprietors affiliated with the striking unions refused all cleaning work. At the strike headquarters at the Labor Temple, Fourteenth Street and Second Avenue, workers were busy distributing yellow union posters to be displayed in the windows of member shops. A. J. Portenar, chief mediator of the State Department of Labor, visited the headquarters to offer his services in any mediation move, but no such action was announced.

Stoppage Spreads to Jersey.

Union cleaners and dyers in Essex County, N. J., numbering about 2,000, did not report for work yesterday morning as a move in sympathy with other workers in the metropolitan area to reorganize the industry.

Morris A. Klein, business representative of the union, at a meeting yesterday morning at Kruegers Auditorium in Newark, outlined arrangements for picketing non-union shops in Newark, Kearny, Arlington, Irvington and Harrison. About 300 workers, some of them said to be non-union men, were present.

About 1,000 are involved in the stoppage in Hudson County. The Allied Council held meetings in Union City and Jersey City, at which organizers reported a full response to their call for a reorganization walkout. Nearly 200 employes and a large number of shops in Elizabeth, N. J., are involved in the walkout.

The stoppage on Staten Island is expected to be shortlived, according to J. Scheikowitz, who has a shop at 353 Van Duzer Street, Stapleton, and who is President of the Staten Island local. Scheikowitz said last night he would not be surprised if all the shops on the island were opened again on Thursday.

"In all there are 120 shops on Staten Island," he said, "and up to the present time ninety-nine of these have joined the union. Just as soon as we can get the rest in we all will open again for business."

He added that all the shops would be opened this afternoon to permit customers to get their suits and also to give "any man, young men, particularly, who wish their suits pressed an opportunity to have this done."

"There are also some bachelors who may wish buttons sewed on," said the President. "You know we have to take care of the bachelors."

Seek to Enforce Compact.

The avowed purpose of the stoppage by the Allied Council is to force complete observance of a compact signed last August by both retail and wholesale tailors as well as drivers and inside workers. Among the provisions of this agreement is one that wholesale cleaners shall cease making inroads into the retail field at cut prices. The Allied Council now contends that a few large wholesalers have violated this clause, thus causing hardship for owners and workers in retail stores.

Last night meetings were held at Leslie Hall, Eighty-third Street and Broadway; the Labor Lyceum, 170th Street and Third Avenue, the Bronx; Workmen's Circle Hall, Jamaica, L. I.; the Amalgamated Temple, 21 Orion Place, Brooklyn, and at a hall in New Rochelle.

Officials of the Master Cleaners and Dyers Association, the Retail Cleaners and Dyers Union, the Cleaning and Dye House Drivers and the Cleaners, Dyers and Pressers Union addressed the strikers at these meetings. All of these unions and the Master Cleaners Association are parts of the Allied Council, which in turn is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

RADIO LICENSES GOOD TO APRIL 1

HOUSE MAY RUSH BILL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Federal Radio Commission today ordered an extension of all existing broadcasting licenses for a period of one month, or until April 1.

The reason was not made public officially, but it is understood the members of the committee, in view of the present uncertainty as to its status, do not feel justified at this time in prolonging the existing licenses beyond the date mentioned. Under existing law the commission is due to lose its jurisdiction as a control body on March 15.

After that date the commission will become merely an appellate body, and the authority if now possesses will pass to Secretary of Commerce Hoover, unless Congress meanwhile enacts legislation, as proposed in the pending Dill and Watson bills, to extend for another year the life of the commission as a "control" body.

Not only has there ben delay in the enactment of such legislation, but the commission is now functioning with only one of its members confirmed. The Senate has so far failed to confirm the appointments of the other three and the fifth commissionership is vacant through the recent death of Rear Admiral Bullard, its Chairman.

The Watson bill to extend the life of the commission as a "control body," as passed by the Senate, has not yet passed the House. It was referred to the Merchant Marine Committee, which turned it over to a subcommittee, which is scheduled to meet tomorrow and expects to file its report to the full committee not later than Thursday.

Chairman White tonight said he thought the full committee would approve the subcommittee's report and that the bill, in whatever form it came from the subcommittee, would be favorably reported to the House. He assumed that a special rule would be granted to facilitate its passage.

Reports, which could not be confirmed, were current today that "certain Old Guard" Senators, opposed to the Presidential aspirations of Secretary Hoover, and anxious to embarrass him, are quietly pulling strings in an effort to prevent the enactment of any legislation to extend the commission's life as a control body.

According to the current story, these Senators seek to throw the radio problem with all its worries and difficulties into Mr. Hoover's lap in the hope of having him incur the ire of the several hundred broadcasting stations that now are demanding better locations in the broadcasting band and licenses to operate with greater power.

Senator Dill and Chairman White of the House committee, now in charge of the Watson bill, said tonight they were aware of no such movement.

BRITISH 'RADIO ECHO' TO BE RE-BROADCAST

Phonograph Music to Be Sent Across Atlantic and Back in Experiment Today.

Phonograph music on the radio will cross and recross the ocean today between 11:30 and 1 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, and when it comes back to America Station WGY will attempt to rebroadcast it on the 379-meter wave. It will be what radio engineers term a "radio echo," which is flashed across the Atlantic on a short wave length, to be intercepted in England and there amplified and rebroadcast, to be picked up in Schenectady, from which point it is to be sent out again on a higher wave within range of broadcast listeners.

"It will be a decided novelty for broadcast listeners," said a representative of the General Electric Company yesterday. "We propose to put out over WGY's wave length the English rebroadcast of our short wave station output. In other words, 5SW will pick up phonograph records broadcast by 2XAD, and WGY will pick up and rebroadcast the original signal after twice across the Atlantic. We have had great success with the stunt thus far and we are hopeful that tomorrow will be no exception."

A new series of radio presentations embodying music of nearly forty nations, under the title, "Music Map of the World," will begin tonight at 8 o'clock over WRNY under the sponsorship of the New York Edison Company, according to an announcement made yesterday by Arthur Williams, Vice President of the company.

"The new series marks the approximate end of our third year of regular periods on the air," said Mr. Williams, "who added that the new series of twenty-one broadcasts had been designed along the lines of the preceding series.

The booklet of the first series, "World Tours in the Realm of Music," was distributed to more than 20,000 radio listeners who requested copies. Since then, "Twenty-one Adventurous Nights," "Further Travels in the Realm of Music" and the "Musician's Palette" have been sent out, the last reaching a circulation of about 100,000. Mr. Williams said he expected the new booklet to have even a wider distribution. It was not unusual for the morning mail to bring 1,000 letters requesting copies, he said.

Talk on Mexico at Vassar Club.

Under the direction of Mrs. Ernest Eidlitz and Mrs. Walter Wood Parsons, Hubert C. Herring will give a talk tonight on "The Mexican Muddle," at the Vassar Club, 130 East Fifty-seventh Street. In advance of the lecture Miss Ritad e Smone, in costume, will sing a group of Mexican folk-songs.

RADIO CORPORATION DENIES MONOPOLY

DAVIS DENOUNCES BILL

He Declares Those Who Back It Would Have Congress Rob His Company of Its Patents.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Radio Corporation of America replied to its accusers today when Colonel Manton Davis, its general attorney, appeared before the Senate Patents Committee to deny the charge that the corporation operated as a radio trust and in restraint of trade.

Mr. Davis denounced as "utterly false" the insinuation that "litigation was begun by the Radio Corporation or its associated companies against the De Forest Company and prosecuted without belief in the merits of such litigation."

He denied that the De Forest Company had been ruined by such litigation and that there was anv "monopoly of the air."

The Radio Corporation, Colonel Davis asserted, was formed with the sole purpose of creating and stimulating trade in the radio industry and that it had not operated in restraint of trade.

Today's hearing was based on the Senate bill which would declare void the patents held by corporations found to be operating in restraint of trade or in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Colonel Davis declared that the arguments of those who urged this legislation were pleas for Congress to declare Radio Corporation patents forfeit and to "bring to bear the great power of the Government so that those who have spent their time and money developing radio shall be handicapped over all other men in seeking the rewards radio may bring."

After the war, he said, "certain high officials of the Government" appealed to the various patent holders to pool their properties in patent rights in the interest of radio development.

He cited a report by the Federal Trade Commission in 1923 as proof of "semi-official sponsorship" of the plan which, he said, brought the Radio Corporation into being.

Following the appeals, he went on, the cross-license agreements were made by the patent holders, chief among whom were the General Electric Company, the Westinghouse Electric Company and American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

He said that many then began to make receiving sets, who, like pirates, appropriated the inventions of others.

Litigation followed and Federal courts ruled that certain radio-set manufacturers were themselves the wrong-doers, through patent infringements, he said. But instead of enforcing their rights by putting an end to such manufacture of sets, the Radio Corporation and the original parties to the cross-license agreements decided to license receiving set manufacturers so that they could continue operation.

But the manufacture of tubes was expressly not licensed, he said. It was this clause in the license under which receiving set manufacturers operated that had recently been referred to as in violation of the Clayton act, through its alleged tendency to lessen competition or create a monopoly.

"The Radio Corporation, by reserving to itself, when it licensed such manufacturers the exclusive right to make tubes part of the article," Colonel Dav

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The general course of the stock market was downward again yesterday, but with a few advances, chiefly in shares which had fallen most rapidly last week, and with partial recovery in other stocks before the close. No evidence presented itself of renewed efforts to bid up prices; the buying on which the market occasionally steadied itself was abundantly explained by purchases to "cover shorts." Speculation seemed to have come pretty much to a halt.

The position is in several respects peculiar. When the Stock Exchange has been performing its usual function of anticipating improvement or retrogression in general trade, a pause in speculative activity is natural if the news from industry is perplexing, and that is certainly the character of the present news. But the stock market has not for at least a year either foreshadowed or reflected the course of trade. Even after the downward readjustment of the last few weeks, prices of typical stocks are nearly twenty points above the average of the late Spring period last year, when the decrease of business activity and general business profits was beginning. The advance was practically continuous through November and December, when, as we now know by statistical evidence, the decline of trade activities was exceedingly rapid.

Therefore the supposition that the present market is merely awaiting visible signs of a change for better or worse in general business can hardly be as convincing as it would have been if last year's market had moved in line with trade developments. As a matter of fact, the advance on the Stock Exchange did not definitely end until it heard from the Federal Reserve—which would make it reasonable to suppose that it is still watching the money market first of all. If it were actually watching for the next turn in general trade, it would not discover a clear horizon. The recent speeding-up of steel production is definite enough, but it is Pittsburgh which is just now warning against taking too much for granted as to continuance of the movement. The unemployment bulletins do not simplify the question. Political dispute of the facts was to be expected in a Presidential year, and there are signs that it is coming, but the essential consideration is that an "unemployment crisis" should even be discussed.

A few declines of 3 to 9 points occurred among miscellaneous industrial stocks yesterday, but the losses were mostly of smaller scope and the day's net changes were as a rule not large. The Stock Exchange money rate did not change, in spite of Saturday's repetition of the deficit in Associated Bank reserves. The bond market was motionless.

An advance in sterling to the highest rate in nearly a month was the single noteworthy incident of the day. At $4.87⅞ the sight rate stood seven-eighths of a cent above the low figure of a fortnight or so ago. A further advance of at least one-half cent would be necessary before gold shipments from here to London would again be considered, for sterling had reached $4.87⅞ before the direct December shipment was made, and then the shipment was believed to have been specially facilitated. There would be little probability of any such action under ordinary circumstances; but if the Bank of England is pursuing a consistent policy of drawing gold from every available quarter before the currency-amalgamation plan is undertaken, gold movements may be possible which would not usually occur. Even with the sterling rate not far from yesterday's we sent $13,000,000 gold to Continental Europe last month.

AMERICAN CAN EARNS $4.11 A COMMON SHARE

President Reports Market in Healthy Condition Because of Reduced Packs.

The net income of the American Can Company for 1927 was $13,055,199, after depreciation, interest and Federal taxes, equivalent to $4.11 a share on the $25 par common stock after preferred dividends, against $13,736,382, or $4.38 a share, earned in 1926.

President H. W. Phelps reports that canned food packs in 1927 were much smaller than in 1926 or 1925, which was reflected in a much healthier condition in the markets. Moderate packing in 1928, he said, should not disturb these markets. The smaller pack of 1927 was also reflected in the net earnings.

Expenditures for new construction were $8,020,126, somewhat less than in 1926. A new factory has been put in operation at Sacramento, Cal., and a new factory built at Monterey, Cal., will be placed in operation in a few months. Improvements have been completed at Los Angeles and San Jose, Cal.

Ground has been purchased and cleared and some construction work done on a new factory at Jersey City, which is designed to replace a rented factory in Brooklyn and to care for growing business in the metropolitan area. Appropriations for the work have been carried into 1928.

The Hupp Motor Car Corporation reports for 1927 a net profit of $2,719,164 after depreciation, Federal taxes and other charges, or $2.70 a share, earned on 1,005,189 shares of $10 par stock. This compares with $3,507,628, or $3.45 a share, earned in 1926. Sales were $44,754,480, against $50,842,606. The surplus after dividends of $1,407,228 in 1927 was $1,311,936, against a surplus of $2,470,465, after dividends of $1,037,173 in 1926.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Liquidation went on actively in yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange, but the decline was more orderly than on Friday and Saturday of last week. Brokerage houses that had opportunities to feel the pulse of the speculative community reported that the selling was of a less urgent character and that, in their opinion, the way was being paved for a moderate rally. There were, in fact, a few reversals in the trend of the market yesterday, but each time there followed a fresh decline. At the close the general list was heavy, with here and there an acutely weak stock that was being sold aggressively. The day's comment in Wall Street related largely to the question of whether the liquidating movement was approaching the end. Brokerage interests for the most part were of the opinion that the readjustment was incomplete, but that there probably would be a lively recovery before the "secondary reaction" got under way. Influential stock market operators were represented as saying, however, that there had been sufficient "correction."

Judging the Selling.

The heads of many brokerage houses in Wall Street expressed the belief yesterday that "the buying was better than the selling," and this in the face of the great irregularity which developed in the market and the fact that many issues sustained losses. They based their judgment on the support which was given the pivotal issues, on the fact that "distress selling" evidently was ended for the time being and on the further fact that many of the leading issues snapped back sharply from their established points of resistance. The short interest in the market at the present time is very large, if Wall Street reports are to be believed, and this very short interest is counted on to bring about a brisk upturn on the first sign of good news.

Sterling Growing Stronger.

The gradual but steady appreciation in sterling exchange, which continued yesterday, is causing considerable discussion in foreign exchange circles. In the last three weeks the sterling rate has moved up three-quarters of a cent, mostly in small daily advances. As the season is not far away when seasonal influences usually begin to work strongly in favor of sterling the question is being raised whether the short-lived gold movement from New York to London last December may be revived this year. Gold was shipped from this point when sterling was quoted at $4.83½ for cable transfers. The rate yesterday was $4.87⅛, which was three-quarters of a cent below the gold shipping point, but that would not be a large difference to make up if an aggressive buying movement should develop.

Awaiting Railroad Earnings.

With the general trend of the stock market yesterday, net losses in the railroad group predominated over net gains. Transactions in the rails were moderate in volume, only a few issues having a turnover of more than 2,000 shares. This restriction of trading was attributed to hesitancy on the part of investors and speculators, who are awaiting the reports of the carriers' earnings in January, which are expected to appear this week. Only one or two statements have come to hand, and their showing is not regarded sufficient evidence upon which to base judgment of those that are to follow. In general there is little optimism and railroad men themselves do not believe that January earnings were much better than were those of December.

The Source of the Selling.

In well-informed circles evidence was given yesterday that the greater part of the day's selling came from "non-professional" sources. The so-called public was pictured as the frightened element in the market, with professional traders gradually growing bolder after the reaction of last week. Wire houses received a large volume of selling orders from small-lot traders throughout the country, while the "big operators" having their bases in New York, Chicago, Palm Beach and elsewhere were said to be sending in fresh buying orders. In Wall Street sentiment was described as mixed, with the aggregate of selling pressure outweighing the supporting orders.

One of the large Stock Exchange houses advances the theory that a drastic reaction is the very thing needed to prolong a bull market. "Funds for a continuation of a reasonable amount of speculation will be available in tremendous sums just as they were prior to the reaction," said this house. "Money will continue to flow into Wall Street from all parts of the country because commercial activities are making only moderate demands upon idle capital. It is significant to note that the grain markets were advancing while the security markets were declining. A better balance between speculation in grains and speculation in stocks would be desirable."

Municipal Bonds Hold Up.

The municipal bond market continues to hold firm despite a relatively light demand. The tone of the market is perhaps a trifle easier than a month ago, but on the other hand the actual amount of bonds on dealers' lists has been materially reduced in the meantime. However, the market will be called upon to absorb three major issues shortly: $52,000,000 of the City of New York, $7,500,000 of the City of Philadelphia and $22,500,000 of the State of New York. It is believed, however, that general bond dealers will compete with municipal houses for New York City's issue inasmuch as it is a four-year loan, or, to be exact, a three-years-and ten-months' issue, which virtually puts it into the banking loan class.

MONEY.

MONDAY, FEB. 20, 1928.

Stock Exchange call money market was quiet and relatively easy, rate holding steady at 4½ all day, while counter trading went on at 4 per cent. Funds were in good supply, but demand was light. Pay-offs were plenty. Time money was unchanged at 4½@4¾ per cent., with the trading at the outside figure. Commercial paper and acceptances were unchanged.

INTERNATIONAL ACCEPTANCE TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE.

$2,500,000 of these Debentures have been withdrawn for distribution in Europe by M. M. Warburg & Co., Hamburg, of which amount $1,500,000 will be publicly offered in Holland by Nederlandsche Handel—Maatschappij and Mendelssohn & Co.

The Managing Directors of the Union and the respective Associations summarize their letter to the Bankers as follows:

THE UNION: The Wasserwirtschaft im Rheinisch-Westfaelischen Industriegebiet (Ruhrkohlenbezirk) G.m.b.H. (Rhine-Ruhr Water Service Union) has been organized to promote the mutual interests and provide means of facilitating financing of the five individual Associations which comprise the Union. These Associations are obligated to pay to the Union their proportionate share of the amounts necessary to meet the interest, sinking fund and principal of these Debentures. All charges for interest, amortization and operation of the several Associations are assessed upon each Association's members, which include the counties, municipalities and industries in the respective territories served. These assessments are enforceable by administrative proceedings, as in the case of taxes, and each member is liable not only for its proportionate amount but also to further assessments to meet any unpaid assessments upon other members of the same Association. This liability of each member is limited only by the extent of the total indebtedness of the individual Association.

Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co. state that the amounts of the delinquencies of the members over a period of five years are negligible.

The management of each Association consists of experts of high standing and the Boards of Directors are nominated in part by the German Reich and Prussian State, and in part are elected by the counties, municipalities and industries in their respective districts.

The Associations are not liable for any payments under the Dawes Plan and the Union only nominally so liable.

BUSINESS: The individual Associations which constitute the Union are: Ruhrtalsperrenverein (organized in 1898), Emschergenossenschaft (organized in 1904), Ruhrverband (organized in 1913), Linksniederrheinische Entwaesserungsgenossenschaft (organized in 1913), and Lippeverband (organized in 1926). These Associations (whose individual obligations will be assigned by the Union to the Trustee as security for these Debentures) are all corporate bodies of a public character having exclusive and perpetual franchises and were created by special Prussian laws to meet the problems of water supply, purification and drainage in the Rhine-Westphalia region of Germany, which is one of the most important industrial sections of Continental Europe. The density of the population and the great growth of industrial activities in this region make these enterprises of vital importance. Particularly is this true since in certain parts of this region the low land prevents a natural flowage of water and drainage of these parts can only be accomplished through artificial means.

The territory served by the Associations comprises an area of 3,500 square miles with a total population of about 3,500,000, the majority being employed in the various industrial activities. During the year 1926 the industries in this region accounted for 77% of the total coal output, 78% of the total iron production, and over 42% of the total steel production of Germany.

OBLIGATION: These Debentures, in the opinion of counsel, will be the direct obligations of the Union, secured by pledge of an equal principal amount of certificates of indebtedness of the several Associations as follows: Ruhrtalsperrenverein $2,500,000, Emschergenossenschaft $2,500,000, Ruhrverband $2,500,000, Lippeverband $2,000,000, Linksniederrheinische Entwaesserungsgenossenschaft $500,000. These certificates of indebtedness will be the direct unconditional obligations of the respective Associations, the payment of which is secured by the Associations' right of assessment for the total amount of their respective liabilities, which assessments rank equally with Federal and State tax assessments and prior in lien to secured and unsecured debts of their respective members.

The Agreement under which these Debentures will be issued will provide, among other things, that as long as any of these Debentures are outstanding, the Union and the respective Associations comprising the Union will not create nor suffer to be created any mortgage, lien or encumbrance against any of their respective properties or franchises.

PROPERTIES: The plants and works of the Associations comprise dams, reservoirs, hydro-electric plants, purification plants and pumping stations, including the largest sewerage pumping station on the Continent. In addition the Associations own an extensive system of streams and river beds which have been formed into canals having a total length of approximately 250 miles.

Day & Zimmerman, Inc., Engineers, who examined the properties, state that the properties were found to be of a most modern type, of an exceptionally massive and substantial type of construction, well adapted to economical operation, properly balanced, well maintained and in excellent operating condition.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The proceeds from the sale of these Debentures will provide funds to the respective Associations for further extensions, betterments and improvements to their plants and water systems, and for other corporate purposes.

These Debentures are offered when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of counsel. All legal matters will be passed upon by Messrs. Hornblower, Miller & Garrison, New York City, and Dr. Wilhelm Beutner, Berlin. It is expected that delivery of temporary debentures or interim receipts will be made on or about March 7, 1928.

Authorized $2,500,000 — To be presently outstanding $1,500,000

The Prior Preference Stock is preferred as to assets and dividends over all other classes of stock and is entitled in liquidation to $115.00 per share and accrued dividends. Redeemable as a whole or in part on 30 days' notice at $115.00 and accrued dividend. The articles of incorporation provide appropriate restrictions upon the issuance of any prior stocks, the issuance of additional bonds, the issuance of additional amounts of this Prior Preference Stock, and provide for a minimum sinking fund with additional sinking fund based on a percentage of net earnings.

Mr. Howard H. Davenport, President of the Company, has summarized his letter to the Bankers as follows:

The Southern New England Ice Co., a Massachusetts Corporation, owns the ice business, assets and good will of over thirty concerns supplying natural and artificial ice, refrigeration service and coal at retail and wholesale to a number of communities in Connecticut, Massachusetts and New York, serving at retail a population of over 850,000.

PROPERTIES: The properties of the Company consist of artificial ice plants, natural ice harvesting rights, ice storage houses, valuable real estate and delivery and other equipment valued at over $5,300,000.

ASSETS: After giving effect to this financing the assets of the Southern New England Ice Company, after deducting the Company's bonds and current liabilities, are equivalent to about $260 per share on the total amount of Prior Preference Stock to be presently outstanding.

EARNINGS: Net earnings, after all prior charges, including bond interest and reserves for Federal Taxes from February 26, 1927 (when the Southern New England Ice Co. commenced business) to December 31, 1927, were equivalent to more than 3¼ times dividend requirements on the then outstanding $1,100,000 par value of Prior Preference Stock, plus the $400,000 of stock presently to be issued. Based upon audit recently made covering the past two years' operations of the properties now being acquired, it is estimated that the earnings of these properties and earnings through certain improvements will add $64,125.01 available for dividends on this stock. Giving effect to this estimated increased revenue, Prior Preference dividend requirements, for the period, would have been earned over 4 times on $1,500,000 of Prior Preference Stock to be outstanding upon completion of this financing.

MANAGEMENT: The management of the Company is in the hands of men of long experience in the ice business who have been successful for many years in the direction of the affairs of the Metropolitan Ice Co. and the New England Cities Ice Companies.

PURPOSE OF THIS FINANCING: The proceeds from the present sale of 4,000 shares of Prior Preference Stock and 4,000 shares of Common Stock will be used in part to reimburse the Company for the cost of the acquisition of two ice companies in Bristol, Conn., one in Pittsfield, Mass., the controlling interest in the Springfield (Mass.) Ice Company, and for additions to the artificial ice plant at Hartford, already owned.

The above shares are offered on the express condition that no statement above or in the letter to the Bankers constitutes any representation, guaranty or warranty by us. All legal details in connection with the issuance of these additional shares are subject to the approval of Messrs. Davies, Auerbach & Cantell, attorneys for the Bankers.

We offer the above shares for delivery if, when and as issued, received and accepted by us, subject to approval of counsel, in units consisting of one share 7% Cumulative Prior Preference Stock and one share no par value common stock. It is expected that delivery will be made about March 1st, 1928, in the form of definitive certificates.

Price $100 Per Unit and Accrued Prior Preference Dividends

With each share of Prior Preference Stock now offered will be delivered one share of the no par value common stock of the Company.

CONSOLIDATED GAS EARNS $42,273,779

Net Income for 1927 Rises $6,606,885—Equal to $8.79 on Common Shares.

GROSS GAINS $9,483,338

President Cortelyou Reports on Taxes as a Factor in the Cost of Gas and Electricity.

The Consolidated Gas Company of New York and its affiliated gas and electric companies report for 1927 a net income of $42,273,779, after all charges and taxes, equal after $5 preferred dividends to $8.79 a share earned on 4,320,000 shares of no-par common stock. This compares with $35,666,893, or $9.60 a share, on 3,600,000 common shares in 1926. The increase amounts to $6,606,885.

"As in previous years," President George B. Cortelyou reports, "one of the largest single factors entering into the cost, and hence reflected in the selling price, of gas and electric service in the Boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens and in Westchester County, is the volume of taxes assessed by Federal, State, county and municipal authorities.

"The taxes charged as a part of the operating costs of the Consolidated Company and its affiliated gas and electric companies, and thereby collected by these companies from their customers for the aid and benefit of the taxing authorities, including interest on disputed taxes and taxes charged elsewhere, totaled $17,314,270 during 1927, as compared with $16,168,453 during the year 1926, an increase of $1,145,817.

Says Tax Affects Rates.

"The burden thus imposed and reflected in the companies' rates amounted to nearly 16 per cent. of the total operating costs of the gas and electric business. The tax-collecting function thus added 13.05 cents per 100 cubic feet, on the average, to the required rate for gas, and more than ½ cent per kilowatt hour, on the average, to the required rate for electric energy throughout the territory served by the Consolidated Company and its affiliated gas and electric companies.

"The policy of encouraging and assisting the societies maintained by the employes has been continued by the affiliated gas and electric companies, as our major welfare activities are conducted through these organizations. Although participation is voluntary, the membership of these societies included over 99 per cent. of the entire personnel, which on Dec. 31, 1927, exceeded 34,000."

Gross earnings amounted to $163,282,866, against $153,799,528, a gain of $9,483,338, while expenses and taxes were $3,309,072 higher, leaving net operating income of $54,035,149, against $47,960,653 in 1926. Interest charges were $11,761,370, against $12,193,989, and dividends were $24,992,301, against $19,094,556, leaving a balance of $17,281,578 carried to surplus, against $16,572,337 carried to surplus in 1926.

Surplus Account Rises.

The surplus account shows a credit balance of $170,542,755 at the close of 1927, against $151,089,340 at the end of 1926. Credit items were $4,046,837, including excess of award for land at Forty-fourth Street and interest on total amount of award for all property at Forty-fourth Street taken by the city. A debit item was $1,875,000 premium paid on redemption of 6 per cent. cumulative participating preferred stock.

The company and its subsidiaries spent $84,400,583 for land, plant and equipment in 1927, President Cortelyou says. Credits to capital account, due to the retirement of plant and equipment from service and the sale of real estate, aggregated $14,758,983, leaving a net increase in investment in land, plant and equipment of $69,641,599 for the year.

President Cortelyou said there were no substantial changes in the general cost of labor, or of coal, oil and other materials entering into the manufacture and distribution of gas and electricity.

The sales of Consolidated and its affiliated companies amounted to 42,503,203,800 cubic feet in 1927, an increase of 730,962,700 cubic feet, or 1.75 per cent., over 1925, but a decrease as compared with 1926 of 2,484,732,600 cubic feet, or 5.52 per cent. The decrease was due primarily to conditions occasioned by the coal miners' strikes in the early months of 1926, resulting in an abnormal increase in the sales for that year.

The affiliated electric companies sold 2,320,531,525 kilowatt hours of electric current, an increase of 256,242,532 kilowatt hours, or 12.41 per cent. The Bronx Gas and Electric Company obtained the greatest percentage of increase in gas sales, or 17.37 per cent. over 1926, and the greatest gain in electric sales, or 20.85 per cent., over 1926.

Repairs in Year Costly.

"All the properties have been maintained in excellent repair and at the highest point of operating efficiency, at a cost of $14,937,455 for repairs and $7,241,073 for renewals, or a total cost of $22,178,529," Mr. Cortelyou said, "thus insuring a uniformly satisfactory quality of gas and electricity and their economical production and distribution."

BEHA WARNS OF SALE OF UNLICENSED STOCKS

State Insurance Head Says Some Offerings Have Been Made Illegally.

It has been called to the attention of the New York State Insurance Department that stocks of companies which have not been licensed to do business in this State have been offered for sale by various stock brokerage houses, according to a statement issued yesterday by James A. Beha, Superintendent. Stocks of corporations proposing to engage in the insurance business and stocks of holding corporations mainly engaged in the acquisition and control of insurance companies also have been offered for sale, both acts constituting a violation of Section 66 of the New York Insurance law.

"These offerings of stocks of insurance companies not licensed to do business in this State are in violation of the Insurance law unless a special license has been issued," said Superintendent Beha. "This likewise is true as to insurance promotion companies and insurance holding companies. Licenses authorizing such sale of stocks of these companies have heretofore been issued by the Insurance Department of the State of New York upon application and submission of the necessary facts and may again be issued under proper conditions.

"We wish to call the attention of the public to these facts and also to warn the stock brokerage houses that the sale of stock of such unlicensed insurance companies, insurance promotion corporations or insurance holding corporations, without a special license, is a violation of the Insurance law.

"The Legislature of this State intended, in the passage of Section 66 of the New York Insurance law, to prevent any offering and sale to the public in this State of shares of stock of insurance companies or promotion or holding corporations whose plans, purposes and conditions had not been submitted to the Insurance Department and there found satisfactory. Companies of this kind which can meet the requirements of the law can submit their plans, purposes and financial condition, and if found proper licenses can be issued in accordance with said Section 66 of the Insurance law.

The ONE Best Investment for You

Apply This TRIPLE TEST to the FRENCH PLAN

The Secret of Success in Investment

SHOULD you invest in bonds—preferred stocks—common stocks?

Thousands of investments are offered, but there is only ONE best investment for YOU. How shall you find it?

Here is a simple method of judging and comparing investments—a Triple Test that is used by large and experienced investors to insure success—a simple yardstick that has built many great investment fortunes. You can use it to find the one best investment for you!

Check every investment by asking yourself these three questions:

1. Is the industry basically sound and does it earn consistent profits? Many industries fluctuate widely—earning good profits this year, nothing next. These must be judged on their average earnings. Others are stable but earn small profits year after year. A few, favored by broad economic trends, earn generous profits steadily, regardless of the business weather. Invest only in an industry which faces the prospect of both consistent and generous earnings!

Real estate, long recognized as the most permanent form of wealth, has been the foundation of the vast majority of investment fortunes. The construction and operation of large income-producing buildings in New York City has established a record for consistent and generous profits unequalled by any other field of investment. Leading the list on this first important Test—improved New York City real estate deserves primary consideration from every investor—whether he is investing hundreds or millions of dollars.

2. Has the company demonstrated its ability to earn consistent and generous profits in its chosen field? An examination of the earnings of the various concerns in any industry reveals a surprising difference in earnings. At the top of the list you find an exceptionally able organization rendering an honest service and earning generous profits. At the foot of the list you find a concern that has failed to earn a profit during the same period. Competition is increasing in all industries and the spread between the earnings of the leaders and the followers promises to widen.

Invest only in the company that has established its leadership through ability and integrity—that has demonstrated its capacity to earn consistent and generous profits for investors over a period of years.

During seventeen years of successful experience in constructing and operating millions of dollars worth of large income-producing buildings, the Fred F. French Companies have established an enviable reputation for sound planning, practical and economical construction and unusually profitable management. Year after year, the earnings of French buildings, per dollar of cost, have been far above the average. The fact that the completed French apartment buildings in New York and in operation are 97% rented—only 44 vacant apartments out of 1135—is eloquent evidence of the ability of French management.

3. What share of the profits will you receive? It is not enough to select a favored industry and a sound and able company unless your investment makes it possible for you to share fully in the generous profits earned. Does the security offer you a fixed return and no share in profits above and beyond this level, or does it enable you to share fully in all profits?

Be sure that you are in a position to share generously in the profits which your investment will help to create.

The French Plan combines the advantages of an investment for steady income with a full share in all profits above and beyond this fixed return. 1. You receive 6% on your capital while it is invested. 2. All the profits from the operation of the property are devoted to the repayment of your investment until every dollar of your capital has been repaid, plus interest. 3. Thereafter you own the property jointly with the Fred F. French Investing Company, Inc., and receive 50% of all profits distributed from its operation—sharing in all increase in land value and increase in earning power.

The French Plan gains for you the remarkable advantage of a temporary investment which gives you permanent income!

Thousands of discriminating New Yorkers have invested millions of dollars in French income-producing buildings under this Plan and are now sharing generously in the profits from their operation—and increase in value.

BOND TRADING LIGHT, MARKET IRREGULAR

High-Grade Investment Issues Generally Firm—Government Securities Easier.

The bond market developed a highly irregular tone yesterday. While the volume of trading was comparatively light, there were fairly wide movements in the type of issues that are most quickly responsive to conditions in the stock market, and many of these were declines. Among the higher grade investment issues, however, prices were generally firm. Foreign bonds were without feature. United States Government securities, which advanced most of last week, underwent a fractional reaction.

Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé general 4s, which are often cited as a guide to investment conditions, advanced ¼ point under fairly active trading, and slightly higher prices were paid for New York Central refunding 5s. Pressure continued against Seaboard Airline issues, which sold lower.

The feature among the convertibles was a decline of 5 points in Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s, which have been fluctuating widely for months in sympathy with the stock market. Dodge Brothers convertible 6s sold fractionally lower, while Kayser 5½s lost ½ point and Hudson Coal 5s declined a full point. Duquesne Light 4½s were heavily traded in at a fractional advance, and several other of the larger utilities were firm. Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit 6s gained half a point, but most of the other local tractions were easier.

In the foreign group the principal Belgian issues advanced from ⅛ to ½ point, while French bonds ruled slightly lower and Germans were firm. At the close United States Treasury issues showed net losses of from 1-32 to 3-16 point.

PAYS IN BOND SETTLEMENT.

Brunner Turbine Deposits Cash and Income Certificates.

The attorneys of the deposit committee for the bondholders of the Brunner Turbine and Equipment Company announced that the deposit of cash and income certificates, in accordance with the terms of the offer of settlement to bondholders, was made yesterday for the company's account with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York as depositary.

When the offer was declared accepted, bondholders aggregating about 76 per cent. of the entire issue had accepted, and since then additional bonds have been deposited bringing the total up to more than 85 per cent. of the issue. The expiration date of the offer is Aug. 20, 1928.

Distribution of the funds and income certificates by the Guaranty Trust Company to the assenting bondholders will begin Thursday.

Jurgens United Bonds Called.

The Anton Jurgens United Margarine Works have called their 6 per cent. secured convertible debenture bonds, dated June 1, 1923, for redemption on July 1, 1928, at 105 and interest, according to White, Weld & Co., fiscal agents. The amount to be redeemed is 23,981,000 guilders out of an original issue of 40,000,000 guilders.

CENTRAL NATIONAL OFFERS ITS STOCK

Public offering of the capital stock of the Central National Corporation, the newly organized investment affiliate of the Central National Bank, will be made today in the form of units consisting of one share of class A stock and one-quarter share of class B stock, priced at $62.50 a unit.

Total capitalization of the corporation, to be presently outstanding, will consist of 50,000 shares, each of no par value, class A and class B stock. A substantial amount has been subscribed for by stockholders and depositors of the bank, and advance applications have been received from other banking interests in this country and abroad.

While the general plan of the Central National Corporation is not entirely novel, the offering of its shares to the public represents a departure from the usual practice in the case of investment companies affiliated with banks, which frequently restrict such offerings to the bank stockholders.

The activities of the corporation will include dealings in corporate and governmental securities, participation in underwritings and general financial undertakings. On completion of this financing, the corporation will have a paid-in capital and surplus of more than $3,300,000.

The class A stock is entitled to an annual dividend of $3 a share before the class B stock receives an annual dividend of $1 a share. Both these dividends are cumulative. Further dividends are to be shared equally.

RAILWAY EXPRESS UNDER NEW CONTROL

Banking Interests Reported Now Dominant Through Adams Company.

WAR WITH CARRIERS LIKELY

Litigation Expected Over Contract on Which Depends Value of Stock in Case of Merger.

The banking group which has been buying control of the Adams Express Company for some months has more recently acquired control of the American Railway Express Company, it was said in well-informed circles yesterday. Control has been acquired by purchasing the stock of the latter company in the open market, with the result that it has risen sharply in recent trading. The stock advanced to a new high of 138 yesterday in response to buying by the group and by speculative interests. As Adams Express owned one-third of the stock of the operating company, it was necessary to purchase one-sixth of the floating amount of the latter organization's stock to give control. The capital amounts to $34,642,000 of one class of $100 par shares. American Express and Adams Express own 68 per cent. of the issue. The balance is in the hands of the public.

That the interests now dominant in Adams Express and American Railway Express are prepared to begin protracted litigation over the contract between the carriers and the latter company was indicated yesterday. The value of American Railway Express stock in any merger of the company with the railroads is dependent on the terms of this contract. Railroad men who favor the merger believe that the price they would pay for the express company's property would be less per share of its stock than the current price. Nevertheless, accumulation of the stock at high prices continues.

Contract Provides for Purchase.

The uniform contract between the carriers and the American Railway Express provides that in event it is not renewed the railroads may purchase the express company's property at cost less depreciation. On the basis estimated in railroad circles recently, this would give a price of around $110 a share. The contract between the carriers and the express company is exceedingly involved and it has never been subjected to extensive judicial interpretation. It was reported yesterday that in an effort to receive what they would consider an appropriate price for their property the controlling interests in the two express companies were prepared to proceed to the United States Supreme Court.

The uniform contracts expire a year from now. The violent upturns of the express company's stocks on the Stock Exchange and the general uncertainty as to the outlook for the future management of the railway express business has caused shippers some apprehension. C. H. Hillary, traffic manager of the F. W. Woolworth Company, was last week appointed Chairman of a committee representing shipping interests to confer with railroad and express officials in an effort to determine what actual conditions may be. He has conferred with express officials and is arranging conferences with railroad officials. So far, however, it is not known that he has obtained any light on the situation.

Storey Favors Arbitration.

W. B. Storey, President of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railway, is Chairman of the Committee on Uniform Express Contracts of the Association of American Railway Executives. Mr. Storey recently said he favored either acquisition of American Railway Express property or purchase of the stock of the company, whichever was most economical, in order to give control of this business to the carriers. He said that certain unnamed railroads favored the plan. It is expected that Mr. Hillary will confer not only with Mr. Storey, but with other railroad officials in an effort to clear the situation.

Buying of American Railway Express stock by the group dominant in Adams Express has been in response to discussion of express business acquisition by the railroads. It is understood to have been in the nature of an operation to protect the large interest of Adams Express in the operating company. However, the purpose of the group in buying Adams Express stock has been to put that company in a new field of enterprise.

Map of HODSON ENTERPRISES

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS of Successful Banking Experience

FEBRUARY 22d is the thirty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the House of Hodson. The same group of executives who have grown up with the business and who are firmly imbued with the high ideals of the House continue to direct the Hodson organization. The map locates the institutions in the establishment and financing of which the House and its Associates have been identified. These comprise nearly sixty national banks, state banks and trust companies and three centrally managed industrial loan chains of 150 subsidiary corporations and branches—many of which have their own directorate of prominent local business and professional men. Since January 1, 1914, the three organizations referred to above have made, through their subsidiaries, industrial loans totaling over $125,000,000. They fill a real and human need in supplying credit to people whom the commercial banks are not equipped to serve.

Scientific Management—The investments offered by this House safely pay higher-than-average returns because they are under close and constant supervision from issuance to maturity. Industrial loan systems financed by us are operated by a central management company with a complete staff of trained specialists, skilled in producing highest efficiencies at lowest costs. Field supervisors and auditors attached to this management unit regularly inspect the offices of these chains. In addition, a school is maintained for educating employees of the industrial loan companies. Frequent reports to security holders inform them of the progress of the companies in which they have invested their funds.

Common cause is made with investors in that no security is distributed unless it is also considered good enough by the House of Hodson for investment of its own funds. The House and its associates invest their own money first—before the public is asked to do so.

It is rigorous safeguarding of the investor's money that explains the long continued confidence in Hodson investments, now held in practically every state and many foreign countries by thousands of conservative individuals, organizations and institutions. Our long experience in banking and investments backs every security we underwrite and distribute through scores of independent investment houses throughout the United States.

The guiding principle of the House of Hodson has always been: "The investor must participate in the profits which his capital has helped to create." Hodson Enterprises, year after year, have liberally shared their earnings with investors.

Those interested in learning more about a unique investment banking organization, the sound principles to which it adheres and the securities it underwrites, should send for our booklet

The American Superpower Corporation

First Preferred Stock

(No Par Value)

Cumulative Dividends of $6.00 per Share per Annum

Dividends payable quarterly January 1, April 1, July 1 and October 1. Preferred as to dividends and assets over any other stock of the Corporation. Redeemable as a whole or in part, at the option of the Corporation, at any time upon sixty days' notice at $110 per share and accumulated dividends.

Business The American Superpower Corporation was organized under the laws of the State of Delaware, October 26th, 1923, with broad powers to acquire and hold securities of electric power and light companies, to construct, operate or lease power stations and transmission lines and to act as fiscal agent for electric power and light properties.

The Corporation has acquired as permanent investments common stocks of a number of successful and progressive companies in the electric light and power business. Its earnings consist primarily of dividends on these stocks. In addition, it has received fees in connection with the underwriting of offerings of additional stocks of certain of the companies in which it is interested, and has sold at substantial profits certain of its holdings. While the Corporation is not limited by its charter as to the character of the investments that it may make, it is primarily concerned with the development of the electric power and light industry, and is particularly interested in the development, through interconnection, of large power systems along so-called "superpower" lines.

Purpose of Issue Proceeds from the sale of this Preferred Stock will be used for the acquisition of additional interests in certain electric light and power companies and for other corporate purposes.

Earnings The statement of income for the twelve months ended January 31, 1928, shows a balance available for dividend payments of $3,850,406 which is more than 2.5 times the annual dividend requirements of the 250,000 shares of First Preferred Stock which will be outstanding upon the completion of this financing.

These earnings do not include the enhancement in market value during the period of the present holdings of the Corporation, nor do they include stock dividends received, nor the income to be derived from the investment of the proceeds of this issue.

Assets The Corporation has no funded debt. Its net assets (at current market prices at the close of business February 1) after giving effect to this financing exceed $82,000,000. This amount is equal to more than $320 for each of the 250,000 shares of First Preferred Stock to be presently outstanding.

All legal matters in connection with this issue of stock will be passed upon by Messrs. Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts of New York. The accounts of the Corporation are audited semi-annually by Messrs. R. G. Rankin & Co., Public Accountants.

This First Preferred Stock is offered when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to necessary stockholders' action and approval of proceedings by counsel at $102.50 per share and accrued dividends, to yield 5.85%

7% Cumulative Preferred Stock (with Warrants)

Common Stock (no par value)

BUSINESS AND HISTORY: Buzza Clark, Inc. has been formed under the laws of Delaware to acquire the business and assets of The Buzza Company, of Minneapolis, established in 1907, and of the Charles S. Clark Company, of New York, established in 1905. The new company will be the second largest manufacturer in the United States of greeting cards, bridge tally cards, place cards, sentiment mottoes and similar printed art products.

The products of the predecessor companies are largely non-competitive, and are distributed through department stores, stationers, art shops, gift shops and bookstores. Customers number approximately 15,000.

The present consolidation is expected to result in greater efficiency, through increased purchasing power, reduced manufacturing costs and better service to customers. Buzza Clark, Inc., with its well equipped creative and production departments, diversified lines, broad distribution, and improved facilities for service, will be in a position not only to continue as a leader in the industry but also to increase substantially its business and its profits.

SALES AND EARNINGS: The following statement shows the combined sales and net earnings of the two businesses, after depreciation, interest and Federal Income Tax at 13½%, for the last three fiscal periods.

*1926	2,660,752	308,923	3.83	2.10

The combined net earnings, as stated above, for the last year amount to $340,790 equivalent to 4.23 times annual dividend requirements on the $1,150,000 of 7% Preferred Stock presently to be outstanding. After deducting such requirements on this stock and on $300,000 of 6% Second Preferred Stock, the balance of $242,290 is equivalent to $2.42 per share on the 100,000 shares of no par value Common Stock presently to be outstanding.

Such net profits for the past three years (three years and one month for The Buzza Company) have averaged $269,750 per year, equivalent to 3.35 times annual dividend requirements on the 7% Preferred Stock, and after provisions for all Preferred dividend requirements, to $1.71 per share of Common Stock presently to be outstanding.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: This issue or the proceeds thereof will be used to provide in part for the acquisition by the Company of the business and assets of the predecessor companies, and will not provide additional working capital to the Company.

COMMON STOCK PURCHASE WARRANTS: Each share of Preferred Stock will be accompanied by a non-detachable Warrant entitling the holder to purchase 1 share of Common Stock of the Company at $20 per share at any time on or before March 31, 1931, and at $25 per share at any time thereafter on or before March 31, 1933.

MANAGEMENT: The management of the Company will continue in the hands of the men who established the predecessor companies and who, with their associates, have been responsible for the success of these companies.

We offer this stock if, when and as issued and accepted by us, subject to the approval of our Counsel.

ERIE REPORTS NET GAIN.

The Erie Railroad yesterday submitted its report of earnings in January, 1928, in which is revealed a substantial increase in net railway operating income over the corresponding month in the last two years. This marks the first time the Erie has shown a gain in net railway operating income in any one month above the corresponding month in the preceding year since last July, when its net railway operating income exceeded that of July, 1926.

Gross revenues of the Erie in January decreased under those for January, 1927, by $263,852, but advanced over those for the month in 1926 by $900,362. The net railway operating income in the first month of this year increased over that for January, 1927, by $184,365, and over the results for the month in 1926, when a deficit of $204,216 was shown, by $626,170. The following table gives the results of Erie's operations in January, 1928, as compared with the corresponding month in both 1927 and 1926:

SOUTHERN PACIFIC HOPEFUL

Vice Chairman Expects Net Income This Year to Equal That of 1927.

Although earnings and current business of the Southern Pacific Railroad are running below those of a year ago at this time, business is expected to improve sufficiently to bring the net income this year up to a level at least equal to that of last year, A. D. MacDonald, Vice Chairman of the Executive Committee of the road, said yesterday.

Respecting the Southern Pacific's acquisition of the Texas Midland Railroad, which the Interstate Commerce Commission has approved, Mr. MacDonald said:

"By numerous small savings we expect to reduce expenses $175,000 annually. One of these economies will be the closing of that road's shops and general offices in Terrell, Texas. The terms require the Southern Pacific to pay $2,250,000 cash for $112,000 of stock of the road, $2,000,000 of the roads 4 per cent. bonds and $1,000,000 of its indebtedness purchased from an estate."

UPHOLDS LACKAWANNA IN EXCLUDING TAXICABS

WASHINGTON, Feb 20. — The United States Supreme Court, in a decision handed down today by Associate Justice Butler, laid down rules that give railroad companies full powers to exclude taxicab companies from the use of their station property.

The case decided was that of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company, petitioner, against the town of Morristown, N. J., and sixteen operators of taxicabs. In the opinion the Court reversed the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit and upheld the Federal District Court of New Jersey.

The record showed that the town of Morristown, by ordinance, declared a space set aside by the Lackawanna Railroad for the use of the vehicles of one taxicab company with which it had a contract, to be "an additional public hack stand." In the same ordinance the town prohibited the parking of vehicles in other parts of a driveway into the station grounds. The taxicab operators entered the grounds, used the space designated as "a public hack stand" and solicited business.

The ordinance was declared unconstitutional by the District Court. The taxicab operators were restrained from using the railroad property and the town from taking any steps that would interfere with the railroad's use or control of its premises.

Justice Butler ruled that the railroad's property was private property in every sense and that the driveway in question "is owned and held by petitioner in the same right and stands on the same footing as its other facilities." He ruled further that the railroad company was not required to extend to other taxicab companies the use of its lands which it had granted to one.

"Under the guise of regulation the town cannot require any part of the driveway to be used in a service that petitioner is under no duty to furnish," the ruling stated.

In a dissenting opinion Justice Brandeis, joined by Justice Holmes, held that the District Court injunction was too broad and prevented the town in the future from making ordnances which might be necessary to provide its inhabitants adequate cab facilities.

In an opinion by Chief Justice Taft the Court held that a New Jersey statute providing for service of process on non-residents in suits for injury growing out of the negligent operators of automobiles was unconstitutional.

HITS PERE MARQUETTE PLAN

I. C. C. Examiner Disapproves Projected Line to Pontiac, Mich.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP).—Proposals of the Pere Marquette Railroad to build into Pontiac, Mich., to gain access to automobile plants there on a competitive basis with the Grand Trunk Railroad, should be disapproved, the Interstate Commerce Commission was advised today by H. C. Davis, an examiner assigned to make a preliminary investigation.

The Grand Trunk has pending before the commission a proposal to connect two of its subsidiaries, the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee and the Pontiac, Oxford & Northern, by constructing seven miles of new line which would constitute a belt around Pontiac. The Pere Marquette's plan is to build seventeen miles of new railroad from Wixom into Pontiac, and seven miles of belt railroad around the city.

The proposed route of the two systems "cross, recross, encroach upon and conflict with each other," the Davis report said, both railroads seeking to serve $33,000,000 worth of automobile enterprises operated at Pontiac by subsidiaries of the General Motors Corporation.

In view of the showing, the commission was advised that the situation did not justify "depriving the Grand Trunk of the traffic advantages" which it now holds. The case will be considered further by the commission before a final decision is reached.

International Railways Gain.

The International Railways of Central America report gross revenues of $753,320 for January, an increase of $103,363 over the $649,957 gross revenues reported for January, 1927. Net income applicable to fixed charges was $342,808, against $236,084 in January last year.

PRINTING MERGER FINANCES.

Stock of Buzza Clark, Inc., to Be Put on Market Today.

The American people spend $45,000,000 a year for greeting cards, according to a calculation made yesterday in connection with the public offering today in the New York market of the first financing for what is known as the printed art goods industry. Twenty years ago the annual outlay for such cards was only about $3,000,000.

The financing announced yesterday is for Buzza Clark, Inc., which represents the consolidation of the Buzza Company of Minneapolis and the Charles S. Clark Company of New York. The offering, which is made by Shields & Co., Inc., consists of $1,150,000 of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock with warrants. The consolidated company, according to the announcement, will be the second largest manufacturer in the country of greeting cards, bridge tally cards, place cards, sentiment mottoes and similar goods.

The preferred stock is offered in units of one share of preferred, with common stock purchase warrant, and one share of common, priced at $112 a unit. Each warrant entitles the holder to purchase one share of common stock at $20 on or before March 31, 1931, and at $25 a share on or before March 31, 1933.

COLOMBIAN OIL OUTPUT UP.

International's Production More Than Doubled in 1927.

Production of crude oil in Colombia by the International Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of Imperial Oil, Ltd., amounted to 15,008,175 barrels in 1927, comparing with 6,483,548 barrels in 1926, an increase of 8,556,627 barrels. Production was curtailed from full capacity, due to the excessive output in the United States, President C. C. Stillman of Imperial Oil, Ltd., announces. A total of 13,716,864 barrels was shipped to Canadian, American and foreign markets during the year. Sales of refined products in Colombia increased 65.08 per cent. over 1926.

International's Peruvian production fell from 8,632,125 barrels in 1926 to 7,768,139 barrels in 1927, of which 6,816,966 barrels were high cold test crude and the balance low cold test.

PROXIES ARE SOUGHT TO UPHOLD STEWART

SENATE INQUIRY REFLECTED

Any stockholding interests in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana that may be dissatisfied with the attitude of Colonel Robert W. Stewart, its Chairman, in the United States Senate's investigation of the Continental Trading Company's oil transactions will have the opportunity of registering a protest at the annual meeting of the company's stockholders in Whiting, Ind., on March 1.

Representatives of the Stewart management have sent to stockholders requests for proxies to be voted at that time. Many of the stockholders in this city, it was learned yesterday, already have returned the proxies, giving the present management full authority to vote their stock. One holder of a substantial amount of the stock returned his proxy with the indorsement on the back that he had purchased the stock as a permanent investment and would not consider his investment satisfactorily protected if Colonel Stewart should withdraw from the company.

There is much interest in the position which John D. Rockefeller Jr. will take in the annual meeting in view of his openly expressed disapproval of Colonel Stewart's action in declining to answer certain questions put to him by the Senate investigating committee. Mr. Rockefeller, members of his family and the Rockefeller Foundation own about 15 per cent. of the capital stock of the company. It has been assumed in Wall Street that Mr. Rockefeller, in view of his utterances, would take steps to oppose the re-election of Colonel Stewart as Chairman, although he has not said he would do so.

Recent reports from Chicago have indicated that Colonel Stewart does not intend to resign at this time unless the stockholders indicate that they wish him to do so. It was reported that he had offered his resignation to his directors and that they declined to accept it. Mr. Rockefeller said some days ago that Colonel Stewart had told him the stockholders could have his resignation at any time that they felt that his attitude in the Continental Trading investigation was embarrassing to them.

The stockholders at the annual meeting will elect directors, who in turn will name the Chairman. Colonel Stewart is a member of the directorate and his name, it is assumed, will come before the stockholders in the usual way.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION IN TEXAS TAKES SPURT

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 20.—Railroad construction in Texas this year promises to exceed that of any year since the new law went into effect which requires that all such projects must first have the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. That body has already approved extensions of existing systems in the State which, when completed, will aggregate more than 800 miles.

Construction is already well advanced upon some of these projects, particularly those of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific in Northwest Texas, which involve more than 400 miles of new track. In the lower Rio Grande Valley both the Missouri Pacific and the Southern Pacific are rounding out extensions. Their new mileage for this year in that part of the State will be more than 100 miles.

The Waco, Beaumont, Trinity & Sabine Railway Company has received permission to construct extensions of its line from Weldon to Waco and from Livingston to Beaumont and Port Arthur. These extensions will total more than 250 miles and will give Central Texas a new rail connection to the deep-water ports of Port Arthur and Beaumont.

The Texas & Pacific has received a certificate for the construction of a branch line from Monahans through the oil field of Winkler County to a point on the Texas-New Mexico line, thirty-five miles.

Construction of the new line of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific that is to run from Amarillo to Liberal, Kan., is now well under way. That part of this new road through the Panhandle of Texas, ninety miles, will be completed this year, it is expected.

Another extension which is under construction at this time is that of the Quanah, Acme & Pacific, subsidiary of the 'Frisco. This extension is to run from McBain to Floydada, twenty-eight miles, and on to El Paso.

To the Clinton & Oklahoma Western Railroad has been granted a certificate to construct an extension from Cheyenne, Okla., to Pampa, Texas, about seventy-five miles, which it is planned to complete this year.

Preliminary steps have been taken for the construction of other extensions, and applications for the necessary authority will be made soon to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK—TRUSTEE

Mr. P. J. Murphy, Vice-President of the Railroad Company, has summarized as follows his letter describing these Bonds:

PROPERTY: The Lackawanna and Wyoming Valley Railroad Company, organized under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, operates by a third-rail electric system a double-track railroad of modern and substantial construction between Scranton, Pittston and Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. This road, including an extension to Dunmore, Pa., is twenty-two miles in length and has been built entirely on private right-of-way owned by the Railroad Company, with one minor exception. Construction, both as to road-bed and equipment, has been according to standard specifications in order to permit the interchange of equipment with the steam railroads connecting with its lines, i. e., the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, the Lehigh Valley Railroad and the Erie Railroad.

The Railroad Company owns the entire capital stock of the Lackawanna and Wyoming Valley Power Company which generates the electric power used by the railroad. The power plant, which is owned by the Railroad Company and leased to the Power Company, has a capacity of 6,000 K. W., is located at Scranton, and with the transmission lines and substations cost over $1,000,000. The Power Company sells surplus power to private consumers and to the Scranton Electric Company, one of the principal subsidiaries of the American Gas & Electric Company. Car storage and repair shops of the Railroad Company, also located at Scranton, are adequately equipped. Substantial passenger and freight stations are located at suitable points along the line.

The Railroad Company owns valuable terminal properties, consisting of modern brick structures and 98 acres of real estate in Scranton and 15 acres in Wilkes-Barre. These properties are exceptionally well located, being adjacent to the business centers of each city.

TERRITORY: The important manufacturing centers, Scranton (estimated population 140,000), Pittston (estimated population 50,000) and Wilkes-Barre (estimated population 95,000), are situated in the heart of one of the richest anthracite mining regions in the United States. The territory between these cities is well populated and has shown substantial growth both in the establishment of industrial plants and in population. The total population tributary to the lines of the Railroad Company is estimated to be in excess of 500,000.

SECURITY: The above described Bonds are secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct first mortgage upon all the real estate and other physical property of the Railroad Company with one minor exception, including rolling stock, and upon the franchises of the Railroad Company. As of December 31, 1927, the cost of road and equipment, based on construction vouchers, was $8,137,627. Estimated on the basis of the index numbers of the United States Department of Labor, the cost of reproduction of the road and equipment was $13,440,921 as of December 31, 1926. The foregoing figures do not take account of accrued depreciation which appears on the books of the Railroad Company as of December 31, 1927, at $933,923.96. Additional bonds may be issued only in accordance with the conservative provisions of the mortgage as supplemented.

EARNINGS: The average net earnings, including those of subsidiaries, after depreciation and all deductions, except Federal income taxes, for the five years ended December 31, 1927, were $438,739, an amount in excess of three times the interest on this issue of bonds. The net earnings, as above stated, for the year ended December 31, 1927, were $440,549.

MANAGEMENT: The management of the Railroad Company, since 1914, has been under supervision of Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., Engineers. Among the Directors of the Railroad Company are the Hon. Wm. C. Sproul, former Governor of Pennsylvania, Mr. Frank R. Ford of Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., New York, and Mr. Walter H. Lippincott of Philadelphia.

We offer these Bonds when, as and if issued and accepted by us subject to the approval of all legal proceedings by counsel, Messrs. Wise, Whitney and Parker of New York City and Messrs. Townsend, Elliott and Munson of Philadelphia, Pa., for the Bankers, and Messrs. Davies, Auerbach and Cornell of New York City for the Company. It is expected that temporary Bonds or interim receipts will be delivered about March 23, 1928.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

LONDON LOANS RULE EASY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Trading in the new account on the Stock Exchange began today in quiet fashion. Leading investment securities maintained a firm tone, with rises in several British Government and domestic railroad issues and foreign Government bonds, especially Chinese. Oil shares were supported and the leaders closed with a general rise.

A further fall to below 15 pence a pound occurred in the price of rubber, but it had little effect on the shares. Stocks of rubber were lower on the week to the extent of 1,176 tons.

The industrial market was in a subdued mood, with few movements either way. In the mining market Paris selling caused a fall in De Beers of 1-16 of a point and Rand Mines dropped 1-32.

In Lombard Street money was fairly plentiful and discount quotations showed little change. A feature of foreign exchanges was the strength against the dollar. New York was a persistent buyer of sterling in the afternoon and the rate closed at $4.87 11-16, a rise of 5-32.

Paris Turns Dull and Heavy.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—Contrary to all the indications at the close of last week, which were for increased activity on the Bourse, the session today witnessed a sharp slump. The early hours saw a large number of transactions, consisting chiefly of orders that had piled since Saturday from provincial and foreign sources. But when this rush was concluded, trading became dull and heavy for the remainder of the day until just at the closing, when there was a slight recovery.

The reasons for the extreme conservatism which featured the session are attributed by many to unsatisfactory reports from the New York market, but the basis of this interpretation is obscure.

An exception to the lagging tendency appeared in Turkish bank stocks and Ottoman bonds, which were in demand.

Rentes remained irregular, closing as follows: 3s, 66.85; 4s of 1917, 73.70; 4s of 1918, 72.95; 5s of 1920, amortizable, 102.10; 5s of 1915, 85.05; 6s, 97.10.

Berlin Is Strong on New Buying.

BERLIN, Feb. 20.—The Stock Exchange opened the week strong and active, despite an increase in the private discount rate to 6½ per cent. The principal stimulant came in large purchasing orders from Switzerland and Holland, especially for mining stocks.

Quotations generally went 2 to 4 points higher in the first hour, while a few specialties such as textiles and electrical issues gained 8 to 10.

Trading was lively at closing time, with an upward tendency. Foreign stocks and rentes were well maintained and went slightly higher.

The money market was somewhat easier, but call money was still heavily demanded at 5 to 7 per cent.

Pepperell Declares $4 Dividend.

BOSTON, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Pepperell Manufacturing Company directors today declared a semiannual dividend of $4. It is payable on March 1 to stockholders of record today.

HOME INSURANCE CO.'S DEAL

Acquisition of the Halifax Fire Insurance Company, the oldest fire insurance company in Canada and one of the oldest on the continent, has been announced by the Home Insurance Company of New York. The Home obtained a block of shares of the Halifax Company constituting much more than control. It is understood that the price paid for the shares was approximately $20, or a 100 per cent. premium over the par value.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Strength in Sterling the Feature—Gold Movement Discussed—Europeans Quiet and Firm.

Sterling opened the week in the same quiet strength which characterized the trading last week, and on buying from excellent quarters rose 3-16 to $4.87⅜, for checks. There was a fractional concession from this point at the close, but the tone remained firm right up to the finish. Talk of resumption of a gold movement eastward, as the pound presently shows a recovery of ¾ cent from the year's lowest, was revived, even though it is recognized that the shipping point is, roughly, $4.88½, for cables, and the rate is still a good fraction of a cent away from that figure.

Business in the Europeans was small and fluctuations were unimportant. The French, Italian, Scandinavian, German, Swiss and Holland descriptions were all steady. Far Eastern and Latins likewise did little either in the way of turnover or price changes.

$13,135,666 PROFIT FOR GOODYEAR TIRE

$9,606,195 FOR REFINANCING

Statement for 1927 Shows Other Reserves and Deductions Exceeding $15,000,000.

The net profit of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company for 1927 amounted to $13,135,666, against $8,790,138 in 1926. This was after deductions of $9,298,648 for depreciation and $3,500,000 for contingencies last year and after taxes, interest and profits of subsidiary companies applicable to stock not held by the company.

Unit sales of tires increased more than 15 per cent., but net sales of all products were 3.5 per cent. less than in 1926, amounting to $222,178,540. This reflected the lower selling prices which prevailed during 1927.

The consolidated surplus at the close of 1927 amounted to $25,589,105, after dividends of $5,645,379, charges of $9,606,195 incident to refinancing and extraordinary legal and other expense, and reserving $3,000,000 for loss on liquidation of subsidiary properties.

"With the settlement of stockholders' litigation during the year," President P. W. Litchfield reported, "a constructive program of refinancing was carried into effect. The consolidated balance sheet reflects the retirement of prior preference stock and management stock, and shows the funded debt of the company in its new form. The lower interest, dividend and sinking fund requirements of the revised capital structure result in substantial benefit to stockholders."

Reporting the practically unanimous acceptance of the company's offer to exchange new first preferred stock for old preferred shares, Mr. Litchfield said this had resulted in an increase of current dividend income for preferred stockholders, and, "through removal of the large accumulation of preferred stock dividends and reduction of other barriers, has largely cleared the way for dividends on common stock, whenever the company's earnings, asset ratios and surplus will justify their declaration."

Current assets amounted to $110,654,622 at the close of 1927, and total assets to $213,310,301, while current liabilities were $14,996,060, the current ratio being 7.3 to 1. Cash was $10,089,343 and call loans $12,940,400. Inventories, at cost or market, were $68,758,686.

RESERVE BANK RAISES RATE AT ST. LOUIS

Cleveland Only Place in the Federal System With 3½ Per Cent. Rediscount.

An advance from 3½ to 4 per cent. in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, announced yesterday, made the 4 per cent. rate effective in eleven out of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks of the country. The Cleveland bank is the only one that has not yet advanced its rate, and it is expected to join in the upward movement within a short time.

The upward movement was inaugurated by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, which announced an advance from 3½ to 4 per cent. on Jan. 24. This was followed by a similar advance by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. The New York bank moved its rate up on Feb. 3. Since then advances have been announced by the Reserve banks at Boston, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Dallas, Kansas City, San Francisco and Minneapolis.

The financial district has been little concerned with the recent advances, as it had been taken for granted that all the banks of the Federal Reserve system would go on a 4 per cent. rediscount rate basis after the advances had been made at Chicago and New York. Since the advance was made here, the total of brokers' loans has shown a net increase of more than $3,000,000, but a material decrease is forecast for this week, based on heavy liquidation which has taken place in the stock market.

SUPREME COURT HOLDS MOTOR BUS TAX LEGAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Connecticut's law imposing a tax of one cent a mile on motor buses engaged in interstate commerce, on the mileage traveled within the State, was upheld today by the Supreme Court in an opinion by Associate Justice Stone. The law, the opinion said, has not been shown to be either unconstitutional or discriminatory.

This case was brought originally in the Connecticut Federal District Court by the Interstate Buses Corporation, which operates across the State line into Rhode Island. It was a suit to restrain the State authorities from levying the mileage tax on the ground that the tax was an unconstitutional burden on interstate commerce. The District Court dismissed the bill and appeal was taken to the United States Supreme Court.

NO EXTRA DU PONT DIVIDEND

Directors of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. took no action at their dividend meeting yesterday toward a distribution of the benefits of the two-for-one split-up of common stock of the General Motors Corporation, authorized last Autumn.

The du Pont company owns nearly 25 per cent. of the common stock of General Motors and has made a practice of passing along to its own stockholders the special disbursements of cash and stock of that company. It has been generally predicted that the du Pont board would take some steps yesterday to give its stockholders the benefit of the last General Motors split-up.

The du Pont directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share on common stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the debenture stock.

THREE COMPANIES REDUCE DIVIDENDS

TWO EXTRAS ARE DECLARED

Paraffine and Dolese & Shepard to Make Additional Payments —Two Initials Announced.

Frank Phillips, President, said that the company had a large earned surplus and that its cash and current position was never better, but it was deemed advisable in the best interests of stockholders to conserve cash resources and expand inventories and facilities during the present period of depression and of low prices in the industry, with the recommendation that when conditions in the industry improved and earnings of the company justified it a more liberal dividend policy should be established.

The White Motor Company declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, comparing with 50 cents declared three months ago and $1 quarterly declared previously to that time, thus making the second successive halving of the dividend.

Advance figures of the company's earnings indicate a net loss of $668,000 after taxes and charges for 1927, comparing with a net income of $2,566,291 after charges and Federal taxes in 1926.

The Laclede Gas Light Company declared a quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share on the common stock, reducing the annual rate from $12 to $10 a share.

An initial dividend of 16 2-3 cents, covering a one-month period, was declared on the Central Brass and Fixtures Company Class A non-par stock, or at a $2 per annum rate.

An initial semi-annual dividend of 50 cents on each combination A and B certificate in Insuranshares Trust Fund series F-27, and an initial dividend of 27 cents on each combination A and B certificate in Insuranshares Trust Fund series H-27, were declared yesterday by the directors of the Insuranshares Management Company.

The second semi-annual dividends of 83 cents on each combination A and B certificate in series A-27, and of 78 cents on A and B certificates in series C-27 were also declared.

Motor Products' Profit Larger.

Net profit of the Motor Products Corporation for 1927 amounted to $575,879, before Federal taxes, against $482,290 in 1926. Total assets were $7,215,057 at the end of 1927, against $7,215,057 the year before.

A BANK LOOKS AT BUSINESS TRENDS

Nearly a million cars in Metropolitan New York

Of all the automobiles in the United States, 5.7% are registered in the 27 counties constituting Metropolitan New York. In 1926 they numbered 998,249 passenger cars.

Other merchants and manufacturers are wakening to the need of measuring territorial buying movements more accurately.

The Seaboard is especially interested in these developments because they tie in so closely with the commercial activities of the clientele we serve.

When business outgrows its clothes

Favorable business conditions, enlarged channels of distribution, or the desire for increased production based on these two elements may make a previously adequate working capital insufficient for the new requirements.

Many an able company has come to an untimely end because it has relied too much on the immediate turnover of its manufactured products into cash.

We can show you a better, safer and more profitable method. We shall welcome the opportunity to discuss with you the means by which you can utilize our resources to take advantage of increased business opportunities.

Ours is a commercial banking service flexible enough to meet the constructive requirements of any sound business. Our facilities are complete for either domestic or foreign transactions. Federal Board Condition Statement Shows a Falling Off in Investments.

NET DEMAND DEPOSITS UP

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of 649 reporting member banks in leading cities as of Feb. 15 shows decreases for the week of $33,000,000 in loans and discounts, of $6,000,000 in investments and of $6,000,000 in time deposits, and increases of $42,000,000 in net demand deposits and of $21,000,000 in borrowings from the Federal Reserve banks.

Loans on stocks and bonds, including United States Government obligations, were $64,000,000 below the Feb. 8 total at all reporting banks, the principal changes by districts being declines of $36,000,000 in the New York district, $15,000,000 in the Boston district, $12,000,000 in the Chicago district and $10,000,000 in the Philadelphia district; an increase of $6,000,000 in the San Francisco district; "all other" loans and discounts increased $16,000,000 and $10,000,000, respectively, in the New York and Chicago districts and $31,000,000 at all reporting banks, and declined $6,000,000 in the St. Louis district.

Holdings of United States Government obligations were $15,000,000 below, and of other bonds, stocks and securities $6,000,000 above the amounts reported a week ago, the principal changes in United States Government security holdings being a decline of $10,000,000 in the New York district and an increase of $6,000,000 in the San Francisco district.

Net demand deposits, which were $42,000,000 above the preceding week's total, increased $28,000,000 in the San Francisco district, $20,000,000 in the Chicago district, and $7,000,000 in the Atlanta district, and declined $16,000,000 in the Philadelphia district. A reduction of $17,000,000 in time deposits reported by member banks in the New York district and smaller declines in other districts were largely offset by increases of $9,000,000 in the San Francisco district and of $6,000,000 in the Cleveland district.

Borrowings from the Federal Reserve banks were $21,000,000 higher than on Feb. 8, the principal increases being $27,000,000 and $13,000,000, respectively, in the New York and Philadelphia districts, and the principal decline $14,000,000 in the Boston district.

WESTERN FINANCIERS ENTER EASTERN FIELD

The Fleishhacker banking interests of California, representing one of the largest aggregations of capital on the Pacific Coast, have entered the security underwriting and distribution field in New York with the formation of the Anglo-California Company, Inc., which opened for business yesterday at 50 Broadway.

The new company, incorporated under the laws of New York, is owned by the Anglo-California Securities Company of San Francisco, which in turn is owned by the stockholders of the Anglo-California Trust Company of San Francisco. The new company intends to broaden the field here for the distribution of securities orginating on the Pacific Coast and will also appear in syndicates from time to time offering municipal and industrial securities originating in other parts of the country.

Mortimer Fleishhacker is President of the Anglo-California Trust Company, whose latest statement showed total resources of $69,677,955, and he is a Vice President of the Anglo & London Paris National Bank of San Francisco, of which his brother, Herbert Fleishhacker, is President. Herbert Fleishhacker is a Vice President of the Anglo-California Trust Company, giving the family control of two of the leading banks of San Francisco, the Anglo & London Paris having resources in excess of $125,000,000, besides extensive security distributing facilities.

In entering the New York field the Anglo-California Company, Inc., follows a trend of California banking that has been in evidence for some time. The Anglo London Paris Company, controlled by the Anglo & London Paris National Bank, has offices here, and the Bancitaly Corporation, the outgrowth of the Bank of Italy of San Francisco, does an extensive business in New York. Similarly several of the larger investment houses here have connections in California through which portions of their bond offerings are sold.

Alfred de Ropp Jr., as resident Vice President, is in charge of the offices here of the Anglo-California Company, Inc.

Russian Gold Due Today.

A consignment of $5,000,000 in gold sent by the Bank of the Soviet Union, one half for the Chase National Bank and the other half for the Equitable Trust Company, is due to arrive here this morning on the Hamburg of the Hamburg-American Line. The gold is the first sent here from Russia since the war. It left Hamburg on Feb. 10. It is expected that armored trucks will carry the bullion to the Chase National and that the Equitable Trust's share will be delivered from that point.

INVESTMENT COUNSEL

The growth of investment counsel has been rapid. It is now enlarging at an even faster rate as more and more new companies spring up. We are finding today as never before widespread appreciation of the fact that a conservative group of investment specialists is able to render individual investors a highly worthwhile and profitable service.

However, all companies engaged in this work are not alike, and it is important to determine which can function best for you; can protect your capital and increase your income by a personal and intelligent co-operation. Ask these four questions, and the answers will enable you to make a sound decision:

(1) What has the Service done for others?

(2) Does the record extend over a long enough period to be conclusive?

(3) Is the organization large enough, old enough in experience, trained enough, to permit full attention to your problems and intelligent decisions on them?

(1) Brookmire clients have profited steadily—year after year. Unbalanced lists, weak stocks, over-extended positions have been corrected and turned into safe, productive investment accounts. (A detailed list of recommendations has been compiled. It will show exactly what results have been secured by clients. We will send it on request.)

How long a record?

(2) The Brookmire record extends over nearly a quarter century, with a growing number of clients . . . larger now than at any time past. There is but one reason for this. More and more men are finding that it pays to follow Brookmire advice.

How complete a staff?

(3) The organization numbers 102 people, covering every phase of investment, from research into agricultural conditions, commodity prices, basic industries, money rates and foreign trade, to specialists on technical conditions and analysts of individual stocks and bonds. A smaller staff must necessarily be more superficial, and superficial investment recommendations cannot be consistently correct.

What purpose?

(4) The Brookmire purpose is distinctly not one of striving for quick profits; it is to secure for every client a high degree of safety plus steady appreciation at a better-than-average rate.

That Brookmire Service meets the needs of a substantial class of investors is indicated by the steady increase in the number of Bulletin Service clients, and by the even greater increase in the number of men with capital amounts of $10,000, $50,000, $100,000 and more, who are employing our special plan of individual supervisory service.

The special plan

The supervisory plan was originally created because it became apparent that the increased complexities of large investment accounts could be handled best by a highly individualized service. Its success is indicated by the fact that a surprising percentage of men who start with us on that basis tell us they are doing so because of the endorsement and approval given it by their business associates who have worked with our supervisory units and recommend it.

We will be glad to forward for your inspection the facts about whichever program suits your needs, the Bulletin Service or Supervisory Plan depending on the amount of your capital. The coupon is for your convenience. We would appreciate your filling out the last line, and will consider it entirely confidential.

"That is why I keep my account with The Equitable"

So said a business man after summing up a discussion of banks and banking services.

The points he emphasized were these:

2 The forms of Equitable Service were so complete that he had been able to relieve himself of many financial details which formerly had been a severe drain on his time and energy.

3 His name and credit were linked with the name and credit of The Equitable—giving him the prestige which is an asset of a depositor in one of the world's largest banks.

We shall be glad to give you information on any one or all phases of our service. Read the column at the right, then send for our booklet, Equitable Service.

Your Bank is your business partner

Your bank is your business partner, constantly active and eager to assist in building up the profits and planning for the legitimate expansion of your business. As a partner, your bank from time to time assists in financing the business from which your profits are made, yet unlike a partner, it does not share in those profits except to the extent of caring for the resultant growth in your banking needs.

Your bank with its own offices here and abroad and thousands of correspondents, offers you a great worldwide organization for the supplying of up-to-date credits information on firms and individuals. Through its many contacts, your bank is naturally in close touch with general business conditions and its officers frequently can furnish valuable information bearing on problems arising within your own industry.

Your bank through its bond department can suggest at times such changes in the financial structure of your business as will keep it on the most practical and economical basis in relation to the trend of the money market. Periodic analysis of this nature and proper investment of your surplus funds will materially enhance your firm's borrowing position.

NECESSITY may be the Mother of Invention

Successful Business shapes its progress on desirable action rather than necessary procedure. Most plans, or actions, become necessary only when the desirable thing to do has been overlooked, or too long delayed. And while stark necessity, fear of failure, or loss of prestige, often stirs the mental and physical forces of a business into "inventive" action; such action is probably only something competitors with vision and foresight have been doing all along—the desirable thing to do.

On this simple practice of knowing what is the desirable—and doing it before it becomes a necessity—the new and modern Accounting is based. Detailed Audits, Budgeting, Standard Costs, Inventory Control, Uniform Systems for Associations and Trade Groups—are only some of its ripened fruits.

ADVANCE CONTINUES IN COTTON MARKET

BREAK IN STOCKS IGNORED

In spite of another break in the stock market, cotton continued the recovery under way at the close of the week and ended at a gain of 11 to 16 points yesterday. Exports of 68,000 bales in two days compared with 81,000 two years ago, and reports of export engagements to Russia, as well as further shipments to India, exerted a steadying influence on the course of prices.

As was the case on Saturday, comparatively few selling orders emanated from Southern sources, with advices from several sections of limited offers of actual cotton on a firm basis. Final quotations proved the highest of the day after fluctuations had held within a 15-point range throughout the trading period. Quotations at Southern spot markets were advanced 10 to 23 points for the second successive day.

With a holiday in New Orleans today and both Exchanges closed tomorrow, operations in the March position prior to the circulation of notices Friday increased the volume. The improvement in Liverpool, a further advance in Alexandria and an increase of five points in Indian spot quotations created a demand for contracts at the opening of the local market. Routine daily price-fixing by mills, based on both the March and May deliveries, started the list with an initial advance of 10 points, while absence of definite selling pressure from Southern quarters proved a feature of early trading.

Liquidation of the outstanding long interest in March furnished contracts which were absorbed by spot firms in the process of covering hedges and transferring to later months. Brokers bought March and sold May, July or October, March holding around 16 points under May during the greater part of the day, although the discount widened toward the close. A quantity of March contracts liquidated by holders was replaced by new crop deliveries. Weakness in securities brought out some professional selling at one time, but without weakening the market, and a steady demand advanced both new and old crops in final dealings.

MOST PRICES DECLINE IN COUNTER TRADING

But There Is an Improvement in Selected Stocks of Sugar and Industrial Groups.

Improvement in selected stocks in the industrial and sugar sections was in contrast to the movements of other stocks in the over-the-counter market yesterday. In large part it was a day of declining prices. A dozen bank and trust company stocks showed declines of from 5 to 20 points. Insurance securities followed a similar course. Chain stores were quiet.

Gains were registered by American Meter, Crowell Publishing common, White Rock first preferred, Muller Bakeries, Standard Textile A, American Salesbook preferred and the Lehigh Portland Cement issues. About an equal number of issues saw lower prices, including Curtis Publishing common, Columbia Phonograph, Great Northern Paper, Lawrence Portland Cement, Industrial Finance preferred and E. W. Bliss first preferred.

Queensboro National and County Trust were each up 15 points. Issues which were lower included Bankers Trust, America, Bank of United States, Commerce, Chatham Phenix and City. In the insurance list Globe and Rutgers was off 40, Bankers and Shippers lost 25, Home was down 25 and Aetna Fire dropped 20, with a half dozen others off 5 to 15 points.

In the chain store group, Neisner Brothers' common was up a point and a half-dozen issues lost a point or two. Sugar shares seemed steadier, with point gains for National Sugar Refining and Central Aguirre.

National Fireproofing Earns Less.

Net income of the National Fireproofing Company for 1927 amounted to $179,414 after Federal taxes, depreciation and depletion but before loss on the sale of a plant at Pittsburgh. This income was equal to $1.13 a share earned on 158,010 shares of 7 per cent. preferred stock, against $519,865, or $3.29 a share, earned in 1926.

CURB'S COMMITTEES SELECTED FOR YEAR

ONE NEW BODY ORGANIZED

Will Deal With Foreign Securities—Three Additions Made to General Committee.

The New York Curb Exchange yesterday announced the composition of its committee for the ensuing year. Few changes were made in any but the nominating committee, which is entirely renewed each year. Three members were added to the General Committee, and a new special committee on foreign securities was created.

In most cases the changes consisted in the election of the Curb's new President, William S. Muller, to committee memberships formerly held by ex-President David U. Page, and vice versa. Percy Bullard resigned from several committees because of pressure of business, and was succeeded by Frederick W. Ludwig, who was on no committee last year. Austin K. Neftel replaces President Muller as Vice-Chairman of the Committee on Listing for the unlisted division, and is one of the new members of the General Committee, the others being Louis J. Dreyfus and Howard C. Sykes.

CURB STOCKS FIRMER, PRICE RANGE NARROW

Most Leaders Make Recoveries, With Slight Advances—Oils Stronger, Utilities Mixed.

A much firmer tone was shown by stocks on the New York Curb Exchange yesterday, due to the absorption of offerings, which continued, however, in a more desultory fashion. Fractional recoveries were shown by most of the recent leaders, with but a few issues venturing much higher than the previous close. Liquidation continued in leading mining issues and some of the specialties and oils.

The recoveries of Bancitaly, American Superpower A and B shares, Evans Auto Loading B and Sparks Withington, in very active trading ranged between one and two points. In a less active close wider gains were shown by Brockway Motors, J. W. Watson, Penn-Mex Fuel and Tubize Silks.

Fractional gains were made by a fairly wide range of active stocks, including St. Paul common, while the preferred reacted Swift International, Mavis Bottling Celanese common, American Rolling Mills and Industrial Rayon.

Declines appeared again in Newmont and Noranda Mines, with Hudson Bay slightly better. Drug Products, Bliss & Co., McKeesport Tin Plate and Seiberling Rubber eased slightly. In the oil group Prairie Pipe and Prairie Oil, Houston Gulf Gas and Gulf Oil were weak, while other issues steadied or gained fractions. Trading was very active in the group.

Among the utilities many irregularities appeared, with Cities Service, United Gas Improvement, American Gas and Electric and Northern States Power down slightly and Northeastern Power, National Electric Power A, United Light and Power A and Northern Ohio Power up by fractions. Electric Bond and Share was weak in large dealings.

INCREASE LAST MONTH IN SPINNING ACTIVITY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP).—The cotton spinning industry showed greater activity in January than in December, the Census Bureau's monthly report today showing an increase of 400,000,000 active spindle hours over December.

Active spindle hours totaled 8,259,459,529, or an average of 227 hours per spindle in place, compared with 7,859,363,372 and 215 in December and 8,558,066,401 and 229 in January last year.

Spinning spindles in place Jan. 31 totaled 36,349,130, of which 31,697,878 were operated at some time during the month, compared with 36,494,496 and 31,715,396 in December and 37,373,992 and 32,633,550 in January last year.

The average number of spindles operated during January was 28,890,685, or at 101.5 per cent. capacity on a single-shift basis, compared with 84,428,611 and 94.3 in December and 38,224,424 and 102.8 in January last year.

Bigelow Hartford Carpet Co.

Net profit of the Bigelow Hartford Carpet Company for 1927 was $2,136,874 after depreciation, obsolescence and Federal tax reserves, against $1,550,012 in 1926. Sales were $19,440,662, against $19,456,145.

GRAIN PRICES RISE, MARKETS ACTIVE

JULY IS AT A NEW HIGH

Corn Closed Unchanged to One-quarter Cent Higher—Oats Dull, Rye Moves Up.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—The wheat market showed fair activity with near-by deliveries selling at a new high on the present movement and the July at a new high on the crop as the result of buying by houses with Eastern and foreign connections. The finish was at net gains of ⅝ to 1¼ cent. At Winnipeg exporters and houses with Continental connections were buyers, and that market finished 1⅛ cent higher.

The Russian situation is having considerable influence both here and abroad and the trade is paying more attention to the press reports regarding the development of a severe food scarcity. One of the largest of the seaboard exporters expressed the belief that Russia would probably import wheat on a moderate scale this season. Letters from the Continent also indicated that Russia would buy wheat and claimed that the Winter wheat acreage was anywhere from 20 to 50 per cent. less than the pre-war average.

Liverpool closed 1½ to 1¾ pence higher, while Argentine markets were closed. American buying orders and the strength here was responsible for a sharp bulge in Liverpool with some selling here credited to those who bought abroad.

The domestic visible supply decreased 1,578,000 bushels for the week and is 74,217,000 bushels against 75,795,000 bushels the previous week and 55,970,000 bushels last year.

Corn closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher, after a range of ⅜ to 1 cent. The local element was more disposed to take the selling side, but the breaks brought about commission house buying, and offerings were readily absorbed.

Nothing was heard regarding export demand. The visible supply increased 1,599,000 bushels for the week and the total is 38,456,000 bushels, compared with last week's corrected figures of 37,482,000 bushels and with 43,571,000 bushels last year.

SEES OUTLOOK GOOD FOR PAPER INDUSTRY

REVIEWS 1927 PRODUCTION

200 Pounds Per Capita in Nation Consumed, He Says—Sisson Asks Study of Future Requirements.

The paper industry of the United States is looking forward to a prosperous year, despite the questionable conditions that are supposed to surround a Presidential year, D. C. Everest, President of the American Paper and Pulp Association, declared yesterday at the opening of the annual convention of the association at the Waldorf. More than a thousand members of the association and affiliated organizations attended committee meetings at the hotel yesterday.

The paper mills have a capacity about 20 per cent. in excess of the consumers' requirements, but this situation is found in most of the nation's basic industries, and therefore is not alarming, Mr. Everest said.

"The first weeks of this year indicate an increased buying demand, and there is every reason to anticipate that the year will see the largest consumption of paper ever known," he declared.

"The year 1927 saw a production of paper nearly equal to the previous high record, and consumption was the largest in history, reaching a total of 200 pounds for each person in the nation. The increased consumption, in the face of slightly lower domestic production, is accounted for by the constantly increasing volume of imports of newsprint from Canada, which now supplies more than half of the paper consumed by American newspapers."

George W. Sisson, Vice President of the association, said a thorough analysis of the future requirements of pulp by this nation was essential.

"Some notable developments in the industry, affecting every part of the nation, occurred last year," Mr. Sisson said. "A rapid development of the pulp industry is under way in the Pacific Coast States. Meanwhile, raw material resources east of the Mississippi, where most of the nation's paper mills are located, are decreasing. Forestry practice by many of the mills, however, will alleviate the situation caused by the cutting down of the forests from which the industry's raw material is derived."

The convention will conclude Thursday. Tonight the annual dinner will be given at the Waldorf.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP).—Seven men aboard the four-masted schooner George W. Truitt Jr., stranded on the North Carolina coast, were rescued today by a coast guardsman by means of a breeches buoy.

A message to the Coast Guard headquarters here said the vessel, which went ashore seven miles north of the Ocracoke Station, was full of water and breaking up. The seven men taken off made up the crew.

RADIO IS ENLISTED IN DIVINING ORES

MAGNETISM UTILIZED, TOO

Reflected Artificial Earthquake Waves Also Determine Presence of Metals.

Eight types of scientific divining rods or instruments for prospecting for ore bodies without the use of pick and shovel, were described yesterday at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, where the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers began its annual meeting, which will continue through Thursday.

Three of the methods consist of underground broadcasting of radio waves and of propagating sound waves and artificial earthquake waves through an underground region and catching those waves on the rebound. The manner in which they are reflected and distorted tells something of what is in the earth below.

A fourth method is that of detecting and studying magnetic action which occurs at the surface near iron ores and some other ores. The fifth method is gravitational. The Eotvos balance is used in this. It is so sensitive to the force of gravity that the earth must be smoothed out for twenty feet around it, because small irregularities on the surface would exercise gravitational attraction upon it. Deposits of metal ore, because of their weight, register on this gravity balance.

An Electrical Method.

The sixth method is electrical. Many kinds of ore bodies have a chemical action resembling that of a dry battery. If the ore is not too deeply buried, the current thus generated plays about the surface of the ground and can be detected and measured by the potentiometer.

The seventh method involves the use of a dynamo. An electrical current is led through the earth in the region where the ore is suspected. From the manner in which the current is deflected, deductions are made as to the kind and amount of ore, if any, below the surface.

The eighth method is that of creating an alternating magnetic field on the surface. This magnetic field penetrates rocks about as readily as it does the air, and sets up new magnetic fields in ore bodies in the locality.

Favors Use of Several Methods.

In discussing various types of long-range prospecting from the surface, Dr. Max Mason of Chicago said that the best results were obtained by using different methods, so that one checks up another, and that under the best circumstances there were many confusing factors to be taken into account. Hans Lundberg of New York described in detail the electrical and magnetic methods of prospecting.

"A new art like electrical prospecting is likely to be received with either extreme skepticism or overwhelming faith," he said. "Often too much has been expected, and disappointment has resulted. Often, too, when large areas are surveyed without finding ore bodies, the methods are blamed for the failures, when the real reason is that no ore bodies exist.

"As for positive results, only in a few places—for instance, Sweden and Newfoundland—has the electrical work been checked up to such an extent that a true comparison can be made between conditions predicted and those actually found in later exploration. It is, therefore, a little early to discuss in general the practical result in electrical prospecting."

Hans Haalck of New York City said that gold had been located successfully in old river beds because of the fact that magnetite was frequently deposited with the gold, and this magnetite could be detected above ground because of the disturbance it caused in the earth's magnetic field.

SUGGESTS REFORMING BANKRUPTCY METHODS

Suggestions for the reform of bankruptcy procedure and the reduction of financial losses through fraudulent failures were made by Leon Lauterstein, a lawyer, at the monthly forum meeting of the New York Credit Men's Association at the Hotel Commodore last night. T. J. Wheatly, Chairman of the Forum Committee, presided.

"Merchants who are indifferent to the evils of bankruptcy and refuse to organize and investigate are as much a menace to honest and sound business as the commercial crook," Mr. Lauterstein said. He added that the essentials of reform in this procedure should include, therefore, the overcoming of this indifference on the part of the merchants and the procuring of their cooperation with the courts and reputable members of the bar.

Referring to the question of perjury, Mr. Lauterstein said he had never seen "a crooked bankruptcy that did not originate in a false financial statement," and recommended that if within six months after a false financial statement had been submitted, other bad debts had been incurred as a result of such a statement, such an act should be considered a crime.

RETAIN LINDSAY ROGERS.

Cloak Manufacturers Also Vote to Expand Work of Council.

Further expansion of the activities of the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers, Inc., to include the operations formerly supervised by the United Wholesale Women's Wear League was decided last night at the annual meeting of the manufacturers at the Hotel Pennsylvania. I. Grossman, President of the Industrial Council, presided.

It was also decided to retain Professor Lindsay Rogers to handle labor disputes within the organization.

The following were elected to serve for three years as directors in the Industrial Council: Adolph S. Oppenheimer, William Bloom, Julius S. Finger and Albert Sarney.

AUTOMATIC MAN OBEYS ORDERS IN EXHIBITION

The mechanical man—televox he is called—rang a bell, started a fan, turned on a vacuum cleaner and lighted two different styles of lights in answer to commands sent over the telephone at a demonstration in the chemistry building of City College last night. This example of "reflected intelligence," as its inventor, R. J. Wensley, terms it, was developed last Summer at the experimental laboratories of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company to solve a problem of remote control for power sub-stations.

It responds entirely to a definite pitch of the musical scale, and in actual practice is motivated by a tuning fork, pitch pipe or whistle. When the telephone number of the proper station is called the mechanical device, which looks like a combination of a telephone switchboard and the inside of a radio receiving set, raises the receiver and announces its station signal.

As Mr. Wensley demonstrated it last night at a public meeting of a newly organized polytechnic society, as yet unnamed, there are three steps by which the machine performs its appointed work. Five "stations" were used, although Mr. Wensley explained that there was no limit to the number of separate actions possible. Contact is established over an ordinary dial-switching telephone. Then in the next operation the electrical impulse is transmitted at a definite pitch, which actuates a ratchet switch, determining which operation shall be performed. For example, one blast of the whistle causes the mechanism to turn on a light, two blasts cause it to sound a whistle. When the switch is set the machine signals back by means of a buzzer just what its position is. For instance, if ready to ring the bell, there are two buzzes followed by a much longer one, indicating that the operation is set, but not yet in action. If the bell were ringing, the buzz after the first signal would be half as long.

After the machine announces itself ready to function a signal from a different pitch turns the switch. This same signal will stop the operation. A third note sets the mechanism back to zero. In the event the number is called and the machine does not receive its whistle signal within a few seconds it hangs up again.

Mr. Wensley explained that in the evolution of the televox the first step had been an automatic switching device for power sub-stations. The next step was the building of machines which operate under what is known as supervisory control. Under this method wires are strung to the power station, or telephone lines are rented, and the transmission impulse is sent from the main station.

However, because of the high cost of leased telephone lines the next step was the development of the televox, the present instrument, to operate with the ordinary telephone system.

The machine will be used to actuate a dummy on Washington's Birthday to unveil a statue of George Washington at the Level Club of the National Masonic League, 253 West Seventy-third Street.

HAS PLAN FOR DISPUTES.

E. A. Willoughby Suggests Board at Compensation Bureau Hearing.

A conference board composed of representatives of insurance carriers and the State Labor Department to pass on minor disputes in compensation cases was suggested yesterday by Edward A. Willoughby, President of the New York Claims Association, at a hearing before Moreland Commissioner Lindsay Rogers into the administration of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau.

The body Mr. Willoughby suggested, should meet periodically and consider "trivial" problems and discrepancies which now must be disposed of at hearings before various referees. He also recommended that referees be appointed by the Courts and that they serve for a period of at least ten years at a salary of $10,000 a year. He opposed the granting of lump sum awards and favored cooperation of the department with the Bureau of Rehabilitation.

James E. Donahoe, Director of the Compensation Bureau, spoke of "inadequate salaries," which he said were paid to employes; the lack of fire protection in the Labor Department Building and the crowded condition which he called "a menace to the health of the employes."

Henry D. Sayer, Executive Secretary of the Industrial Survey Commission, will testify when the hearing is resumed this morning.

Price Drops to 5.50 Cents a Pound —Lead Also Weak.

Buying of zinc was small yesterday and the price fell to the lowest point which it has reached in more than five years, with prime western metal quoted at 5.50 cents a pound East St. Louis, against 5.55 cents on Friday, the previous low. In 1927 the low point was 5.60 cents and in 1926 it was 6.7 cents.

Sales of Tri-State zinc concentrates last week were 8,490 tons, priced at $35 to $36 a ton, against $36 the week before. The low price for the last few years was $35 a ton, reached several times in 1927. Production of concentrates was 12,400 tons last week, with shipments 10,810 tons, making stocks in the Tri-State field 61,850 tons at the end of the week.

REFUSES TO EXTEND RUBBER RESTRICTION

Baldwin Rejects Traders' Plea for Continuing Stevenson Scheme Till Oct. 31.

NO CHANGE BEFORE MAY 1ST

Indignant Growers Prophesy British Estates Must Be Abandoned If Restriction Goes.

By Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The British Government has refused a request by the Rubber Trade Association for assurance that the Stevenson restriction scheme would be continued until Oct. 31, according to an announcement by Premier Baldwin in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The Premier stated, however, that no change would be made before May 1, and that when the Government reached a decision on the report of the committee now inquiring into the matter it would pay full regard in any public announcement to all British interests involved.

Eric Miller, Chairman of the United Serdang and other big British rubber companies, recently attacked the Government's policy of starting an inquiry.

Opinion as to restriction is not unanimous among the rubber trade, as was indicated today in a statement by Edward Boustead & Co., one of the best known firms of rubber merchants.

"We have always regarded restriction in any shape or form unpractical, unsound and unwise," said the statement, "and from the day when it was decided to impose the self-denying ordinance on British producers, leaving the Dutch complete freedom of action, disaster has appeared to us inevitable."

In answer to the question whether communications had passed between the British and American Governments during the past two months on the rubber restriction scheme, Sir Austen Chamberlain replied with an emphatic "no."

Arthur A. Baumann, former Member of Parliament and a director of several rubber companies, in a hotly worded letter to The London Times asks: "By whose advice, at whose instigation and for whose benefit is a loss of £7,000,000 inflicted on the British rubber industry by issuing the announcement that an inquiry would be held, in so careless a manner? New York was given notice a day before the announcement appeared in the London papers. Ten Downing Street is really unfit to govern the Empire if it forgets that every American newspaper has a representative in London, and thus thrusts the scoop of their lives into their hands.

"It is unfortunate for the Government that about a month ago Mr. Hoover was asking Congress for powers to form a syndicate 'to prevent the imminent world shortage of rubber, due to the working of the British restriction scheme'—a shortage which was, and is, the invention of Mr. Hoover. The day after the announcement Mr. Harvey Firestone sent a 'whoop' across the Atlantic, saying, 'The United States have won a great moral victory.' Is the Republican candidate for the Presidency to wear in his belt the scalps of the British rubber planters?

"If restriction were removed within the next six months rubber would fall to 8 pence and possibly 6 pence a pound, as it did in 1922. At such prices half, if not two-thirds of the rubber companies would be forced to abandon their estates to the jungle or to the Americans."

Although London rubber stocks showed a substantial fall last week of 170 tons the rubber market is quite unresponsive to the news and the opening price remained unchanged today at 1 shilling 3⅝ pence during the afternoon to 1 shilling 2¾ pence, owing, it was alleged, to Mr. Baldwin's statement in Commons.

CRUDE RUBBER PRICES DROP TO NEW LEVELS

Crude rubber futures opened the week in a renewal of the pressure which had been a factor last week, closing levels showing losses of 40 to 80 points in seven positions. Sales amounted to 1,137 lots.

The reaction was ascribed to weak London and Singapore cables, as well as to a report from abroad that Premier Baldwin had announced there would be no change in the restriction scheme before May 31, when the request was made upon him by the Rubber Trade Association to keep it effective until Oct. 31.

July and September were heavily traded in all day, both positions closing 60 points down. May sustained the maximum decline of 80 points, while February and March lost 40 points each. Switching from July to September brought a premium of 10 points.

London opened fairly steady, with gains of ¼d to ⅜d, but gradually eased and closed with a weak undertone. Spot and February were ⅛d down and the distant positions finished with a like loss. Singapore closed quiet and ⅛d to ¼d lower. London stocks as of Feb. 18 totaled 62,769 tons, a loss of 1,176 tons from the previous week.

Paper Mills Reduce Accidents.

There were 22 per cent. less accidents causing lost time in the mills of the International Paper Company during 1927, despite an increase of 7 per cent. in the number of employes, as compared with 1926, showing the best record in the eleven years covered by the company's records. The company maintains a department of safety.

NEW MARINE GROUP IS FORMED BY UNIONS

The Amalgamated Maritime Committee, composed of representatives of the Associated Marine Workers, Cooks and Stewards' Union, Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, International Seamen's Union, Ocean Association of Marine Engineers, Neptune Association and Marine Engineers' Benefit Society, came into existence yesterday at a meeting at 345 West Twelfth Street.

The committee has for its purposes "to do everything in its power to establish for the United States a permanent merchant marine manned by skilled and efficient American seamen," and "to take such action from time to time as may be for the best interests of American officers and seamen." Silas B. Axtell was elected permanent Chairman. Arthur W. Lockwood was elected Secretary.

The committee plans to bring about closer cooperation between employers and employes and "take such steps as from time to time may be necessary to enforce laws created for the protection of American seamen and the upbuilding of merchant marine and safety of passengers and men at sea."

A committee of three was appointed to investigate crimping and shanghaiing. It was also decided to support steps being taken to obtain votes for American seamen, supporting the action of the Seamen's Franchise Association, which will have delegates at the Republican, Democratic and Socialist national conventions next year, and to urge increased compensation for United States steamboat inspectors and shipping commissioners.

EGYPT AND PALESTINE GET PULLMAN CARS

Leon Danley, General Agent of the International Sleeping Car Company in the United States, announced yesterday that Pullman drawing-room cars are being operated daily on the express trains between Alexandria and Cairo, Egypt, and between Cairo and Port Said for American tourists.

Americans traveling between Jerusalem and Cairo, Mr. Danley added, can travel eastward in the Pullman cars as far as El Kantara, which is ten miles from Port Said. It is necessary to cross the Suez Canal by ferryboat to connect with the sleeping car train for Damascus, Nazareth, Jaffa, Jerusalem and other points in Palestine.

There is a daily Pullman saloon car service on the express between Cairo and Luxor, which it is expected several thousand American tourists will go this Winter to see the fourth chamber in the tomb of King Tut-ankh-Amen before it is sealed up.

The Pullman cars will continue in operation in Egypt and Palestine, Mr. Danley said, until April 10, when hot weather arrives.

TELLS OF BENEFITS OF DWELLINGS BILL

NORMAN THOMAS SKEPTICAL

What Is Needed, He Says, Is Slum Clearance—Brooklyn Chamber to Protest Measure Today.

Harold Riegelman, counsel for the Commission to Examine and Revise the Tenement House law, addressed the fifteenth annual meeting of the Kips Bay Neighborhood Association at Bellevue Yorkville Demonstration Building, 325 East Thirty-eighth Street, last night on the proposed Dwellings bill.

Mr. Riegelman said that the proposed law would bring more light to homes, yards and streets, better sanitary conditions, fewer fire hazards, and in every way improve conditions.

"There are selfish real estate interests which say this new law is confiscatory, visionary and impractical," he said, "but it has been that way from the very beginning, ever since anybody tried to do anything to better living conditions in New York."

Norman Thomas, Chairman of the Committee on Housing of the Socialist Party of New York, issued a statement endorsing the general provisions of the measure, but urging that more ought to be done in the case of old tenements. He criticized the bill as not providing adequate fire protection, sanitation or ventilation.

"What the law should definitely seek to bring about," his statement reads, "is slum clearances or the progressive condemnation of old law tenements over a period of time sufficient to provide new housing, beginning with those tenements which have already had enough violations filed against them to paper their walls.

"In almost two years not one private limited dividend corporation has begun work on housing under the much advertised State housing law. The so-called Walker-Heckscher plan of which we heard so much at election time is still in the air, and Mr. Heckscher has recently said that it cannot be carried out under the proposed dwellings law."

A special committee of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce comprising former Senator William M. Calder, Chairman; Lewis H. Pounds and James B. Fisher, will appear at the hearing before the Tenement House Revision Committee today to express that organization's disapproval of the new Dwellings bill. The chamber contends that if the bill became law building would be at a standstill in Brooklyn for several years.

COOPERATIVE LAWS UPHELD

Supreme Court Implies Approval of 42 States' Statutes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Kentucky's cooperative marketing statutes, attacked as unconstitutional on the ground that they represented "class legislation," were upheld by the Supreme Court today in an opinion "recognizing as permissible some discrimination intended to encourage agriculture." The decision may be taken to imply approval of such laws in forty-two States.

Under the so-called Bingham act, Kentucky farmers may organize cooperative associations and bind members in five-year contracts to dispose of their products only through the association. The statute specifically provided that these contracts should not be deemed illegal, exempted the associations from illegal combination or monopoly, and prescribed penalties for interference with the operations of cooperative associations.

The test case decided today grows out of a $500 judgment entered against the Liberty Warehouse Company of Maysville, Ky., which, it was charged, had persuaded a tobacco farmer whom it knew to be a member of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Marketing Association to market his crop through the warehouse rather than through the association.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4 per cent. for the best names. Saturday—4 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for 4 to 6 months' paper.

***

Weather Now Becomes Important.

A fair measure of consumer reaction to the early Spring offerings has already been obtained in a number of lines, and the indications are that by the next two weeks there will be a renewal of buyers' visits in force to this market. Style uncertainty will not play as important a rôle during the next few weeks as weather conditions will, it was pointed out yesterday. Early indications are that the February figures on retail turnovers will show up somewhat better than those of the preceding month, with outstanding increases likely in house furnishings and ready-to-wear departments.

Printed Silks Lead Market.

The demand for printed silks continues exceptionally strong. Both retailers and cutters-up have been pressing manufacturers for delivery and orders already in hand indicate a tremendous season for the fabrics. One leading producer is credited with having booked orders for a million yards. Not only is the demand strong, but the business is likely to be profitable, it was said yesterday, because sound prices are being obtained and production is being steadily absorbed. In the recent patterns favored the new scenic prints and polka dot effects are outstanding.

***

Sees Business Recovery Ahead.

While several unfavorable factors are in evidence, there is no reason to modify the expectation that general business recovery will occur early this year, according to the Franklin Statistical Service. Gloomy reports concerning unemployment and dull business, poor earnings and depression levels for various business indices, the organization points out, come at the bottom of a recession and are in a sense indications of future improvement. Cited among the adverse elements is the January setback in retail trade.

***

Groups Handbag Styles.

Handbags are so closely following style trends that many of the manufacturers are a bit confused as to what to show for late Spring and Summer. One firm is trying to overcome this condition by showing its bags in three groups, those for use with sports clothes, then the regular daytime bags, and finally the afternoon and evening bags. Buyers appear to be pleased with the method of presentation, stating that they are greatly assisted in judging their wants.

***

Price Advances Help Stability.

While the increases being placed on a number of textiles are small, they are held decidedly beneficial from several standpoints. For one thing, it was said yesterday, buyers are now realizing that "things are not going all in their favor." In other words, the manufacturer is beginning "to obtain more recognition of his right to a profit." It was also said to be a fact that many buyers, including the larger ones, welcome a greater degree of firmness. In a firm market they know "where they are" and there is lessened competition of a dubious nature in the finished merchandise.

Should Unify Color Names.

Commenting on the need of simplified stocks, both wholesale and retail, to meet increasing competition, a well-known hosiery man advanced the theory yesterday that unifying color names might be a good way to start the process in that industry. "It is not unusual," he said, "to see several stockings of apparently the same shade offered to the trade under as many different names. The manufacturer's idea, of course, is to make it appear that he has something the 'other fellow' hasn't, but I don't think anything is gained from this in the long run. It is a fertile means of color duplications with resultant cancellations and returns. It further results in scattered buying, which is not good for any business."

***

Printed Cottons in Demand.

The fast pace that has been set this season by printed silks is also found in printed cotton goods. Demand for the latter ranges all the way from the cheapest percale to the sheerest fine wash fabric, and there is almost no end to the variety of patterns. Right now the trend in the higher-priced goods is strongly toward colored sport stripes on broadcloth grounds, and it was said here yesterday to look as if these fabrics would prove one of the season's most successful offerings. Both jobbers and cutters are taking them and leading printers are pressed to meet the demand.

Fancies May Spur Demand.

With the opening of men's wear fancy worsteds and woolens by the American Woolen Company scheduled for day after tomorrow, the trade here is taking on a greater semblance of activity. Openings of staple suitings and overcoatings did not bring much of an influx of buyers, but the offerings of fancies, both by the big company and the "independents," are expected to provide stimulation. It is figured that the medium to low priced fancies will show a greater advance than weaves priced at $3.50 or above. Wools entering into the former have gone up most.

***

Ensembles for Children Favored.

The ensemble idea is emphasized this season as much by designers of children's and junior clothing as by manufacturers of women's dresses. The usual style employs a long woolen coat, with a bodice of silk set on a pleated woolen skirt. Kasha is one of the favored materials for the tailored ensemble and flannels are also being used. Three-piece ensembles are also included in the current showings in knitwear for young ones. Among them are cape suits, the cape and skirt being of plain yarn and the sweater of a fancy weave. According to reports to the United Infants', Children's and Junior Wear League of America, the ensembles are among the most successful knitted offerings of several seasons.

Gray Goods Trading Small.

Trading in gray goods continued small here yesterday despite the firmness of cotton. Indications were, however, that a strong cotton market today would be reflected in better buying. First hands sold 39-inch 80-squares and 68-72s at 10¾ and 8½ cents respectively, while second hands let out some 38-inch 60-48s at 6½. Sheetings were very quiet, but there was some activity in 36-inch 4.15s at 5¾ cents. Sateens, broadcloths, fine-yarn goods and drills were all "draggy." Prices were generally firm, however, and sellers showed no disposition to press for business.

SAYS SUGAR INSTITUTE TENDS TO UPSET TRADE

F. C. Lowry Declares Formation by Refining Interests Has Had Unsettling Effect.

The recent formation of the Sugar Institute, Inc., has had an unsettling effect on the sugar trade, according to a statement issued yesterday by Frank C. Lowry of Lowry & Co., Inc. A chief aim of the institute was to eliminate certain trade practices, and this, Mr. Lowry finds, has tended to affect the market. After describing the outlook in Cuba, Mr. Lowry said:

"Another immediately unfavorable influence on the market has been the Sugar Institute, Inc., which has just been organized by refining interests. The purpose of this organization is to eliminate unethical trade practices which became prevalent as a result of the intense competition between refiners. The sudden elimination of practices which had become 'a custom of the trade,' combined with the increased refining margin that has been maintained, has naturally made buyers of refined sugar hesitate to go beyond daily requirements in making purchases.

"While the raw market has declined fifty points, refined buyers have seen but a twenty-point decline in refined. They must be convinced that for them the bottom has been reached and an advance is in prospect before in turn there is any inclination on their part to build up inventory. At what level buying interest on the part of distributers of refined sugar will be created is for the future to determine."

Mr. Lowry, who recently returned from Cuba, said that as Cuba under restriction plans will produce her entire crop of sugar cane within four months in a period of normally light consumption there will be a tendency for prices to decline. He said that Porto Rico, Philippine and Hawaiian producers have all grown record crops this year, that domestic producers had on Jan. 1 an excess supply of more than 200,000 tons, and that the Cuban commission appointed for the purpose will put 200,000 tons on the market within a week. He concludes:

"After all, has not Cuba, in restricting its crop for three years, done its full part? Certainly all interests in the island have been called upon to make great sacrifices which they are hardly in a position to continue. It would seem that if there is to be curtailment, it is now up to producers elsewhere to make their contribution."

SUGAR, COFFEE, COCOA.

Under the influence of scattered liquidation, raw sugar futures on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange developed an easier tone yesterday. Initial quotations were unchanged to 1 point higher. European interests bought the near months and trade operators were sellers. On the decline better support was encountered, resulting in a recovery of all previous losses. An operator bought 16,000 bags of Cubas, loading next week, at 2 7-16 cents c. and f. The market closed from 2 to 3 points higher. Price ranges for raw sugar futures yesterday were:

Cocoa.

Cocoa futures were again under pressure yesterday on the New York Cocoa Exchange. There was evidence of active February liquidation by a local trade house with a local broker covering his short position. May was heavily sold by dealers and trade houses, but there was a good scattered buying interest in the market throughout the day. European interests were generally on the buying side. Wall Street houses liquidated March and bought May at a difference of 20 points. The spot market was unchanged at 13¼ cents, but dull. Futures closed from 3 to 7 points lower.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REAL ESTATE

PARK AV. BUILDINGS ARE TRADED BY BING

SITE VALUED AT $1,500,000

Among Manhattan realty deals reported yesterday was the sale by the Gresham Realty Company, Inc., Alexander S. Bing, President, of 949 to 957 Park Avenue, southeast corner of Eighty-second Street, improved with three buildings, held at $1,500,000. The property was acquired by Max Loewenthal as a result of the sale by him of the ten-story apartment at 777 Madison Avenue to the Gresham company, announced Sunday.

The Park Avenue parcel fronts 122 feet on that thoroughfare and 100 feet on Eighty-second Street. On the immediate corner, 25 by 100 feet, is a five-story altered store and apartment building. Directly adjoining is a fourteen-story modern apartment house, 77 by 100 feet, and next to this house is a two-story building, 20 by 80 feet, recently acquired by the Bing interests. Mr. Loewenthal will hold the property for investment, according to N. A. Berwin & Co., Inc., the brokers.

In the Harlem district the Borden's Farm Products Company sold its former plant at 306-14 East 117th Street, between First and Second Avenues. The property was acquired in 1899 from the New York Condensed Milk Company, and was occupied by the Borden organization until its recent move to a new plant in the same section. The property is improved with fireproof buildings. The plot has a frontage of about 100 feet and a slightly greater depth.

Leon S. Altmayer, the broker, some time ago sold the nine private houses to the rear of the site, known as 331 to 347 East 116th Street, for the Sydenham Hospital. A large part of this plot is now being used by the National Red Cross for its Harlem health centre.

The three-story buildings at 329 and 339 West Houston Street were acquired by the New York State Realty and Terminal Company, a holding concern for the New York Central Railroad. The former structure is at the southwest corner of Washington Street. The seller was the Broadbelt Realty Company, Herbert S. Baudesson, President.

Last May the railroad company acquired the Church of the Holy Comforter property at 341-5 Houston Street and the Seamen's Church Institute property at 341 West Street. More recently the block front on the north side of West Houston Street, between Washington and West Streets, and other properties in the immediate vicinity were acquired.

The three-story and basement private dwelling at 348 West 122d Street was sold by Nehring Brothers for Mrs. F. Ressmeyer, who held it at $20,000. This is the first sale of the property in twenty-five years.

This is the third sale within the past six weeks of one of a group of ten houses erected by the Central Westchester Construction Company.

PRAISES BUDGET SAVINGS.

No political party is entitled to exclusive credit for the inauguration of the budget system into our national finances, General Herbert M. Lord, Director of the Budget, told the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants at the Waldorf last night. Leading members of both the Republican and Democratic parties cooperated for its establishment, he said.

After pointing out that the national debt was reduced $8,084,794,716 between Aug. 31, 1919, and the end of the last fiscal year, June 30, 1927, General Lord said that the credit should be divided between a courageous Chief Executive and Congress, which had furnished him with an efficient weapon for holding down expenses.

He told of some of the apparently insignificant economies which have been effected under his direction and have brought considerable savings, such as a reduction of a quarter of an inch in the width of the domestic money order blank, which is saving the Government $8,000 a year. He said that his directions to his investigators are never to hesitate to ask foolish questions, and that foolish questions have saved the Government millions of dollars since the budget system went into operation.

60,000 Ardsley-Butte Shares Sold.

Fifty thousand shares of stock of the Ardsley-Butte Mines Coporation have been purchased by a New York group headed by Alfred R. Miller & Co., according to an announcement yesterday. There will be no public offering of the stock, it is understood.

An extensive display of electrical apparatus, ranging from large electric hoists down to tiny tin-slips or shears for cutting tin, was on view yesterday when the sixth annual Electric Power Show opened at 130 East Fifteenth Street. It will close Feb. 25. In addition to ordinary domestic devices, such as vacuum cleaners, toasters and washing machines, many tools and workshop utensils were on view.

'OWN YOUR HOME' SHOW OPENS THIS EVENING

Village Green Feature of Tenth Annual Exhibition at Madison Square Garden.

The tenth annual "Own Your Home" Building and Equipment Show will open at Madison Square Garden this evening.

Everything that enters into the construction of a well-built house, everything that enters into its decoration, furnishing and equipment, the landscaping of its grounds, and even the financing of the new home, will be shown in a series of artistic exhibits by the country's leading manufacturers and dealers in materials and equipment, and through an educational program given by leaders in planning sanitation, decoration, furnishing equipment and financing, for the information of home owners.

"The 'home atmosphere' will be the dominant note in this year's exposition," said Robert H. Sexton, Managing Director, "and with the 'Village Green' as a pictorial central note the front elevations of a group of artistic homes, designed and built under the supervision of the Architectural Committee, headed by Henry C. Hahn and including Arthur C. Holden, Robert D. Dunbar, Gerald L. Kaufman and Louis C. Jaeger will be shown.

"These homes will be not only a striking demonstration of the value of good architecture but will serve also as a practical demonstration of the application of tried and proved materials such as brick, concrete, frame, stucco and other materials that are widely used because of their permanence, economy and attractiveness in their present-day forms.

"The feature of the opening night aside from the presence of many distinguished guests in many fields of home building will be the dedicatory address by Stephen Yates."

BIG DRY DOCK URGED BY PORT AUTHORITY

Report Submitted to Jersey Legislature Estimates Cost at $10,000,000.

WEST SHORE IS SUGGESTED

Construction With Public Funds Recommended—Would Care for Biggest Ships Afloat.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 20.—The Port of New York Authority tonight submitted to the Legislature, as requested, a special report setting forth the need and proposed location of a drydock sufficient in size to accommodate the largest ship entering the Port of New York. The estimated cost was placed at between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000.

The necessity for the facility had been established in the short time allowed for the inquiry, the Port Authority said. A location on the New Jersey side of the Hudson River, with sites available at Bayonne, Jersey City, Weehawken and North Bergen, was found most desirable. Construction should be financed with public funds, it was declared, but operating arrangements were suggested that would prevent competition with private enterprise.

Doubt was expressed if a big drydock would pay as a mere commercial proposition. Methods were outlined, however, whereby revenues to meet capital charges might be obtained in whole or in part, and it was mentioned that as a matter of port policy the Port of New York should not be allowed to remain behind the other ports of the world in its port equipment.

Other Ports Have Big Docks.

"The largest ships in the world are those built for the North Atlantic trade between New York and Europe," the report continues. "New York Harbor, the principal and in most cases the only port of call in the United States for such ships, lacks adequate drydock facilities to take care of it. The ports of Boston, Philadelphia and Norfolk, although rarely ports of call for the larger ships, nevertheless have drydock facilities of ample capacity for all existing vessels."

It was estimated that an adequate investigation, including the making of sub-aqueous borings, preparations of plans and estimates for different types of docks, the analyses of costs of operation and maintenance and sources and amounts of potential revenue would require at least eight months and could cost about $50,000.

If was shown that there are fifteen large vessels entering the port with more planned and under construction which cannot be drydocked at existing commercial facilities. In discussing location, it was set forth that a large drydock should be located reasonably near the usual berths of the largest vessels in the Hudson River, and that channel, ice, storm and tide conditions were important features, along with convenience to railway, highway and public utility connections and nearness to a normal labor supply. A minimum of fifteen acres of land with 400 feet of waterfront would be required.

"There is a provision in the Federal Customs law," the report says, "which requires a 50 per cent. duty to be paid on all repair bills incurred by American vessels in foreign ports, which results in their normally being drydocked in domestic ports. Because of the inadequate facilities in New York harbor the Leviathan has to be sent to Boston twice a year for drydocking and the resulting extra expense exceeds $32,000 a year. This amount is in addition to the actual drydock and repair bill which, added, has amounted to over $1,374,000 for this one ship alone since February, 1924. That money would have been spent in the port of New York if there had been a suitable drydock here.

West Shore Called Best Site.

"The west waterfront of the Hudson River and upper New York Bay, between Fort Lee and Bayonne, seems to offer the best location for such a facility. The west waterfront of Manhattan is too expensive, and there is insufficient depth of land east of the bulkhead line for a facility of this kind, without closing city Streets. The East River is out of the question, because of the bridges, tidal currents, narrowness and depth of channels and cost of land.

"A preliminary inspection of the New Jersey shore of the upper bay and the Hudson River south of Fort Lee reveals several possible sites in Bayonne, Jersey City, Weehawken and North Bergen, but it is not possible to recommend any specific location in advance of a complete and comprehensive engineering survey."

SHIPPING BOARD WINS SUIT.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—A decision by the United States Supreme Court today, holding that the time limitation prescribed by the Suits in Admiralty Act barred libel cases instituted against the Shipping Board by Rosenberg Brothers & Co., is expected to save the Government approximately $8,000,000, inasmuch as other pending cases involve the same question just determined by the high court, Shipping Board officials asserted tonight.

The decision reversed one by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the NInth Circuit in favor of the libelants involving about $675,000 and interest since January 1920.

The suits arose out of three separate shipments made on board the S. S. Westaleta by Rosenberg Brothers & Co., S. L. Jones & Co., and the California Wine Association, to Hamburg, Rotterdam and Cardiff. En route the vessel struck a sand bar and became a total loss. It was contended by the libelants that there was a deviation in the manner in which the vessel was supposed to call for cargo and that, therefore, the Fleet Corporation was liable for the value of the cargo.

The Court did not rule as to the deviation alleged. It pointed out, however, that the libelants may still have a remedy in the courts, declaring it to be a question whether in addition to furnishing an exclusive remedy in admiralty "the act also prevents a resort to any concurrent remedies in the Court of Claims or in courts of law."

SAILOR WINS $25,000 FOR INJURIES AT SEA

WAS AT WORK IN STORM

In a sealed verdict opened yesterday in the Supreme Court at St. George, S. I., Edward Malinowski, formerly a seaman, of 979 Richmond Road, Concord, S. I., won $25,000 in his suit against the United States Shipping Board for injuries received during a storm on Sept. 5, 1926, on board the steamship West Chetac.

Assistant United States Attorney Howard Campbell asked Justice Faber to set aside the verdict as excessive and contrary to the evidence. Silas B. Axtell, counsel for the sailor, opposed the motion. Justice Faber reserved decision, but indicated that he was not likely to upset the award.

Malinowski testified that he and another sailor were ordered to cut away the awning on the ship's bridge during the storm and that he was thrown to the deck. His right leg was so injured that he walks with a cane. The knife he was using was driven through his left arm, cutting muscles and nerves, and now the arm is useless.

Malinowski said the accident occurred in the Atlantic Ocean, that the master of the ship refused to put in at Valencia, Spain, but went to Barcelona. There Malinowski was put in a hospital, but was taken back to the ship in a few days and carried to Valencia, whence he was sent back subsequently to Barcelona.

Later he was taken to New Orleans, La., on another ship and put in the United States Marine Hospital there. Thence he was transferred to the Marine Hospital in Stapleton, S. I. He spent six months in the hospitals.

THE jaws of competition are closing about you. On the one hand, rising costs. On the other, falling prices for your goods. You may be strong, you may be big, you may be dominating, but the jaws inexorably are closing.

There is a way out. Your efforts to cut costs can be successful if you will follow the lead of America's outstanding industrial executives. General Motors . . . Cluett Peabody . . . Pullman . . . Goodyear . . . Goodrich and Fisk . . . Johnson & Johnson . . . Richardson Roofing . . . a great and growing list, of which these are only a few, have learned of the production economies in the Atlanta Industrial Area, and have established factories here.

You can put your plant where labor helps instead of hindering. Where taxes are low, where abundant raw materials are available close by at low prices, where power is cheap and abundant,—where every factor is a favorable factor. And if you do it—as those others have done—you will find, as they have found, that it is possible to defeat the closing jaws of competition, pressing on you in your present location.

The Atlanta Industrial Bureau will be glad to tell you, without obligation and in the strictest confidence, exactly how Atlanta location will help you restore dividends to their proper level.
